

THE CRAZY WISDOM COMMUNITY JOURNAL

ANN ARBOR'S HOLISTIC MAGAZINE

Issue 50

FREE

JANUARY THROUGH APRIL 2012

Drop the Knife: A Memoir in Song

Musician & Peace Activist Jeanne Mackey Returns to the Small Town of Her Youth to Sing Her Life Song

- Storyteller Laura Pershin Raynor ~ A Gift to the Community
 - Barb Christensen, Breaking Barriers in Karate
- Forensic Psychiatrist and Holocaust Survivor Emanuel Tanay
 - Anthropologist Anya Bernstein on Siberian Shamanism

Sreyashi Dey, Dancing with Tradition • Katy Held and the Power of Movement • Buddhist Artist Rob Davis • Gari Stein's Music for Little Folks • Acupuncturist Cynthia Esseichick • Excerpts of New Books by Local Authors Lorna Brown, Lorri Coburn, and Pat Fero • Compounding Pharmacies • Ann Arbor 350: Taking on Climate Change • Marc Lerner on Health and Attitude • Birth Story Nights • What's New in the Community • and More

If you are Seeking...

...a stronger connection to God

We invite you to join our Spiritual Community at Unity Church of Ann Arbor

Sunday at 9:00am & 11:00am

Unity Church of Ann Arbor offers:

~ Practical, spiritual teachings that empower abundant and meaningful living

~ Excellent Youth Services

~ Space for Rent

~ Classes & Workshops

We are a Positive Path for Spiritual Living unity of Ann Arbor

Consider us when you are planning your:

Wedding | Christening | Memorial Service | Spiritual Baptism

4599 Carpenter Road
Ypsilanti, MI 48197
Call (734) 434-8545
or visit www.unitya2.org

CASTLE REMEDIES

MICHIGAN'S LARGEST SOURCE OF HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINES

Specializing in Products for Maintaining Health and Preventing Disease

Over One Thousand Homeopathic Remedies

in Potencies of 3x -CM

Herbal Tinctures from Organic & Wild-Crafted Sources

Specialized Lines of Nutritional Supplements and Medical Foods

Including Metagenics, Ortho Molecular, Pure Encapsulations, BHI Heel

Karuna, Pure Research, Now, Zymogen, and Integrative Therapeutics

We welcome special orders and ship daily.

10% Discount for Seniors on Tuesday, Students on Saturday

CASTLE REMEDIES
2345 S. Huron Pkwy
Ann Arbor, MI 48104
734-973-8990

We are located just around the corner from the Washtenaw Whole Foods in Ann Arbor

www.castleremedies.com
castleremedies@gmail.com

Welcome to Castle Remedies
Sign up for our free frequent buyer's program and receive

10% Off
your first purchase with this coupon.

At Natural Body Health & Wellness, we are committed to helping people achieve healthier lives and experience a greater sense of well-being.

Our Ann Arbor wellness center offers an expanded variety of modalities for holistic health, unique to Southeast Michigan.

Natural Body Health & Wellness has been Ann Arbor's Migun center for over 5 years and we invite you to benefit from our additional therapies.

Royal Rife Frequency & Detoxification Technology

Tyent Ionized/Alkaline Water

Dr. Mercola Vitamin D & Tanning System

Migun Far-Infrared Products

*ROM (Range of Motion)
4 Minute cross-trainer*

TurboSonic Whole Body Vibration Therapy

Sunlighten mPulse Infrared Sauna (full-spectrum)

Oxygen Therapy

holistic & health & healing

OUR WIDE RANGE OF THERAPIES & TECHNOLOGIES:

Migun Thermal Massage Beds

w w w . n b h w e l l n e s s . c o m

Pharmacy SOLUTIONS

invites you to visit a unique personal & educational pharmacy offering specially compounded medications to meet your unique needs

We offer the following Products and Services:

- Prescription Medications
- Compounded Medications
- Over-the-Counter Medications
- Homeopathic Remedies
- Vitamins • Herbal Supplements
- Medical Books, Journals & Videos

Your Natural Choice in Pharmacy

5204 Jackson Rd.

~Ann Arbor~

734-821-8000

Hours: Mon. - Fri. 9am - 6pm

Sat. 10am - 3pm

Serving the Community for over 10 years

www.pharmacysolutionsonline.com

A2 YOGA
LIVING THE LIGHT WITHIN™

A2 YOGA
FIRST YOGA CLASS FREE
FIRST NIA CLASS FREE
(For New A2 Yoga Students Only)
10% DISCOUNT FOR SENIORS & STUDENTS

A2YOGA.NET • 734.216.4006
2030 COMMERCE BLVD • ANN ARBOR VOTED ANN ARBOR'S BEST YOGA STUDIO

stuck?
transitioning?
dissatisfied?
searching?
stressed?

Partner with a Life Coach today!

Brady Mikusko
Certified Life Coach

TOOLS & STRATEGIES FOR LIVING THE LIFE YOU WANT

734.747.8240
bradmikusko.com

The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal has been published three times a year since 1995. Copyright © Crazy Wisdom, Inc. — December 2011. No parts of this publication may be reproduced for any reason without the express written approval of the publisher. There is a token fee charged if you would like to use an article in this publication on your website, so make sure to contact us first. Back issues of this publication are available, for $8 per issue, and many interviews and articles from back issues are available on our website's archive.

Crazy Wisdom Bookstore was founded in 1982. It has been owned since 1989 by Crazy Wisdom, Inc., which consists of Bill Zirinsky and Ruth Schekter, husband-and-wife.

Publisher/Editor
Bill Zirinsky

Design and Production
Design/Production Editor: Carol Karr
Calendar Design/Production Editor: Molly Nuzzo
Front Cover Design: Carol Karr
Calendar Cover Design: Molly Nuzzo

Calendar
Calendar Editor: Sarah Newland
Asst. Calendar Editor: Martha Rhodes

Advertising Sales Manager
Rory Russell

Editorial
Assistant Managing Editor: Maureen McMahon
Associate Editor: Amy Garber

Photography
Senior Photographer: Linda Lawson
Susan Ayer, Dwight Cendrowski, John Fredericks, Doug Russell, Joni Strickfaden, Rachael Waring

Artwork
Terri Myers
Sara Van Zandt

Writers
Anne Duffy, Jen Eberbach, John Fredericks, Bronwen Gates, Richard Gull, Lynda Gronlund, Michelle Helms, Karen Foulke Larson, Jeanne Mackey, Sarah Newland, Rachel Pastiva, Karl Pohrt, Sarah Rigg, Mary Runser, Sandor Slomovits, Karen L. Totten

Distribution: Paul Stehle tranquil being LLC

healing arts center

Infrared Sauna • Massage Therapy • Bodywork

$99 'Blissful Body' SPECIAL
$135 VALUE

You'll be Transformed into a 'Blissful Body' with our NEW 90-minute Aromatherapy Massage Treatment featuring: Warm Herbal Compress, Hot Stones and Essential Oils.
Herbal compress has: lemongrass, ginger, plai, turmeric, bergamot and camphor

Schedule your appointment online or by phone. Offer ends April 30th, 2012
To receive your $99 value please use special code "blissful" when scheduling.

734.761.8753
www.tranquilbeing.com • FREE PARKING

320 Miller Ave. • Suite 185 • Ann Arbor MI 48103

Honoring All Spiritual Paths & Traditions...

Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth

Be a light unto the world

Come visit us in our new home!

704 Airport Blvd.
Ann Arbor 48108
(off S. State St., south of I-94 and Briarwood Mall)

734.327.0270
www.interfaithspirit.org

The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal

Ann Arbor's Holistic Magazine

Since 1982, Crazy Wisdom Bookstore has served as a center of information in the subjects of conscious living, holistic health, bodymind therapies, psychology, Buddhism, spiritual development and consciousness. The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal is intended to provide information about the terrific array of opportunities for persons seeking psychological and spiritual growth and physical well being.

In This Issue ~

What's New in the Community –
By Lynda Gronlund with Anne DuffyPage 12

Leaps of Faith: Tales of Newer Local Businesses
By John FredericksPage 20

Ann Arbor 350 –
Taking on Climate Change, One Challenge at a Time
By Monica PatelPage 23

Sustainable Health Column ~ Rebel with a Cause
By Abbe GrossmanPage 24

Occupy Yourself
By Bronwen Gates.....Page 25

Questions for Acupuncturist Cynthia Esseichick
Interviewed by Maureen McMahonPage 26

Allowing Your Best Self to Shine Through:
Marc Lerner on a Healthy Way to be Sick –
By Mary RunserPage 28

Drawing the Buddha's Sublime Form — Buddhist Artist Rob Davis on Internalizing the Image of the Buddha in Tantric Art
By Rob DavisPage 30

Siberian Buddhism, Siberian Shamanism and the Politics of Memory – Anthropologist/Filmmaker Anya Bernstein
Interview by Karl Pohrt.....Page 32

Sreyashi Dey, Dancing with Tradition –
Recreating Ancient Indian Spiritual Dances for Modern Audiences
By Sandor SlomovitsPage 35

Music Reviews by Sarah NewlandPage 39

Bearing Witness –
The Story of a Holocaust Survivor's Journey from Escape to Being a Forensic Psychiatrist Specializing in Homicide Interviewed by Richard GullPage 40

Bringing It All Back Home –
An Ann Arbor Songwriter, Musician, and Community-Builder Returns to the Small Town of Her Youth to Sing Her Life Song
By Jeanne MackeyStarts on Page 45

Three Ann Arbor Musicians — Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian, and Eric Fithian on Collaborating with Jeanne Mackey and What It Means to “Come Home”Starts on Page 48
Laz SlomovitsPage 48
Lori FithianPage 50
Eric FithianPage 51

All creatures great and small ~ Deconstructing “Dog Food”
By Alice LibersonPage 52

The Crazy Wisdom Kids SectionStarts on Page 54 Kids Book and Media Reviews by Sarah NewlandPage 54

Conscious Parenting –
Sweet Journeys and the Grocery Checkout
By Bernadette S. Kovach, Ph.D.Page 56

Music and Parenting ~ Somewhat Like A Symphony
By Gari SteinPage 57

Storyteller Laura Pershin Raynor –
A Gift to the Community
By Karen Foulke LarsonPage 60

The Power of Movement
By Karen Foulke LarsonPage 63

Barb Christensen, Breaking Barriers (and Boards) in Karate –
How One of the First Female Black Belts in Shimabukuro Karate
Went on to Lead Her Own Club in Ann Arbor Interviewed by Bill ZirinskyPage 66

Crazy Wisdom Kids in the Community
By Karen L. TottenPage 70

January through April — Events Calendar for KidsPage 73

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar SectionStarts on Page 75
The Calendar
Edited by Sarah Newland.....Page 76
Background Info on the TeachersPage 101

Birth Story Nights –
Honoring All Experiences from All Mothers
By Kate StroudPage 80

An Excerpt from Lorri Coburn's
Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You FreePage 87

What Makes an Oil Essential?
By Nancy HarknettPage 98

An Excerpt from Pat Fero's Sacred Marching Orders: Imagining the Solar Feminine at the Dawn of a New AgePage 102

An Excerpt from Lorna Brown's
Dragonfly Dialogues: Memories of an Awakening SpiritPage 106

The Business Card DirectoryStarts on Page 108

Crazy Wisdom has not investigated or evaluated the persons listed, so we are not in a position to make recommendations as to any or all of them, or to be responsible for the acts or omissions of anyone listed.

— This issue will be posted on our website as of January 1, 2012 —

Sreyashi Dey
Page 35

Dr. Emanuel Tanay
(and his wife, Sandra)
Page 40

Laura Pershin
Raynor
Page 60

— Cover Photo by Rachael Waring —

The deadline for free calendar submissions for the May thru August 2012 issue is Wednesday, March 21st, and the deadline for paid advertising is Monday, April 2nd. The issue will be distributed starting in the last week of April. 10,000 copies of The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal are printed, and they are available at our bookstore as well as at more than 180 other locations in and around Ann Arbor. Our phone number is 734-665-2757, and we're located at 114 South Main Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104. Our web address is: crazywisdom.net

EVENING MEDITATION & DIALOGUE

with
Brenda Morgan, PhD

This evening is set aside for those who are drawn to and/or wish to explore their connection with someone who has gone through a spiritual transformation. Others may come on a more regular basis, continuing to deepen their understanding of life and evolution, intensifying the ability to Respond while remaining active in the world. During these events, what Brenda shares arises from the intuitive and evolutionary needs of those who attend.

Thursday

January 12th
February 9th
April 12th
May 10th

7-8:15pm

LIVE BROADCAST

If you are unable to be there in person we offer a call-in number to listen to the broadcast live.

Call 734-494-0674 or email: brendamorganevents@gmail.com for more information.

Held at: Friends Meetinghouse
1420 Hill St. Ann Arbor, MI
Love Offering: $15

About Brenda...

Brenda has gone through a spiritual change in which her direct perception and experience of Reality has been permanently transformed. This transformation has been called many things in the history of our planet, but the core of all descriptions of it includes the awareness that everything arises from a Mystery, the Unknown and Infinite Feeling that all is One. Her transformation brings deeper perceptions of reality and a broader vision of life and service to the earth and humanity.

A 3 DAY MID WINTER RETREAT

HARMONIOUS LIVING: YOUR LIFE, YOUR TIME, YOUR CHOICE!

HELD AT MICHIGAN FRIENDS CENTER IN CHELSEA, MI.

March 16th, 17th & 18th 2012

For more information on upcoming events including retreats and public meditations please call or email:

• 734-494-0674 •

info@movedbythelight.com

For exploration online:

www.movedbythelight.com

design by saratea.com

There's a Reason Why We're Called...

MICHIGAN'S FASTEST GROWING COMPASSION CLUB

- Michigan's Finest Selections of Proposition 1 Medications and Edibles
- Aroma Therapy and Essential Oils
- Veteran, Disability & Senior Discounts
- Friendly & Knowledgeable Staff
- Health Supplements & Horoscope Charts
- New Members Get Free Gift
- Amazing Selection, Always 12 or More Strains
- Holistic Care & Massage

People's Choice Alternative Medicine
2245 W. Liberty St
Ann Arbor, MI 48103

734-369-8573

www.PeoplesChoiceOfAnnArbor.com

- Knowledgeable Staff
- Clones Available Daily
- Numerous Strains
- See Website for Options

734-369-8573

www.PeoplesChoiceOfAnnArbor.com

Center for Eating Disorders

Multidisciplinary specialized outpatient team treatment for anorexia, bulimia, binge eating disorder & related disorders children • adolescents • adults

- consultations and assessments
- medical management
- nutrition counseling and education
- individual psychotherapy
- support groups
- family based treatment

111 North First Street, Suite 2
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104
734.668.8585 www.center4ed.org info@center4ed.org

Illuminate Your Spirit

Psychic Tarot Card/Medium Readings
Reiki
Massage Therapy/Stone Therapy
Mention this ad and receive $10 off your first massage

(734) 259-8651
875 Wing St. Plymouth, MI 48170
www.illuminateyourspirit.com

We offer Spiritual Development Classes, Reiki Infused Jewelry, Candles and More*

Gelek Rinpoche and Jewel Heart Programs

TIBETAN BUDDHISM with GELEK RIMPOCHE, 10 - 11 am

Weekly Sunday free public talks by Gelek Rinpoche
Beginning January 1, 2012

A CONVERSATION WITH PHILIP GLASS

A public talk by world renowned performing composer Don't miss this unique opportunity at Jewel Heart!
Tuesday, January 17, 2012, 7 - 9 pm
$15 - $30 | registration@jewelheart.org or pay at the door

WEEK-LONG RETREAT WITH GELEK RIMPOCHE

Here in Ann Arbor, Saturday, February 25 - Sunday, March 4
Visit jewelheart.org/retreats/

LONG LIFE EMPOWERMENT WITH GELEK RIMPOCHE

Sunday, March 4, 10 a.m. - 12:30 pm, Free - Open to All

GLENN MULLIN glennmullin.com

TIBETAN BUDDHISM IN THE WEST: ENLIGHTENMENT ON MAIN STREET

Friday, February 3, 7 - 9pm

THE FIVE SIDES OF MAHAMUDRA TRAINING

Saturday, February 4, 10am - 5pm

Discover JEWEL HEART DIGITAL DHARMA - a vast resource of audio and video teachings by Gelek Rinpoche. jewelheart.org/digital-dharma/

1129 Oak Valley Drive | Ann Arbor, Michigan 48108 | 734.994.3387

To learn more about Jewel Heart programs and courses, visit jewelheart.org, call 734 994 3387 or write programs@jewelheart.org.

Barry Lipscomb

Achieving Our Potential, Consciously and Sustainably

- Mentoring Individuals
- Coaching Executives
- Consulting Organizations

Accessing a higher consciousness to step outside our ordinary, daily experience for individual and organizational transformation.

Individuals

- Healing With Meditation Groups
- Individual Sessions
- Executive Coaching

Organizations

- Meditation Wellness Program
- High Performance Team Development
- Strategic Consulting

For More Information

917-587-3775 • Barry@BarryLipscomb.com
Visit My Website for a Complimentary Meditation Recording

www.BarryLipscomb.com

NATUROPATHIC School of the Healing Arts

Ann Arbor ~ A State Licensed School

Traditional Naturopathy (ND) Integrated Massage Therapy/Energy Medicine, AND Master Herbalist Diploma Programs

Clinical Services by appointment: 734-769-7794
7920 Jackson Road, Ann Arbor 48103

For Early Spring: Medicinal Herbal Studies see gaiaherbalstudies.net

Web:
naturopathicschoolofannarbor.net

Shopping Amazon?

ShopCrazyWisdom.com

Support your local economy when you ShopCrazyWisdom.com for your online book needs, and get valuable discounts, too!*

Shop your favorite local independent bookstore and tea room from the comfort of your own home. Browse New Releases, Recommended Titles and Staff Picks, or search through 2.6 million books and e-books in our extensive online inventory* for delivery straight to your door.

Make your money matter! When you ShopCrazyWisdom.com, you support a business that:

- Provides knowledgeable and compassionate one-on-one service
- Sells thoughtful and intentional gifts, including local, sustainable and fair trade items
- Creates community and connection with its warm and relaxing atmosphere
- Supports authors, local music, and health and healing practitioners
- Contributes to our vibrant downtown shopping district
- Gives back to our community through donations and sponsorship of local events

* Crazy Wisdom has teamed up with IndieCommerce, a program developed by the American Booksellers Association in association with Google and Ingram (the largest book wholesaler in the country). The program was designed to help level the playing field for independent bookstores.

ShopCrazyWisdom.com and put your money towards something you believe in!

Crazy Wisdom Bookstore and Tea Room
114 S. Main Street • Ann Arbor • 734.665.2757

Are You in Distress?

- Past traumas, including:
 - ❖ Losses of all kinds
 - ❖ Injuries
 - ❖ Abuse and neglect
 - ❖ Abandonment
- Difficult relationships
- Low self-esteem
- Executive burn-out

Do You Desire?

- Satisfying personal growth
- Self discovery
- Ability enhancement

Contact Me

Experience a person-centered, empowering method that is all about fulfilling your needs and desires.

Over 40 years of experience & success
Marian Volkman
 Ability Enhancement Services
 marian@tir.org

Spring Vipassana Basics Retreat

March 16 – 18
 Rudolf Steiner House
 Ann Arbor, MI
 First-time, beginners, basics

DSC Summer 2012 Retreat

June 16 – 18 or June 16 – 22
 Barbara Brodsky, John Orr and Aaron
 Emrich Center – Brighton, MI
 All levels

online registration/information
DeepSpring.org

Meditation • Spiritual Inquiry
 Silent Retreats
 Weekly Sittings
 Classes and Workshops
 Beginner/Continuing/Advanced

3003 Washtenaw, Suite 2
 Ann Arbor, MI 48104
 734.477.5848

Winter 2011-2012
Climate Pledge

How it works: Fill out the form below -- select at least 2 actions -- and then scan/copy/print/cut out this pledge and send it to:

annarbor350@ecocenter.org
 Ann Arbor 350 / Ecology Center
 339 E. Liberty St, Suite 300
 Ann Arbor, MI 48104

I, _____, commit to do the following _____ to mitigate my climate impact for the 350 Climate Pledge.

Signature: _____ Contact Info: _____

- Home
 - Add eco-friendly insulation to walls & attic
 - Install a low-flow showerhead
 - Go the extra mile: Install faucet aerators too!
 - Wash laundry in cold water, with a full load
 - Use LED holiday lights

- Transport
 - Don't let vehicle(s) idle (it's the law!)
 - Replace 1 vehicle commute by walking or biking
 - Inflate tires once a month

- Food
 - Compost your food scraps
 - Go vegan for just 1 meal per week
 - BYO grocery bag
 - Eat 1 local meal per week

Discover the CO₂ savings at:
aa350.org

STUDIO 44 HAIR DESIGN

248-767-4437

STUDIO44HAIRDESIGN@GMAIL.COM

- Enjoy personalized designs. Textured and Precision Haircuts. Multi-dimensional Color!
- Relax in a peaceful ambience over looking the city!
- First time clients receive complimentary Conditioning and Scalp Massage!

BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

Visit and MasterCard

202 E. Washington, Suite 710, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104

LOSE YOUR PAIN

not Your Motion.

Physical, Occupational & Massage Therapy specializing in Myofascial Release. www.healing-in-motion.com • 734-913-4816

DISCOVER YOURSELF

What if...?

Your gut instincts are right
 You can balance your energy
 Your body can heal itself

Polarity Therapy Spring Classes

Level I - Learn your amazing healing potential
 8 Saturdays starting March 3, Livonia

Level III - Develop therapeutic skills
 4 weekends starting March 10-11, Hamburg

Call (313) 647-0038 or visit polaritycenter.com for info or to register online

A healing and learning community in southeast Michigan for more than 25 years. Approved NCBTMB continuing education provider.

What's New in the Community

By Lynda Gronlund with Anne Duffy

This ongoing column features upcoming events within Ann Arbor/Washtenaw County and surrounding areas' Body/Mind/Spirit communities, new (during the past year or two) practitioners and holistic businesses, new books written by local/regional authors, new classes, as well as new offerings by established practitioners and holistic businesses.

Compounding Pharmacies

Most of us have needed a prescription drug in our lives; some of us take medication every day. So what happens if we're allergic to something in the pill we need? What if a child can't swallow a pill? What if someone needs a non-standard dose of a medicine? What if a dog won't take its medicine because it doesn't like the taste? All of these problems and more are solved by compounding pharmacies.

Compounding is the practice of mixing drugs to fit the specific needs of individual patients. Many pharmacies provide compounding to an extent, but a few specialize in the practice. The Pharmacy Compounding Accreditation Board (PCAB) certifies compounding pharmacies by reviewing their standards for quality of staff, policies, procedures, documentation, and handling of problems. There are currently only five accredited compounding pharmacies in Michigan; Clark Professional Pharmacy in Ypsilanti and Specialty Medicine Compounding Pharmacy in South Lyon are two. Pharmacy Solutions in Ann Arbor is working toward this accreditation and expects to receive it by mid-2012.

Nathan Worthing, owner of Clark Professional Pharmacy

Compounding is the practice of mixing drugs to fit the specific needs of individual patients. Many pharmacies provide compounding to an extent, but a few specialize in the practice.

Nathan Worthing, owner of Clark Professional Pharmacy, has expanded his compounding pharmacy to include nutritional counseling with an emphasis on sickness prevention using medicinal foods. He recently became a Certified First Line Therapist through Metagenics nutritional line, which trains practitioners about early detection of and supplement support for diabetes mellitus, metabolic syndrome, and inflammatory disorders. In addition, the pharmacy is now accepting most insurance plans.

See article on page 17.

Sandy Pierani, occupational therapist and fitness instructor

Live drumming makes Sandy Pierani's World Dance Workout classes at the Ann Arbor Senior Center unique among fitness dance classes.

"I am interested in talking to patients about food being medicine and how to eat in such a manner to select food choices to reduce medication use," said Worthing, who explains that even simple foods like wheat, which is very pro-inflammatory, should be eliminated to improve inflammatory conditions and reduce the use of drugs.

Clark Professional Pharmacy has been around since 1980 and the original female pharmacist, Olya Lash, was holistic. Back then the pharmacy existed on referrals alone and wasn't widely known. Nathan Worthing began working and training with Lash in 1999 and eventually purchased the pharmacy from her in 2008 along with another pharmacist, Ahd Salamen. Worthing is the managing partner.

"Veterinary and fertility medications were the main focus in the 1980s and '90s. That eventually morphed into women's health in general, natural hormone balancing, and then again into nutritional compounding, because many women had nutritional needs that were not being met by pharmaceutical industry products," said Worthing, who is a Certified Menopause Practitioner and Certified Nutritionist.

"The biggest thing that makes Clark Pharmacy different from traditional pharmacies is me. I actually care about the people that I see. I want to see them do well and I go out of my way to make sure things are done correctly and spend extra money and effort to train my lab staff appropriately," said Worthing. "It's a relationship built business. I have close relationships with the prescribers and also with the patients."

As a Menopause Practitioner, Worthing works with women to discuss their options for hormone therapies, reviews the studies available about the treatments, and helps them come up with solid choices for their individual situations. He stresses that women on hormone therapy need to take fish oil, magnesium, and folic acid because it makes hormone therapy safer and they should watch what food triggers they may have and how other drug therapies are affecting them.

The pharmacy also makes many different preparations for the autistic population that help modulate behavior and are allergen-free drugs because most of the children are on very restricted diets.

Worthing is available for private consultations and is always available to do lectures for particular groups. For more information, call 734-434-7333, email clarkpharmacy@tds.net, or visit the website at www.clarkpropharmacy.com.

See article on page 13.

Kenny Walkup, owner and compounding pharmacist at Specialty Medicine Compounding Pharmacy. It is a full-service compounding pharmacy and offers high-quality supplements in addition to prescription drugs.

Sahar and Ahab Swidan are the sister and brother team of compounding pharmacists who head Pharmacy Solutions in Ann Arbor. Ms. Swidan opened the pharmacy in 2001 after working at Chelsea Hospital.

Sahar Swidan of Pharmacy Solutions in Ann Arbor

“Compounding is in a way a return to the old-fashioned pharmacy, in which every drug was mixed for the individual patient to the doctor’s specifications.” – Ahab Swidan of Pharmacy Solutions in Ann Arbor

The pharmacy is a full-service compounding pharmacy, offering all of the products compounding pharmacies are known for: pain gels, hormone replacement therapies, natural thyroid hormones, allergen-free medications, flavored medications for children, and pharmacy-grade supplements. Mr. Swidan says that what sets Pharmacy Solutions apart is the level to which each patient is educated in their own care, “sometimes more than they want!” He says it is important to him to counsel each patient to make sure they are taking the correct dose in the correct way to achieve the best therapeutic effect. The pharmacists also help patients coordinate their care; for example, if the patient has several physicians, the pharmacists will make sure communication is happening so there are no harmful drug interactions. Mr. Swidan says that compounding is in a way a return to the old-fashioned pharmacy, in which every drug was mixed for the individual patient to the doctor’s specifications.

Pharmacy Solutions accepts many insurance plans and expects to receive the PCAB accreditation within the next year. Their website is www.pharmacysolutionsonline.com. They can be reached at ederm@pharmacysolutionsonline.com or at 734-821-8000.

Kenny Walkup, owner and compounding pharmacist at Specialty Medicine Compounding Pharmacy in South Lyon, has been compounding for 12 years. He says he “really wanted to practice pharmacy that had a true impact on each and every patient,” and was more able to fulfill that desire with compounding than with standard pharmacy.

He gave me a tour of the facility, including a sterile products lab where they can make injections, IV therapies, eye drops, and ear drops. I watched a technician making capsules in a 100-capsule batch. Another technician was making dog biscuits. Walkup says that 30-40 percent of Specialty Medicine’s business comes from specialized animal medication. They have made medicine for dogs, cats, gerbils, hamsters, rabbits, ducks, fish, and birds. He says that taste is one of the most important aspects of medicine for dogs and cats who will not take the medicine if they don’t like it. The pharmacy offers more than ten different flavors “from apple to bacon to cheese; whatever the animal likes to eat.”

Another option for animals and for people is a topical gel that can be rubbed on thin skin, such as inside the wrist for a person or in the ears for a cat. Walkup described several uses for these gels, from pain management for hospice patients to nausea relief for pregnant women. He says that gels are generally very well-tolerated and have fewer side effects than pills that must be ingested; they are also easier on patients who may have trouble swallowing pills.

Specialty Medicine is a full-service compounding pharmacy and offers high-quality supplements in addition to prescription drugs. Walkup is happy to provide counseling about supplements that may help counteract the depletion of nutrients by some prescription drugs. You can find out more at www.specialty-medicine.com. Mr. Walkup can be reached at 248-446-2643 or contact@specialty-medicine.com.

In May of 2011, esthetician Jessica Elkins changed the name of her business, Ananeo Skin Care, to Jessica’s Skin & Body Apothecary. The name change reflects a change in the business model, which will focus increasingly on Elkins’ own product lines. The business, currently located in an inviting private room inside the A2 Yoga building, began by offering facials and waxing, then added mineral cosmetics. Now the Apothecary offers hand-blended body and perfume oils for a variety of purposes.

This fall Elkins introduced a body oil line for winter to add to her summer line launched in May 2011. The winter oils are designed for the dryer winter season with marula and sesame oils to penetrate and balance the moisture level in skin. Essential oils are added for different aromatherapy and other benefits and make the oils smell great. For those who prefer unscented oil or like to use Elkin’s perfume oil line in addition to the body oils, pure body oils such as Jojoba are available. Oils can also be custom blended for particular scents, aromatherapy, or skin benefits, and are pure, without preservatives or other additives. Elkins emphasizes that the body oils are best used right after bathing, within 3-5 minutes after toweling off, for best absorption. She also says that they are not for the face, which has a very different chemistry than the rest of the body.

According to Elkins, “aromatherapy can be therapeutic to the body or to the mind.” One of her more innovative products is an inhaler that contains seven essential oils to clear the sinuses. She also offers “sinus steam facials” during the cold and flu season, which combine a cleansing facial with aromatherapy for sinus relief.

Elkins says that her philosophy for skincare is “hydration, hydration, hydration.” She explains that many people have dry skin not from lack of water, but from an imbalance of water and oil in the skin. Even acne can be caused by or contributed to by a water/oil imbalance. Elkins says that, as an esthetician, part of her job is to help clients reestablish this moisture balance by choosing the right products. She says that the biochemistry of the products is very important. A product can contain a beneficial ingredient such as green tea, but if the product is not correctly formulated the ingredient will not be absorbed by the skin. Personalized, professional skincare recommendations are what Elkins says inspired her to name her business an “apothecary,” which she feels evokes the idea of trust that the esthetician is a professional who will recommend the best skincare regimen for each person. “We’re not here to sell, we’re here to take care of our clients,” she says.

Jessica Elkins of Jessica’s Skin & Body Apothecary

Jessica’s Skin & Body Apothecary is currently offering a complimentary 15-minute skincare or aromatherapy consultation. If you would like to get in touch with them, you can call 734-604-5971, email contact@jessicasapothecary.com or book an appointment online at www.jessicasapothecary.com.

New Offerings by Established Practitioners and Businesses

Christine Fodor, wellness practitioner and Reiki master of Sheenawah Freespirit Enterprises, has expanded with a new look, location, and website called Transformational Health and Wellness: Body Mind Spirit Therapies and Support Services. “I have many certifications and I have been trained in many modalities, but what has changed in the last two years is that I have focused more on doing all sessions intuitively rather than only focusing on a trained modality, which is what I prefer to do anyway. There will be a little bit of Reiki, cranial sacral therapy, past lives, angel cards, etheric surgery or whatever shows up for that person. Sometimes people are so stressed out, we really need to go into a meditation and relaxation techniques to allow for deeper healing work and emotional releases,” said Fodor, whose business is based in Ypsilanti.

Fodor was trained as a Certified Nursing Assistant in summer 2010 and is a Physical Therapy Assistant Student graduating in spring of 2012. Recently she said there has been a surge in requests for the seven session emotional and mental subconscious re-patterning therapy, which enables people to let go of things that have them stuck. “It’s like they are hitting a wall and there is something there that is keeping them from expanding more and moving forward through an issue,” said Fodor. She explained that just clearing out some cellular energy helps people let go of those things.

Christine Fodor of Sheenawah Freespirit Enterprises offers the unique Atlantean Crystal Healing Grid, a handmade copper grid made with sacred geometry that serves as a conduit for higher vibration crystal therapy.

Fodor offers the unique Atlantean Crystal Healing Grid, a handmade copper grid made with sacred geometry that serves as a conduit for higher vibration crystal therapy. The grid connects copper handles containing crushed crystals that act as jumper cables to enhance the healing to those who lay on it. Another crystal therapy that Fodor has available is the BioMat, which is a mat that clients lie on that has far-infrared heat and negative ions, and is also filled with amethyst crystals. Both these gadgets are free to use if someone books an appointment with Fodor.

Fodor, who has been running meditations for years, is very skilled and engaging as she takes people on journeys to faraway lands for healing. She is now offering a new meditation group in Ypsilanti that will focus on participants’ interests. Fodor is available for different parties

Bio Energy Medical Center

TREATING ILLNESS AT ITS SOURCE!

- Herbal Medicine
- Homeopathy
- Acupuncture
- Colonics
- Massage
- Darkfield
- Ear Coning
- Thermamassage Energy Bed
- Far Infrared Sauna
- Detox Footbath
- IV Therapy
- Bio Identical Hormones

Visit Our New Location
 A full service holistic center specializing in Alternative and Complementary Medicine since 1988

We specialize in:
 Hormone imbalances | Women's Health | Infertility | Autism
 Weight Issues | Allergies | Metal Toxicity | Lyme Disease
 Irritable Bowel | Chronic Fatigue | Pain | Asthma
 ADD/ADHD | And Many Others

James R. Neuenschwander M.D.
 734 | 995 | 3200
 3131 Professional Dr., Ann Arbor
www.bioenergymedicalcenter.com

GYROTONIC®
 &
 Pilates
 &
 Massage

Providing a personalized experience

202 E. Washington, Suite 311
 Downtown Ann Arbor - We validate parking! www.WillowWellnessStudio.com
 734.274.9482

Specialty Medicine Compounding Pharmacy

Customized medications to meet individual patient needs

We Specialize in Custom Therapies for:

- Bio Identical Hormone Replacement
- Allergies to Preservatives/Dyes/Lactose
- Pain Management
- Metal Toxicity
- Autism
- Children
- Pets

Accredited by the Pharmacy Compounding Accreditation Board

Kenny Walkup, RPh Leslie Sansovich, RPh
Specialty Medicine Compounding Pharmacy
 116 N Lafayette, Ste B South Lyon, MI 48178
 Phone: 248-446-2643 Fax: 248-486-1906
 Email: compounders@specialty-medicine.com www.specialty-medicine.com

Look for us in new places!

In response to requests from our readers and advertisers, we have increased the circulation of The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal, and increased our distribution points, by 80% in the last 2 years.

And check out our digital version, online at crazywisdom.net.
 (The direct link is <http://cwonline.squarespace.com/journal-article-archive/>)

The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal — Deep Roots. Serving and celebrating the body/mind/spirit community in southeastern Michigan for 17 years. Editorial integrity. Depth of coverage. Local focus. Local writers, photographers, and illustrators. Here to stay.

What's New in the Community

Continued from page 13

and groups to do the meditations and/or angel card readings. She specializes in a "three-month forecast report," where she uses multiple decks to forecast themes like career, love, and money. "I do a progression of where you are and where you are going and what you need to work on," said Fodor.

In addition, Sheenawah Freespirit Enterprises also offers LifeWave acupuncture point stimulating patches and homeopathic medicine at www.lifewave.com/sheenawah. For more information, please visit www.transformationalhealthandwellness.com, email sheenawah@yahoo.com, or call 248-444-7408.

New Books by Area Authors

Linda Diane Feldt, local author, holistic healthcare practitioner, herbalist, cranio-sacral therapist and long time Crazy Wisdom Community Journal contributor, is releasing three new books online in a serial format throughout 2012. Each book is being published in 52 sections, once weekly. At the end of the subscription year, the complete books will be available in print or e-book format.

The first book, available for subscription beginning in October 2011, is titled Cultivate Curiosity and Anticipate Miracles: Observations of Life. Feldt describes this book as a group of short, true stories about "life, love, death, dogs, nature, music and more," taken from her own life experience. She offers these stories to provide humor, insight, and inspiration.

Linda Diane Feldt, local author, holistic healthcare practitioner, and teacher, is releasing three new books online in a serial format throughout 2012.

The second book is available for subscription beginning in November 2011 and is called Integrating Ethics: Resources for Integrative and Alternative Healthcare. Feldt draws on thirty years of experience in the integrative and alternative healthcare field. She hopes this book will provide a platform for thoughtful conversation about ethics among alternative healthcare practitioners and will help build bridges between traditional and alternative medicine.

The third book is called Wildcrafting Recipes and will be available beginning in January 2012. A new healthy, vegetarian recipe will be sent for each week of the year with descriptions of how to obtain and use ingredients from the outdoors.

To find out more and to subscribe to any of the books, visit www.writing.lindadianefeldt.com or email Ms. Feldt at writing@lindadianefeldt.com. She can be reached by phone at 734-662-4902.

Local author Elaine K. Williams published The Sacred Work of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren in September 2011. The book addresses the many issues faced by an increasing number of families in the United States; according to Williams, 1 in 10 children is raised by a grandparent or relative other than their mother or father.

Williams was inspired to write the book during a trip to Washington, DC, when she stumbled upon then-Senator Hillary Clinton addressing a crowd of hundreds of grandparents raising their grandchildren. For some of these grandparents, Hurricane Katrina had displaced their adult children; others were raising their grandchildren for a variety of other reasons. Prior to this experience, she says she had no idea that this trend was so widespread. Touched by their plight and by the kindness she witnessed in this group of grandparents, she became determined to find out more. Since that time, Williams' own sister has become a parenting grandparent.

While writing the book, Williams spoke to more than 60 families in 11 states. She found that many circumstances lead to adult children being unable to parent their children, including mental health problems, alienation, drug use, criminal activity, and social and emotional issues. Grandparents were not only having to deal with "stepping up to do something that's not in the cycle of life as we know it" by raising their grandchildren, but were also coping with the loss of their adult children or the sorrow of their crippling problems. Williams said she was unable to find any book that addressed the psycho-social needs and problems of these grandparents and their grandchildren, and only a few resources were available online. She hopes that her book will serve as a resource to parenting grandparents, their grandchildren, and professionals who support these families, including teachers and social workers.

Elaine K. Williams will be talking about her book at Crazy Wisdom on Sunday, January 8 at 2:00 p.m. The Sacred Work of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren can be purchased at the author's website, www.elainekwilliams.com. The author can be reached at 248-396-5735 or at elainekwilliams@aol.com.

Elaine K. Williams, author of The Sacred Work of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren, hopes her book will be a resource to parenting grandparents, their grandchildren, and professionals who support these families, including teachers and social workers.

Carla Wilson, M.S.W., author of What if I'm Right?, will be talking about her book at Crazy Wisdom on Saturday April 21 from 2:00-4:30 p.m. What if I'm Right? was published in March of 2011. The book draws on Wilson's 20 years of experience as a correctional officer in Washtenaw County and addresses incarceration and addiction. For those with an incarcerated or addicted loved one, it is a resource in understanding what their loved one is going through and why they may act the way they do. For the incarcerated and addicted, Wilson says that it is a guide to "recognizing their own brilliance and finding the way out of their personal storm." She hopes that the book will "help break the stigma of addiction and incarceration and bring people hope."

Carla Wilson

What if I'm Right? can be purchased at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. It is also available as an eBook for the Kindle or Nook. You can contact Carla Wilson at 734-337-2023 or cwilson@connectionprinciple.com. More information is available at www.connectionprinciple.com.

Continued on page 16

Robin Connell, M.Ed, F.H.H.C

What's New in the Community

Continued from page 15

Dr. Joanne Karpinen

See article on this page

Upcoming Events

Susana Stoica is a local author and energy healer. On March 10, 2012, from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom, she will offer an Introduction to Alternative Healing Methods. Stoica has been teaching this topic to medical students at the University of Michigan for three years.

Trained as a computer engineer, Stoica has always had an intuitive gift for healing, which she began to use with her family. She says that when they were sick, "I had a feeling of what I had to do to make them well." Then, in 1982, she experienced a dramatic spontaneous healing event: she touched a woman who was very sick and the woman was healed. This both terrified and intrigued her, and with a researcher's determination she began to study as many forms of alternative healing as she could find. At first, she was afraid to touch anyone, worrying that if she could make someone well, perhaps she could make them ill by accident! In the years following, Stoica's son was diagnosed with Cushing's disease, which is caused by a pituitary tumor. Deciding she had to help him, Stoica began trying to heal her son. His doctor found him to be much improved and he eventually recovered completely without medical intervention. The doctor was baffled; finally Stoica told him what she had done. The doctor recognized the value of her gift and began sending very sick patients to her in 1985.

On March 10, 2012, Susana Stoica is giving a seminar, Introduction to Alternative Healing Methods, for doctors, nurses, medical students, and anyone who would like to learn about alternative medicine as a supplement to traditional medicine.

In 2000, Stoica fell on some ice and sustained a brain injury to her frontal lobe. She has since traveled a long and hard road to recovery, describing the time after the fall as "garbled." She had difficulty communicating and stopped her healing practice for a time. Eventually, she began to attempt healing again and says that, even though the brain injury was hindering her in some ways, it had actually increased her intuition, which she says was "working overtime." Because of this she was able to continue her healing practice, which she has continued to do, while also continuing to research and learn about alternative healing of all kinds.

Stoica describes her upcoming seminar as "a playful experiential presentation of different alternatives." Topics covered include energy healing, long-distance healing, muscle testing, allergy testing and elimination, hypnotherapy and its use in surgical recovery and healing emotional trauma, meditation, hatha yoga, qi gong, reflexology, polarity healing and more. Students will learn which therapies are useful for what desired result, how to find reputable practitioners and what to read next for more information on the different modalities. Stoica says that the seminar will be of interest to doctors, nurses, medical students, and anyone who would like to learn about alternative medicine as a supplement to traditional medicine.

The seminar includes a copy of Stoica's book, Healing With a Loving Heart. For more information, visit her website at www.stoica.com. To inquire and register for the seminar, contact Ms. Stoica at 248-895-5784 or Susana@Stoica.com.

Michele Bond of Yoga House will be hosting a weekend with well-known yoga star and creator of the DVD series Yoga to the Rescue Desirée Rumbaugh on March 31-April 1, 2012. The retreat will be held at the Eagle Crest Marriot Resort in Ypsilanti, with a block of rooms available at discounted rates for participants who wish to stay for the entire event. Individuals will also be able to register for single classes. According to Bond, beginners, experienced practitioners, and instructors alike will find the weekend valuable. She says "these classes are great for anyone who would like to learn simple yogic solutions for aches and pains, injuries, and even chronic pain." Rumbaugh's style is Anusara Yoga, which Bond describes as "based on the science of biomechanics...spiritually uplifting, heart centered, fostering love and happiness."

Michele Bond of Yoga House will be hosting a weekend with well-known yoga star and creator of the DVD series Yoga to the Rescue Desirée Rumbaugh on March 31-April 1, 2012.

For updates, schedule, and registration information, visit www.yogahouseannarbor.com/html/special_events.html. You can contact Michele Bond with questions at 734-358-8546 or michele@yogahouseannarbor.com.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 14 and 15, from 9:00-5:00 p.m., award-winning screenwriter, writing professor and former Michigan resident Bonnie Garvin will offer a workshop for aspiring screenwriters in Ann Arbor. "Everybody's a writer," Garvin says. "We all have our own stories and our own way of telling them." This intensive workshop is designed to help participants begin the process of writing for the screen in a structured way with help and guidance from someone who has been through it and knows how to get the desired results. "Nothing is worse than that blank computer screen," says Garvin, who mentioned many people come home after writing workshops and fail to make any progress on their projects. Her workshops get people to begin writing on the very first day, creating momentum to carry them forward.

Garvin has held many writing workshops, but for the first time she will be including special instruction and exercises in adaptation. She points out that a huge percentage of successful screenplays are based on existing stories — from the writer's life, from classic tales, or from news items. She will guide participants in harvesting these ideas and weaving them into material that is fresh and new.

Garvin says that her workshops can help anyone with an interest in writing — from beginners to those experienced in the process. "You keep learning the craft the more you do it," she says, and adds that she is constantly learning from her students as they learn from her. She says that, of course, she can't guarantee anyone a career in the film industry, which she calls "the most competitive thing in the world," but emphasizes that the first step to a career is developing "really strong material" and confidence in one's own work.

The workshop location will be announced in January. For updates and more information, head to www.fromideatoscript.com. Bonnie Garvin can be reached by email at bonnie@ideatoscript.com or by phone at 323-656-6390.

Dr. Joanne Karpinen, licensed psychologist and certified energy psychologist, will hold an esoteric healing seminar on April 26-29, 2012. This seminar is Part One in a series of workshops offered by the Integrated Network of Esoteric Healing (INEH), through which Karpinen is one of seventy certified instructors worldwide. The course is titled An Introduction to Esoteric Healing and no experience is required to attend. This four-day course will introduce students to the body's energy field and chakras and how to perceive imbalances and disruptions in the energy field that affect physical, mental, and emotional health. Karpinen explains that because of the "non-locality of the mind," the energy field can be sensed and worked on without touching the body, and even at long distances (though always with the permission of the person being worked on). The INEH curriculum, according to Karpinen, is "very practical and systematic." She says it describes a "blueprint in the energy field that reflects what is happening in the tissue." Energy healing as taught by the INEH is used "to unblock the energy that has become stuck or somehow out of alignment or disrupted." As the energy field reflects the tissues and structures of the body, the body responds to the energy and can be healed through healing the energy field. Karpinen states "the soul is the healer of the form."

Dr. Joanne Karpinen will hold a four-day esoteric healing seminar to introduce students to the body's energy field and chakras and how to perceive imbalances and disruptions in the energy field that affect physical, mental, and emotional health.

Classes also discuss the evolution of consciousness. Meditation, mindfulness, and intention are taught as paths toward self and planetary healing. Karpinen explains that “the Earth is in the process of becoming a sacred planet. In healing ourselves, we are also healing the planet.”

Completing this introductory seminar will give participants tools and a treatment protocol that they can begin to use on themselves, loved ones, and even pets, immediately.

The seminar location is to be decided. For updates and to register, visit www.integratedhealingjourneys.com. Dr. Karpinen can be contacted at 517-347-4618 or drkarpinen@aol.com.

New Classes

Angela Jamison is a teacher of Ashtanga Yoga who moved to Ann Arbor from Los Angeles with her husband in 2009. Her husband came for a post-doctorate position with the University of Michigan and she found herself with a position in the Sociology Department as a visiting scholar. She believed that she and her husband would want to leave Michigan for warmer climates as soon as possible, but they found themselves falling in love with Ann Arbor and decided to make it their home. Having begun practicing yoga in LA, Jamison spent the winters of 2009 and 2010 in India studying at the Ashtanga Yoga Institute in Mysore. The director, R. Sharath Jois, asked her to begin teaching the practice each morning. At first she felt torn — this would mean giving up her academic career. After some thought, Jamison says, “In truth, I had done fifteen thousand hours of practice and two apprenticeships to train for this step, and just needed to take the leap.” She left her job at the University and now teaches Ashtanga Yoga full-time.

Angela Jamison, Ashtanga Yoga instructor, left her job at the University and now teaches Ashtanga Yoga full-time. Jamison says, “In truth, I had done fifteen thousand hours of practice and two apprenticeships to train for this step, and just needed to take the leap.”

Jamison first became involved in yoga ten years ago, as part of her recovery from a major car accident. “The surgeon told me to take responsibility for my own body and start taking yoga,” she says, laughing. She says the practice she found was very different from the “typical LA yoga scene.” The practice is done early in the morning, in silence. In the beginning, she says she felt “kinesthetically unintelligent, as a typical academic.” But as she began to practice daily, she found it to be exactly what she was looking for; “the ultimate personal practice,” a way to care for herself physically, mentally, and spiritually.

Since that time, Jamison has practiced 6 days a week continuously and considers herself “an experiment of the method” and a testament to what Ashtanga Yoga can do for a person physically and mentally. The practice, she says, works for every type of person. In her students she looks for sincerity and discipline. Though she teaches a beginner’s class once weekly at the Phoenix Center, she accepts only one new student into her daily morning classes each month, devoting much of her teaching energy toward that person so that they can “receive focused instruction and... enjoy the rhythmic, focused vibe of more experienced practitioners.” Each person has a personalized practice that they memorize, so while the class silently practices together, everyone is not doing the same thing. Part of her method, Jamison explains, is to “let [her students] learn from themselves and...do the work they need to do.” She calls the practice “difficult but peaceful,” and says it is a “fast track to developing concentration, as there is so much to focus on physically.”

In addition to the weekly beginner’s class and daily morning classes, Jamison teaches 10 private sessions weekly in her home studio on the Old West Side of Ann Arbor. The beginner class is held on Thursdays from 7:00-8:15 a.m. at the Phoenix Center at 220 S. Main St. You can find out more on her website, www.ashtangaannarbor.com. She can be reached by email at annarborashtanga@gmail.com and by phone at 310-409-5108.

Sandy Pierani, occupational therapist and fitness instructor, is now offering her self-designed World Dance Workout classes at the Ann Arbor Senior Center at 1320 Baldwin Rd. The classes feature live drummers and mixes West African dance with other dance movements from around the world. According to Pierani, movement in the class is nonstop and uses the whole body “from the top of your head down to your toes,” creating a rhythmic and energetic experience that brings mind, body, and spirit together. Participants get a great workout, but they also get to experience “healing from the inside out.” Pierani explains, “when you’re moving, gyrating, and shaking, you’re also detoxifying, releasing lots of toxic stuff that you might not even realize, physical and emotional, down to the cellular level.”

Live drumming makes this class unique among fitness dance classes. The drummers respond to the instruction and pace of the dancing, collaborating with the instructor and the dancers for a dynamic experience. The class winds down with light strength training, abdominal work, and stretching for a complete workout. Pierani emphasizes that the workout is appropriate for “all fitness levels, all shapes and sizes, all ethnic groups, whether you’ve been exercising for ten years or two weeks.” Current attendees range in age from 18 to late 60s and each person is challenged at his or her own level. Hi, medium and low-impact movements are shown and the participant can choose which to do based on individual needs and preferences.

Classes are offered in 6-week sessions and currently meet on Sundays from 6:30-7:30 p.m. Scholarships are offered for those who would otherwise not be able to attend. Pierani also teaches Zumba and will begin teaching Pilates in January through Ann Arbor Rec & Ed. Get class schedule updates at www.worlddanceworkout.net or inquire at sandy@worlddanceworkout.net or 248-651-4439.

Pam and Andy Krupp’s Just Love “mindfulness based online clothing store” donates a portion of the proceeds from sales to several charities, including Cheerful Givers, Spread the Bread, Habitat for Humanity, and Free the Children.

New Practitioners & Businesses

Pam and Andy Krupp, husband and wife teachers and owners of Just Love, a “mindfulness based online clothing store,” have revamped their store’s website and are working on the next phase of their business. Just Love offers t-shirts and other items such as mugs and bumper stickers featuring inspiring quotes from leaders like Gandhi, Mother Theresa, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. A portion of the proceeds from sales at Just Love support several charities. Pam Krupp says that, originally, she and her husband were considering starting their own non-profit organization, but realized that there were many charities already up and running that had missions that resonated with them. They instead decided to start a business that supported some of those organizations, while at the same time reminding people of the positive aspects of humanity. Pam says that “the world is ready for some love.” She says that she often hears from customers who have given their Just Love shirts away to others who admired them; “it’s not about the shirt,” she says, “it’s about the message.” The Krupps look for small charities whose leaders are extremely passionate about their mission. That list currently includes Cheerful Givers, Spread the Bread, Habitat for Humanity, Free the Children, and several others.

Just Love primarily operates online but also stocks shirts in a few yoga studios and small stores and sells at some festivals. Pam says that their next steps include approaching more studios and stores to carry the shirts and increasing their marketing efforts. Thus far they have depended mainly on word of mouth. The website has been completely redone, and new designs are in the works for release during the first part of 2012. The Krupps’ son, Joshua Wallace, is an artist who creates the shirt designs.

Outside of Just Love, the Krupps teach emotional intelligence to grade schoolers. Pam says that it is important to them to make their work a part of their practice of mindfulness and love. When asked about her favorite shirt, Pam says that she likes the plain Just Love logo the best — she says it captures the message perfectly.

To purchase shirts or find out more about Just Love, visit www.justlovepage.com. You can email them at justlove@justlovepage.com or call them at 248-651-4439.

Somatic psychologist Eva Neuhaus specializes in working with “highly sensitive folks” — the estimated 20 percent of the human population whose nervous systems process information more intensely than others.

Eva Neuhaus, Certified Massage Therapist and M.A. in Somatic Psychology, relocated her Intuitive Coaching Practice from California to Ann Arbor in August 2011. Through a combination of bodywork, energy work, and dialogue, she collaborates with clients to help them explore patterns at work in their bodies and lives. Neuhaus specializes in working with “highly sensitive folks” — the estimated 20 percent of the human population whose nervous systems process information more intensely than others. Sensitivity is sometimes stigmatized and considered a weakness, but Neuhaus views it as a strength and a gift. Through her work, she helps empower highly sensitive people to thrive by learning to care for their own distinct needs as sensitivities and by embracing their creativity, intuition, and empathy to fulfill their unique purpose.

What's New in the Community

Continued from page 17

Neuhaus came to the healing arts through a background in dance. She eventually realized she was "more interested in the therapeutic process than in the performance" and went on to pursue her master's in somatic psychology, a discipline focused on the intersection of the body and mind, as well as training in massage and energy healing. According to Neuhaus, most people struggle to change by engaging the limited conscious mind. Because the body is "a repository of the unconscious," tapping its intelligence enables deep and lasting transformation. She says that trauma can leave an imprint on the body and mind, and that healing modalities that include the body can be particularly effective for resolving trauma, with a more enduring effect.

Neuhaus emphasizes that her practice is based on "using intuition in a pragmatic way." She teaches clients to do what she calls "spiritual detective work" for themselves, empowering them to make more informed and authentic choices and thus improve their lives and expand their possibilities.

Neuhaus works with sensitive, creative people from all walks of life, including children and teens. She offers a free 30-minute phone consultation and can be reached at 734-707-7477. You can email her at evaneuhaus18@gmail.com or visit her website at evaneuhaus.com.

Carolyn James-Pytel, a veteran teacher who has been coaching teens for years, started her life coaching practice Exuberance Now at the end of 2010. James-Pytel says she was inspired to begin coaching as a teacher, observing depressed teens and their parents trying unsuccessfully to navigate obstacles in their lives without help or even traditional therapy. She says that "we are designed to be happy" and relies heavily on positive thinking. She feels that traditional therapy spends too much time highlighting problems when happiness can be obtained by a shift in thinking. She explains that when a person focuses on problems, they empower their negative thoughts, which then get stronger. She helps clients to "take back their mind" from these negative thought patterns by interrupting them and "coming to the present moment."

James-Pytel works with teens and adults on a variety of issues, including self-confidence, stress management, physical and mental wellness, motivation, gay and lesbian issues, goal setting, and relationship coaching. She says she can help anyone feeling stuck or dissatisfied for any reason to work toward more exuberance in their lives. James-Pytel works with individuals by appointment, over the phone and in-person; she also offers group workshops on topics ranging from general happiness, to moving on after trauma, to relationship enhancement. More information is available online at www.exuberancenow.com. Caroline James-Pytel offers a complimentary 50-minute introductory session, which can be scheduled by calling her at 248-974-2681 or emailing carolynpytel@att.net.

Dr. Joy Mutinda opened her part time private practice in April of 2010. A licensed psychologist, she works for the University of Michigan's Counseling and Psychological Services department counseling students in addition to working with private patients. She is "committed to serving underrepresented populations," including lesbian, gay, transgender, and bisexual people, as well as people of different racial and ethnic groups. These groups, she says, "may not seek out counseling as much as others," and she feels it is important to provide an open, welcoming, non-judgmental place for them to seek help.

A woman of color herself, Mutinda describes herself as warm, friendly, and approachable. She notes that in her practice she is "sex-positive," which she explains as non-judgmental of sexuality, sexual practices, and attractions that are different from the "norm." One example of this is her experience working with clients who choose to be in consensually non-mongamous (polyamorous) relationships. Mutinda says that she has helped people navigate boundaries, feelings of jealousy, and other issues that may come up in these relationships without condemning people's choices to engage in them, whereas some therapists would view them as automatically problematic and pathological.

Psychologist Joy Mutinda's private practice is committed to serving underrepresented populations, including lesbian, gay, transgender, and bisexual people, as well as people of different racial and ethnic groups.

Mutinda counsels from what she calls a "feminist-oriented perspective," which she believes is more collaborative than traditional therapy. She states, "they are the experts in their own life and path; I just help them navigate that path."

Dr. Mutinda is online at www.drjoymutinda.com. She can be reached via email at drjoymutinda@gmail.com or phone at 734-353-2151.

Childbirth educator and certified birth Doula Deb Rhizal will be holding a series of six-week classes meeting once per week called Birth and The First Three Months.

New business owner, Deb Rhizal, opened Arts of Wellness in June of 2011 and is pleased to offer wellness and family coaching and deep relaxation sessions utilizing bodywork, breath work, and visualization tools. She is also offering a new childbirth preparation class for families about to experience the birth process. Rhizal is a certified Wellness Coach through Well Coaches Incorporated, a Reiki practitioner, childbirth educator, certified birth Doula, and a student of Zero Balancing, a hands-on therapy that works with energy current at the bone level. She enjoys helping people make lifestyle changes in service of their health and wellbeing.

A More Conscious Approach
 Mediation & Resolution Specialist in Ann Arbor for over 25 years

*Divorce. Custody. Family.
 Partnership Dissolution.
 Business and Workplace.*

Zena Zumeta
Mediation Services
 330 East Liberty, Suite 3A, Ann Arbor 48104
734.663.1155
www.zenazumetamediation.com

Bowen Tax - Ann Arbor

We have 38 years of experience with tax planning & preparation.

We can help you and your loved ones navigate tax challenges.

We appreciate our diverse clientele & welcome new clients to our practice.

We solve financial puzzles.

Member of Think Local First

Bowen Tax
bowentax.com
 205 N. First Street
 (at Ann Street)
 Ann Arbor, MI 48104
 (734) 662-6705
tax@earthfriendlyfinance.com

“Rather than recommending specific outcomes, I emphasize helping people identify or clarify what goals are most important to them and how to attain them using personal strengths and resources, so it becomes fun, lasting, and rewarding,” said Rhizal, whose business is based out of the Hygeia Center for the Healing Arts on 5th Street in Ann Arbor.

As an experienced Doula, Rhizal has attended over 170 births. She is holding a series of six-week classes meeting once per week called Birth and The First Three Months. The class teaches a comprehensive overview of what to expect from birth and its impact on personal and family wellbeing. It encourages couples to become a stronger team with a clear vision for the birth of their child and to look at a plan for post-partum.

She stresses the importance of the “early impact” on children, and her childbirth class addresses “how to raise a human being that has a loving and collaborative approach to their life, where they feel safe, secure, and at peace with the world.” She adds, “I teach a body-mind-spirit physiology of birth; with my belief in the energetic influences from within and from the environment, and by my beliefs in the importance of a high vibration, reverence, and love at the moment when babies take their first breath and during the primal period afterwards,” said Rhizal.

Arts of Wellness services also include helping people with managing chronic pain and stress. “Deep relaxation allows shifts in consciousness that unleash creativity,” said Rhizal. “These sessions can help remove psychic blocks that stand in our way.” Arts of Wellness is offering a free initial consultation. Please visit www.arts-of-wellness.com, or for the child bearing class, www.pregnancyarts.com. You can call Rhizal at 734-604-1841 or email her at contact@debrhizal.com.

Please note that the “What’s New” column is part of the editorial (not paid-for advertising) part of the journal, and the editors may or may not include what you submit. Whether the editors include material or not will depend on space considerations, as well as other editorial issues, such as the need for high resolution jpgs and the overall mix of stories included in the “What’s New in the Community” column in a given issue. If you would like to submit information to be considered for this column, please email communitynews@crazywisdom.net or drop off or mail to the store: What’s New in the Community, 114 South Main, Ann Arbor, MI 48104. The firm deadline for submissions for the next issue (May thru August 2012) is March 1, 2012.

###

KINDNESS CLINIC LLC
REIKI ENERGY THERAPY

REIKI (pronounced ray-key), is a gentle Japanese hands-on healing modality, based on bioenergetics used to alleviate disease, pain, anxiety, and stress.

REIKI can be used in conjunction with any of the healing modalities, conventional or alternative.

REIKI is simple, safe and has no harmful side effects.

If you are drawn to REIKI, know that you are drawn for a reason. Explore REIKI, receive an energy therapy session and/or take a class. You will be amazed. What are you waiting for?

Call for an appointment: 734-719-0311 or Visit our website: www.kindnessclinic.com

BALANCE YOUR ENERGY ~ BALANCE YOUR LIFE

REIKI Principles

Just for Today...
I will not anger
I will not worry
I will be grateful
I will be honest
I will be KIND

The International Network of Esoteric Healing
Presents
An Introduction to Esoteric Healing
With Joanne Karpinen, Ph.D., Certified INEH Teacher

Learn the Ageless Wisdom teachings of Tibetan Master Djwhal Khul & Alice Bailey:

- * How to perceive/assess the energy field
- * How to correct energetic disruptions
 - * Physical & esoteric anatomy
 - * Developing intuition
 - * Mindfulness & meditation
- * How chakras inform us physically, emotionally, mentally & spiritually
- * Ageless Wisdom spiritual healing principles & specific treatment protocols

APRIL 26-29, 2012 9:00am – 5:30pm daily $375 Ann Arbor location TBA

Inquire/register at: www.integratedhealingjourneys.com or email: DrKarpinen@aol.com

INEH seminars are taught by instruction, individual experience, group practice & process

Crazy Wisdom Salons ~ Spring 2012

March 15th

Food as a Path to Health and Healing

This Salon explores the relationship between food, health and healing from the perspective of an integrative family physician, a chef and social entrepreneur, and an environmental activist. This discussion will explore the evolving healthy food revolution that is transforming the ways in which we view food and nutrition from the dinner table, to hospital and school cafeterias, to the Farm Bill.

Facilitator: Lucinda Kurtz, M.A., Healing Science Practitioner and Outreach and Communications Director, Fair Food Network; Alicia Cohen, MD, Integrative Medicine Fellow, Clinical Lecturer, Dept. of Family Medicine, U of M; Hillary M. Bisnett, Healthy Food in Health Care Program Director, Ecology Center; Dena Jaffee, Culinary Coordinator, WholeHeart Group, Ann Arbor’s new social enterprise centered on healthy, prepared food and services.

April 26

Kids Pick Up on EVERYTHING: How Parental Stress Is Toxic to Kids & What Parents Can Do About It

We fool ourselves if we think our children don’t pick up on our stress. David Code, author of the book, Kids Pick Up on EVERYTHING, says, “Stressed parents create stressed children.” His research and that of others is beginning to show that parental stress is the real toxin affecting children’s health. Research suggests that, when parents relax more, children begin to learn better and show less anger or fear and have fewer physical and emotional problems. Code appeals to parents to relax and socialize more!

Facilitator: Carole Kirby, LMSW. Carole is an Imago therapist and workshop presenter who specializes in working with couples. Panelists -- To Be Announced.

February 2

Occupy Wall Street (and Ann Arbor) A Conversation about its Local and National Meaning

Occupy Wall Street burst upon our consciousness, and now it's an election year. We've invited Alan Haber and Odile Hugonot Haber to help us deconstruct all that has been happening. Alan is a cabinet maker, Odile a nurse. In the 1960's, he was an initiator of SDS, and she was a participant in the May 1968 uprisings in Paris. Both have been involved in "Occupy Ann Arbor" from its beginning, and will come with other participants in this unfolding political action. An evening of lively discussion is intended.

7 pm in the Tea Room • Free •
Crazy Wisdom • 114 South Main Street
• Ann Arbor • 734-665-2757 •

Leaps of Faith: Tales of Newer Local Businesses

Mike & Dana Bell, owners of Foot Solutions

By John Fredericks
Photos by John Fredericks

This is the third in a series of articles we're doing on local business owners and their relatively newer businesses. From major corporations to small businesses, business owners all over the state have been downsizing, reorganizing, and out-and-out closing their doors in the last several years. And yet, as the economy in Michigan has steadily declined over those years, there are still brave souls who have taken the leap of faith to open their own businesses here. What follows are profiles of two interesting, newer businesses that are thriving despite the odds.

Foot Solutions

Mike & Dana Bell, owners

Foot Solutions, 3780 Jackson Road, Ann Arbor, MI 48103; (734) 998-3668; email: annarbor@footsolutions.com; website: www.footsolutions.com/annarbor

All too often we overuse, abuse, then neglect and ignore our feet, but Mike Bell of Foot Solutions reminds us, "The foot is the foundation of the body." When Mike and his wife, Dana, opened their business on Jackson Road (in the shopping complex in front of the Quality 16 Theatres, just west of Wagner Road), they set out on a mission to change that pattern of abuse and neglect – as well as to restore healthy feet and strong foundations to bodies all over the Ann Arbor area. Though they live in Howell, they said they were sold on opening their business in Ann Arbor, because, "The mindset here is one of better-educated people, who are more conscious of health issues and wellness."

Mike had made a career in the insurance and financial planning world, but found that he liked numbers much less than working with human digits.

"It's amazing how many people do not know their true foot size, or shoe size, in this day and age of the self-serve shoe stores."

– Mike Bell of Foot Solutions

Yet it took a considerable leap of faith for Mike and Dana to get their business up and running. Mike had made a career in the insurance and financial planning world, but found that he liked numbers much less than working with human digits. Years earlier, in his "ski-bumming twenties," he spent time in Colorado fitting skiing professionals with custom ski boots, and he longed to return to that kind of work.

Unfortunately, the timing could not have been worse for the transition. Mike and Dana signed their lease and opened Foot Solutions in the summer of 2008, just months before the economic crash. "There was many a nail-biting moment for us after we opened," said Dana, "but somehow we made it. And we learned that our business is less dependent on economic conditions than most, probably because our market is really a unique niche that follows its own needs, rather than economic ups and downs."

Since 2008, Mike and Dana, who are board-certified podiatrists (educated in anatomy, physiology, biomechanics, and pathology), have made a science of treating the feet right. "By stabilizing the foot, we can provide an overall significant benefit to the body," says Mike. They begin with a questionnaire and a series of tests to determine one's foot health, or problems. "Through the questionnaire and talking with the individual, we want to understand the person's work, lifestyle, activities, and health," explains Mike. "Then we start with the basics of measuring the foot, both weighted (standing) and un-weighted (sitting)." He adds, "It's amazing how many people do not know their true foot size, or shoe size, in this day and age of the self-serve shoe stores."

Then they get to the high-tech part of the analysis. "We use a device that incorporates a series of sensors linked to a computer, to generate static and dynamic profiles for each foot, as well as the dynamics of the person's gait or walk," explains Dana. Mike adds, "You may have seen the 'Dr. Scholl's Machines' in stores but, compared to that, we're Superman!"

Intrigued, I asked to be a guinea pig and go through the testing. It really was amazing. After standing in a set position on the device and taking several walks across it, I got to see a detailed, three-dimensional representation of my feet mapped out on the computer screen.

After seeing the pictures and having Mike explain the numbers, I learned – thankfully – that my feet and walk are pretty normal and healthy. But the wealth of information made me ask, "How much do you charge for the diagnosis?" "The assessment we do is completely complimentary," said Mike. "The more we really know about your feet, motions, and lifestyle, the better shoe or orthotic devices we can provide you."

Dana added, "People are amazed when we sell them shoes that really fit! They go from 'It feels like there's a lot of room' or 'That's odd' to 'Wow, I can't believe how much better my feet feel!' That's because we're fitting, and sometimes actually creating, custom footwear that is specially made to conform to their feet and the torsional stresses that their feet experience."

Many people think of such service providers as just for people who have chronic foot, mobility, or back problems. Mike notes, "Indeed, if you do have a problem, many times we can tell just by watching you walk in, or looking at the assessment and saying, 'Well, you're favoring your right foot in a way that you must be having back problems in your L4-L5 (lumbar) region.' We will give you the printout from our testing, and you can give that to your doctor for further medical advice, but we're not doctors and we don't play them on TV or in the store."

We learned that our business is less dependent on economic conditions than most, probably because our market is really a unique niche that follows its own needs, rather than economic ups and downs.

However, the proper care of the feet, and wearing shoes that are not only fitted to the feet but fitted to the tasks our feet are being asked to do, are clinically and medically proven to have health benefits. That is where Mike and Dana Bell can help everyone. "We want to understand, structurally, what are the needs of your body," says Mike. Dana adds, "And what we carry in the store is a 'fitting inventory.' If what you need isn't here, we go to the catalogues...Thirty percent of our business is special order."

The motto of Foot Solutions is "Rejuvenate Your Sole." And, one sole at a time, Mike and Dana are making great strides toward creating a healthier, happier Ann Arbor.

###

Column continued on page 22

Photographers Wanted

To take pictures for The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal. Moderate pay, wonderful exposure. It's also fun and interesting to meet the people we take photos of: healers, authors, bodymind therapists, yoga teachers, professors, holistic and spiritual types, and other fringe elements! For more information, contact Bill Zirinsky at bill@crazywisdom.net.

Evenings With Local Authors

A NEW CRAZY WISDOM SERIES ON TUESDAY NIGHTS

Join us this spring for inspiring lectures and lively discussions with prominent area authors!

Each author has written a new book and brings considerable background and wisdom to her subject. The audience will be invited to participate fully in a give-and-take with the author.

Tuesday, March 27th: An Evening with Patricia Fero, author of Sacred Marching Orders: Igniting the Solar Feminine at the Dawn of the New Age

Tuesday, April 3rd: An Evening with Lorna Brown, author of Dragonfly Dialogues: Memories of an Awakening Spirit

Tuesday, April 17th: An Evening with Barbara Brodsky, author of The Aaron/Q'uo Dialogues: An Extraordinary Conversation Between Two Spiritual Guides

Tuesday, April 24th: An Evening with Lorri Coburn, author of Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free

ALL EVENTS ARE FREE AND START AT 7PM IN THE CRAZY WISDOM TEA ROOM.

CRAZY WISDOM BOOKSTORE
114 South Main Street, Ann Arbor
734-665-2757 www.crazywisdom.net

Relaxation & Ultimate Bodywork

Ann Arbor's Premiere Wellness Center

WWW.RUBANNARBOR.COM

Gift cards and booking available online. 214 S. Main Street Suite 201 734.213.7600
 Massage or Yoga for couples with Brunch Above Espresso Royale Cafe M-Sat 10 a.m-8 p.m Sun 10 a.m - 6 p.m
 Special events & Onsites. M-Sun 9 a.m-9 p.m by appointment.

FREEDOM HAPPINESS SOBRIETY

Addiction & Recovery Counseling

INDIVIDUAL • MARITAL • FAMILY • ADOLESCENT
HELP WITH DRUGS AND ALCOHOL

PERSONAL AND CORPORATE INTERVENTIONS
SAVE A LIFE • SAVE A CAREER

Bruce and Linda Thomson

734.994.8120

www.ThomsonSolutionsLLC.com
bruce@ThomsonSolutionsLLC.com

RESTORE JOY AND BALANCE TO YOUR LIFE.

Leaps of Faith: Tales of Newer Local Businesses

Larry Bynum, Massage Therapist, Analea Leffenberry, Yoga Instructor, and Emma Greene, Massage Therapist and Co-Owner of RUB

Emma Greenand and Analea Leffenberry

Emma believes strongly that all minds and bodies are connected...[so RUB] offers a wide range of services and therapies to reconnect minds and bodies, to themselves and to “the collective.”

Column continued from page 21

RUB Ann Arbor

Emma Greene, Brandon Baugh, Diane Wyatt, and Ryan Wyatt, owners

RUB Ann Arbor, 214 S. Main Street, Suite 201, Ann Arbor 48104; (734) 213-7600; email: info@rubannarbor.com; website: www.rubannarbor.com

The first thing that hits you when you walk into RUB is an overwhelming sense of serenity. One would not necessarily expect such calm from one of the city’s newest and hottest businesses, which overlooks Ann Arbor’s busy Main Street from the second-floor space over Espresso Royale. Emma Greene, one of RUB’s four co-owners, says, “That’s what we wanted for our massage and yoga clients: a place that was quiet, serene, and inviting. And we invested a lot of hard work in the renovation of the space to make it that way.”

As they worked on that renovation, Emma recalls that she and her three partners struggled with the thoughts that they were undertaking the project at the wrong time and that it would never get off the ground. “The economy, seeing businesses close all over town, and simply having a lot of competition out there made us wonder about our sanity,” said Emma. “But we carried on tearing out walls, laying flooring, and installing ceiling tiles – if I never handle another one of those, I’ll be happy — while keeping our fingers crossed and hoping for the best.”

Despite a few signage issues, RUB opened this summer and started inviting clients into a very nice space that is making all their hard work worth it, as well as making the leap of faith pay off.

“The economy, seeing businesses close all over town, and simply having a lot of competition out there made us wonder about our sanity.”
– Emma Greene, co-owner of RUB Ann Arbor

RUB, an acronym for Relaxation & Ultimate Bodywork, uses their serene and tastefully under-decorated atmosphere to beckon clients to one of four private rooms and to “create their own space.” “We ask clients to feel free to bring in their own music, or whatever makes them feel more at home,” says Emma, “to make their room their own place to escape.”

With or without such personal accoutrements, clients can feel comfortable in any of their staff member’s hands. All of them have had extensive training in massage therapy, including a lot of basic anatomy and physiology study, as well as “hands-on” hours. But Emma notes, “For us, it’s really about making a mind-body connection with people.”

“For many people,” Emma continues, “massage is considered a luxury, but I try to tell people it’s a regular part of preventative care and a way to maintain true homeostasis.” She explains that she was raised in Ann Arbor and steeped in an eclectic upbringing. For instance, she believes strongly that all minds and bodies are connected.

“A lot of people today are feeling very disconnected,” Emma says. “So whether someone comes in with an acute issue, chronic pain, or just to relax — if we can make that hour better, that day better, or that week better for them, it’s an amazing thing, and I love it.”

In addition to regular massage therapy, co-partners Emma Greene, Brandon Baugh, and sister and brother Diane Wyatt and Ryan Wyatt, plus their seven additional massage therapists and three yoga instructors, offer a wide range of services and therapies to reconnect minds and bodies, to themselves and to “the collective.”

“We have several combinations of services that the other businesses in town do not have,” says Emma, “like herbal poultice massage, bamboo massage, hot Jade stone massage, prepartum/postpartum massage, deep tissue massage, and even ‘yogassage,’ where your time is split between private yoga and massage.”

In addition, RUB offers regular yoga classes, aromatherapy, and reflexology, as well as training in core strengthening and guided meditation, all at fairly reasonable prices.

“We have several combinations of services that the other businesses in town do not have,” says Emma... “[including] ‘yogassage,’ where your time is split between private yoga and massage.”

“We began with the individual,” states the RUB brochure, “and then designed therapies that would treat the entire person. Here at RUB, we call it integrated care. By fully incorporating a wide array of wellness therapies, we treat the mind, body, and soul.”

The staff delivers on that mission daily and, after checking with several clients who have experienced RUB, we can attest that it is really working.

“They have a really unique thing going on there,” said Ted, a client, after visiting RUB. “Emma is truly amazing the way she works with people and, every time I see her, I feel this remarkably deep bond that reminds me what it is to be human all over again. Her energy is unique and she really gets into your head and body in way that I can’t explain.”

Others must be starting to catch on, because we noted a steady stream of clients when we showed up twice to interview and take pictures at RUB. Regardless, clients went to their private rooms, and the serenity and peace returned to the space over Main Street all over again, as if to say, “The collective is being healed — one mind, body, and soul at a time.” Thank you, RUB.

###

Ann Arbor 350: Taking on Climate Change, One Challenge at a Time

By Monica Patel

Most of us in Washtenaw County have experienced the effects of global warming in the form of flooding from heavy rains and other strange weather patterns these last two years. And we're not alone. Just during October 2011, extreme weather affected millions of people across the United States, as well as those in Pakistan, Russia, Japan, Thailand, and more.

As many as 10 million people a year become "climate refugees," displaced from their homes due to climate-related disasters that include floods, wildfires, and tornadoes. Extreme weather in the U.S. caused over $32 billion in damages by mid-June, at which point the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration declared 2011 the most extreme weather-related disaster year on record.

Here in Michigan, experts predict longer growing seasons due to climate change — but we'll also see more extreme heat, heavier and more frequent rainstorms, and dramatic influxes of climate refugees, all of which will put pressure on our incredible water resources.

Untold hardship and human suffering follows these natural disasters, and it's clear that the climate change problem needs to be addressed. The question then becomes: Which small changes lead to the biggest impact?

Americans... [are] responsible for a whopping 20 tons of carbon dioxide per person per year. Scientists have calculated that we all need to lower our emissions to 2 tons per capita, which means that we have got to get moving!

Globally, the actions of the average person emit 4.5 tons of carbon dioxide each year, but Americans go above and beyond, responsible for a whopping 20 tons of carbon dioxide per person per year. Scientists have calculated that we all need to lower our emissions to 2 tons per capita, which means that we have got to get moving!

If those of us who live in resource-rich, water-abundant places start changing our ways and reducing our carbon footprint now, we can help reduce the impact of global warming, as well as heading off local ramifications.

While the U.S. Climate Bill languishes in Congress and climate deniers make a mockery of science, folks on the ground are building an incredible grassroots movement. One of these people is Bill McKibben, founder of 350.org. 350.org is an international campaign to unite the world around solutions to the climate crisis. The organization is named "350" because scientists say that 350 ppm (parts per million) is the safe upper limit for carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

The 350 Climate Pledge lists a few easy household, transportation, and food-related actions that have the potential to make a huge difference... Just pick a few actions, write them down, and send them to us. We'll check in on you to help you meet your goals, and we'll also celebrate your accomplishments.

When McKibben came to Ann Arbor in 2009, he shared the successes of the International Day of Climate Action, a day CNN called "the most widespread day of political action in our planet's history." McKibben's inspiring visit sparked the formation of Ann Arbor 350, an Ecology Center project that promotes local action to help solve the global problem. For the past three years, Ann Arbor 350 has worked with and inspired community members to minimize their own carbon footprint. For our first action, the 10/10/10 Garden Challenge, we united to help our neighbors grow more of their own food — and to make a statement in the process. Volunteers visited local families, businesses, and organizations to help assemble raised garden beds made by the Ypsilanti-based nonprofit, Growing Hope.

The food industry accounts for about 10 percent of fossil fuel use in the United States, and about 40 percent of its carbon footprint is due to packaging, processing, and transportation. To put it another way, studies estimate that processed food in the United States travels over 1,300 miles, and fresh produce travels over 1,500 miles, before being consumed. By putting food gardens into front yards, we're teaching people where their food comes from and, as a happy byproduct, we enjoy a simple, easy reduction in our own carbon footprint.

We've mapped nearly 200 visible, edible "350 Gardens" — and added even more to front yards, schoolyards, and church grounds in the past two years. Many of these gardens have either inspired others to start their own 350 Gardens, or sparked conversation about local food or the 350 movement.

Throughout the past year, we promoted the Household Energy Challenge, the Commuter Challenge, and the Mission Zero Fest — encouraging people to save energy at home, to take a low-carbon commute, and to consider visionary, clean-energy approaches for buildings. And in October, we added more gardens to the 350 Garden network to get a head start on next year's growing season.

Gaia Kile participates in Ann Arbor 350

"For Ann Arbor 350's first action, the 10/10/10 Garden Challenge, we united to help our neighbors grow more of their own food...[by visiting] local families, businesses, and organizations to help assemble raised garden beds made by the Ypsilanti-based nonprofit, Growing Hope."

What's next? The 350 Climate Pledge. Sign up at www.aa350.org to take some simple, fun steps to reduce your personal carbon footprint. The Pledge lists a few easy household, transportation, and food-related actions that have the potential to make a huge difference.

For instance, by installing a low-flow showerhead, you can save 105 pounds of carbon dioxide (CO²) per month with no inconvenience to your lifestyle. Or you might consider washing your clothes on the cold/cold washer settings and use only 13.5 pounds of carbon dioxide per month, instead of the 200 pounds of CO² you waste using hot/warm water. If one person completes all of the Climate Pledge actions for a year, they will save 4.9 tons of carbon dioxide.

Just pick a few actions, write them on the Climate Pledge, and send them to us. We'll check in on you to help you meet your goals, and we'll also celebrate your accomplishments. To assist in achieving these important goals, we will also make sure that we, as a community, are ready to rally together to add our voices to the roar that will be needed to get the attention of our politicians.

Remember: It doesn't end with the Climate Pledge, it starts there. This journey will be more fun — and more fruitful — if we take it together.

For more information about the Climate Pledge or to register your 350 Garden, visit www.aa350.org.

Monica Patel has been a policy specialist at the Ecology Center for over four years, and part of Ann Arbor 350 since it started. She's a newbie gardener, and an active participant in The Agrarian Adventure, a nonprofit group that partners with K-12 schools to enrich students' connection between the foods they eat, their personal health, and the health of their communities and the environment. Monica can be reached at annarbor350@ecocenter.org.

Angel-Inspired Gifts & Memorials

Angela's
Angels & Antiques

- Angel, psychic & medium readings
- Bereavement & funeral
- Angelic gifts for home & garden

angelasangelsgifts.com

5774 Main Street
Sylvania, Ohio 43560
419-824-4079
(30 min. from Ann Arbor)

Sustainable Health

By Abbe Grossman

Rebel with a Cause:

The “Rebel Eater” and Its Contribution to Compulsive Eating

If the problem with overeating were simply how to lose weight, the solution would be simple: find the right diet for each person’s body and psyche. But neither food nor weight is the true underlying problem for most compulsive eaters. We don’t suffer from a paucity of diets or nutritional information. We suffer because we cycle in and out of diets ranging from macrobiotics to Weight Watchers. We practice that cycling as if we were training for an Olympic sport. And for the life of us, we can’t understand why.

There is an unconscious condition that hardly anybody talks about — not Oprah, Jenny Craig, or even your holistic family doctor. We’ll call it “food amnesia.” It’s the temporary loss of consciousness that overtakes us between the time our hands open the full bag of chips and when our eyes see the now-empty bottom. As we sit on the couch, stuffed and stunned, we utter a soft, agonized moan of defeat. “Oh my god, not again. How did this happen?”

...The rebel eater is that part our unconscious that refuses to follow food rules...The restrictions imposed by diets, be they based on whole grains or processed foods, may trigger rebellion.

One of the primary factors contributing to food amnesia is the presence of what Francie White, master of science, registered dietitian and director of the Central Coast Intensive Outpatient Eating Disorder Program, calls the “rebel eater.” According to White, the rebel eater is that part our unconscious that refuses to follow food rules. In psychological terms, the rebel eater is an unconscious ego state, or part of the self. The restrictions imposed by diets, be they based on whole grains or processed foods, may trigger rebellion. As author Geneen Roth says, “For every diet, there is an equal and opposite binge.”

Let’s meet Sarah’s rebel eater, for example. After a day of raw carrot sticks and dry chicken breasts, a bag of cookies stares her in the face upon arriving home from work. Sarah thinks, “Look how fat you are. No cookies for you!” But her rebel eater says, “Ah, forget it! Don’t tell me what to eat! I’m digging in!” Suddenly, she’s eaten the whole bag and is mystified as to what happened. The rebel eater just hijacked her body.

Why does the rebel eater get triggered? We are hardwired to aggressively, sometimes violently, defend against those who would take our food. This response dates back to our cave-dwelling ancestors who, after slaughtering a mammoth, had to fend off marauding bandits intent on stealing their winter food supply. Those who were successful survived and went on to become our genetic ancestors. Those who weren’t successful died off. Therefore, “You take my food away from me, and you die” is coded into our ancestral gene pool. Straight and simple.

There is an unconscious condition that hardly anybody talks about — not Oprah, Jenny Craig, or even your holistic family doctor...“food amnesia.”

So while we politely ask the nutritional expert to assist us in losing weight, listen responsibly, take notes, and pay the fee, the rebel eater is perched in the quiet recesses of our mind, ready to defend our mammoth to the death.

This force of nature cannot be underestimated. “In my decades of working with women,” says Francie White, “one thing I’ve learned is, don’t ever tell a woman what to eat!” Doing so just triggers the rebel eater. Until this force of nature is addressed, progress will be slow to none. This rebel has a cause — survival of both the body and the psyche.

The energetic purpose of our core self, or “soul essence,” according to the Bio Self-Emergence Institute (BSEI) in Southfield, Michigan, is to reserve its energy so the soul can survive and experience itself. The rebel, understood from BSEI’s energetic perspective on developmental stages, is not just a psychological defense mechanism. If the core self is not energetically developed and organized, it must rebel to save itself for its energetic purpose of soul survival and experience.

The “I am me” is the energetic core of who we are. Its purpose isn’t to follow or defy rules. Its purpose is to survive and to experience itself. Psychologically, we develop our “I am me” muscles with our “No!” We define and differentiate ourselves by asserting, “Noooo! I do not want to give you this interesting, shiny object you call a knife. Mine!” This particular bid for self-determination — holding the knife — must be denied. But sometimes the denial goes too far.

Let’s say that Sarah was the child with the knife, and her “no” was punished. She was yelled at, given the silent treatment, or labeled “selfish,” “willful,” or “stubborn.” Her parents prohibited her ability to say “no” and controlled her verbal behavior, but they can scarcely control everything she eats. “Aha,” notices Sarah, “this battle, I can win. I will eat what I want to!” She wants to feel herself, her “no,” her power.

Then Sarah puts on a few extra pounds. Her parents worry. They tell her, “Don’t eat that cookie. You’ll gain weight.” Sarah’s “I am me” is threatened. The rebel eater is born. It attempts to protect the child’s still fragile and growing sense of self, her essence.

As one student of [the] non-diet approach aptly said, “If I can eat anything I want, there’s nothing to rebel against.”

So what happens when Sarah grows up? She eats compulsively, desperately seeking control and weight loss. Yet she pours her energy into defying deprivation and rebelling against the professionals who advise food restrictions. With one foot on the gas and one foot on the brakes, she is going nowhere fast.

If Sarah’s health professionals give her even the best of nutritional advice, it will likely exacerbate her rebel’s overeating. How, then, to address the problem? As one student of this non-diet approach aptly said, “If I can eat anything I want, there’s nothing to rebel against.” With nothing to battle and no recriminations to suffer, Sarah’s full energy and attention is freed up to notice just how much of that organic, whole-grain bread slathered with butter her body really desires and how much she eats out of defiance. What happens to the rebel’s overeating after consistent practice of this non-diet philosophy?

Let’s take Rachel, for example, a diabetic who struggled with food obsession and weight issues for decades. Each day began with a vow to follow the doctor’s recommendations and ended with the rebel eater’s battle cry of, “Ah forget it!” — followed by huge servings of pasta and, finally...dessert. Once again, Rachel feels defeated, resigned, and depressed.

When Rachel began practicing mindful eating, however (noticing body sensations when we eat), she was shocked one night to discover her body wanted those fresh green beans from her garden, not pasta! She had never bothered to ask before. Skeptical, but encouraged, she began asking herself, “How much body-hunger do I have right now?” and “What kind of food would satisfy that hunger right now?” She asked, “Will hot or cold, sweet or spicy, crunchy or smooth satisfy me now? Am I slightly hungry, so hungry I could faint, neutral, satisfied, or full right now?” She considered vegetables, protein, fruits and carbohydrates. She committed to suspending judgment about her body size and food. The simple act of paying attention to food choices, instead of judging them, changed how she felt about herself and her measurements.

When Rachel began practicing mindful eating, however (noticing body sensations when we eat), she was shocked one night to discover her body wanted those fresh green beans from her garden, not pasta! She had never bothered to ask before.

Rachel began to eat much less after 10 days. After eight months, she let go of most desserts. Not because she was following the diabetic guidelines. She had always rebelled against those. It was precisely the opposite. Her rebel eater had calmed down. Why? Because there was nothing to rebel against. Food was not restricted. She had the freedom to say “yes” without guilt to desserts. This earned her the freedom to say “no” without rebellion or a feeling of deprivation.

Research suggests that dieting undermines our connection to our natural mechanism for regulating food intake. This mechanism requires an internal focus on the body’s hunger and satiety. We need that mechanism. Diets train us to focus on external rules: what to eat and how much. That’s why retraining ourselves to recognize hunger and satiety is a prerequisite to releasing the rebel eater’s stronghold. Therein lies the hope for us to find balance and peace with food.

The rebel eater is just one of the players from our unconscious that contributes to overeating. But understanding that often isn’t enough. Recovery requires practicing mindful eating and releasing judgments again and again. This sounds like a lot of work, because at first it is. It often requires a non-diet support group or the guidance of a skilled professional. But the results are plentiful. We can replace the diet-rebel rollercoaster with something far more substantial: peace with ourselves and with our food.

###

Abbe J. Grossman, M.A., is an eating disorder coach with 18 years of experience. She holds a master’s degree from the Michigan School for Professional Psychology and incorporates energy work and mindfulness meditation in her practice. She sees clients in Farmington Hills. For more information, visit Abbe’s website at www.MakingPeaceWithFood.net or contact her at grossmanabbejma@att.net or (248) 470-5738.

Occupy Yourself

By Bronwen Gates

I spent a lot of time out of my body as a child. This was often because my body didn't seem like a safe and comfortable place to be. But there was also the choice to spend time out of body, visiting the expanded world I experienced in the magical reality reached through my imagination, the more-real world that I longed to be able to make others know and see.

Bronwen Gates at 18 months of age

I recall the time I watched from above as my charred diapers and the burned skin on my legs were removed after I sat on the fire. The story was that it was an accident, that I walked over and sat on the open coal fire in the kitchen that was the heat source in our home. But it has always been curious to me why I would 'sit on the fire.' How could something that was designed to be as wonderful and delicious as embodiment have become such a painful and misunderstood experience?

How could something that was designed to be as wonderful and delicious as embodiment have become such a painful and misunderstood experience?

I had never forgotten the pain when I came back into my body, just one of the sources of the night terrors that plagued my childhood well into my twenties. Now that I have reached the age of that Future Self, she who cradled this toddler in love's embrace during her out of body experience, there is a reconnection through the continuum of time-space. All the pain my action caused me and my parents is released, and the pain is done; the circle is complete. I had wanted to return to my remembered home in Faerie through the fire's portal, but the portal was blocked, and fire was not the answer. Now I choose to let what happened be indeed an 'accident' of profound design, to bring me home to myself.

I spent a lot of time out of my body as a child.

This is not, of course, the first time a Future Self has reconnected with a younger self, nor will it be the last. Each encounter opens me to a depth of wisdom and compassion that may have been glimpsed earlier, and can become the domain of habitation in our elder years. Now after all these years of seeking answers, I understand more of the 'voices' internal to myself. I understand the role that shame can play, embedded as aberrant chemistry even before birth. In my commitment to consciously confront the inner predator, I am able to offer maps to others in their quest for freedom.

Now that I can easily visit my child's world with her, I can show her all the gifts she received and the fun she had, when previously the unhealed wounds overrode all other memory. Such is the power of pain-accompanied memoir; if we can detach the pain-imprint and restore flow to our energy system, we can remember many individual and collective experiences of feeling pleasure and contentment, and experience an unshakable sense of well-being that wells up like an eternal spring. This to me is the Fountain of Youth.

Perhaps the movement we most need now is the "Occupy Yourself" movement, when we truly inhabit the magnificent interactive domain of nature that is for each of us the body

Old age is not meant to be a reversion to the unmet needs of childhood, but a re-opening to the wonder and pleasure that is present in every childhood and available at deeper and deeper levels as we expand our reverence for the Gift of Life. I am confident that as our perception and perspective expand, new ways of being will emerge.

Perhaps the movement we most need now is the "Occupy Yourself" movement, when we truly inhabit the magnificent interactive domain of nature that is for each of us the body: a world of infinite mystery and delight when we learn to parse its messages, and unlock the inner portals of profound change.

And so it is.

Bronwen Gates is a Joy Coach, committed to helping people experience more joy in their lives.

JESSICA'S SKIN & BODY APOTHECARY

Organic & Pharmaceutical Grade Skin Care

Handmade Perfume Oils & Body Oils

Facial Treatments

Waxing

Mineral Makeup

Aromatherapy

www.jessicasapothecary.com

By appointment only

Online booking available

734.604.5971

A2 Yoga Building, 2030 Commerce Blvd., Ann Arbor, MI 48103

The best of science & nature

kate boyd
MASSAGE THERAPY

NCTMB, TTT™

• massage • reiki • hot stones •

734.546.2387

www.kateboydtherapy.com
kateboydtherapy@comcast.net

Questions for Acupuncturist Cynthia Esseichick of Ann Arbor Healing Arts

(Editors' Note: In the Fall 2011 Crazy Wisdom Community Journal we ran a cover story called "Acupuncture Comes of Age in Ann Arbor." We received an unprecedented volume of comments from our readership about this feature. By and large, readers were glad we were covering this important and relevant topic to the holistic community, though many thought our coverage was not comprehensive enough, and, in fact, left out local practitioners of prominence, including Connie Sundra of The Parkway Center and Cynthia Esseichick of Ann Arbor Healing Arts, among others.

We apologize for this. Our coverage did fall short. While we knew our practitioner list was not comprehensive, it was listed as if it were. We will be sensitive to such representations in the future and have learned many lessons along the way. Among them, that people are passionate about their practitioners and the wonderful work they are doing, and that acupuncture is an important topic in Ann Arbor that deserves further coverage.

To that aim, we are pleased to present an interview with Cynthia Esseichick, acupuncturist, Chinese herbalist, massage therapist, founder of Ann Arbor Healing Arts, and a long-time member of the Ann Arbor holistic community. Cynthia graciously accepted our invitation to speak with her about her practice and acupuncture's coming of age in Ann Arbor. We thank you, Cynthia, for agreeing to meet with us, and we thank all the readers who responded so passionately to our acupuncture feature. This truly is a community journal and your opinions matter.)

Interviewed by Maureen McMahon Photography by John Fredericks

I had the pleasure of meeting with Cynthia Esseichick, Dipl. OM, LAC, MSTOM, at her beautiful office on Ann Arbor's south side. While you enter what seems like a standard office complex to get to her office, the setting of her Ann Arbor Healing Arts business is stunning. Tucked into the bottom of 325 E Eisenhower, it features floor to ceiling windows overlooking beautiful trees, a pond, and a waterfall, and is filled with natural light. One is immediately aware that this is a space for healing. Cynthia is gracious, intelligent, well-spoken, and humorous. I greatly enjoyed getting to know her and learning about her background in massage, her experiences with using acupuncture to treat cancer patients on Chicago's south side, and her views on Oriental Medicine and its place in Ann Arbor.

Maureen McMahon: Cynthia, you first founded Ann Arbor Healing Arts in 1990 in a different location downtown. What part of downtown were you in and why did you decide to have your business in this community? What was your focus then?

Cynthia Esseichick: I was in the heart of downtown, 4th & Washington. The openness in our community toward healing, the environment, politics, spirituality, and the supportive and generous attitude among healthcare practitioners (complementary, alternative, mainstream) made Ann Arbor a delightful place to practice.

My focus then, as now, has always been to promote optimal health and wellness. I began as a shiatsu practitioner, though I've never been attached to a particular modality in and of itself. It's an art to determine what might be the way in to healing. And the way in, as I see it, is guided by the patient, and by listening, assessment, and feedback. It's situational. Am I welcome here? Is this work appropriate here, now, for this individual? Intuition and tactile conversation are helpful tools. So is versatility. Energy medicine is dynamic and personal — what is happening now, what is the response now. It requires presence, being present — that's what I love about it.

Maureen McMahon: What brought about your decision to train in Oriental Medicine (OM)? Had you been exposed to acupuncture in the past? What drew you to it?

Cynthia Esseichick: I wanted to deepen the scope of my holistic healthcare practice, to offer more options to my patients. Dr. Jay Sandweiss has been a mentor to me. Jay's a phenomenal practitioner who artfully combines Eastern and Western biomedicine. He encouraged me to pursue my studies, and welcomed me into the fold. Jay inspired an appreciation for the science and the art of this medicine. (For more on Dr. Jay Sandweiss, D.O., see the Crazy Wisdom Interview from Fall 2008 on our online archive.)

As a teenager, in Southern California, I'd ride my bike to these little botanicas and traditional oriental pharmacies and wander in to check out the multi-drawer herb

It's an art to determine what might be the way in to healing. And the way in, as I see it, is guided by the patient, and by listening, assessment, and feedback. It's situational.

Massage is probably the best pre-medical training any aspiring healthcare practitioner could have. It would be a fantastic pre-requisite for medical school. It amazes me that many practitioners treat the physical body yet rarely touch their patients.

cabinets, the brightly colored boxes of tinctures, the smell of camphor, licorice, and incense. At that time, my best friend's mother was studying OM. It was mysterious and enchanting: piles of dank, smelly plant parts scattered about the kitchen table, incredibly detailed anatomical maps of meridians and acupuncture points. Like "Hogwarts," though well before Harry Potter.

My personal experience receiving acupuncture was profound. I saw this in others, too: amazing results. It was elegant and simple in its application, yet required complex theoretical understanding and scientific knowledge. I was drawn to the centuries of scholarship and history behind OM, to the fact that it worked, often in situations in which nothing else had. It was helpful. It was gentle. And a little bit magical.

Maureen McMahon: Where did you go to college, and where did you get your acupuncture training? What did you specialize in during your training?

Cynthia Esseichick: I received a Bachelor of Arts from Cornell University in Ithaca, NY, and a Master of Science in Oriental Medicine from the Pacific College of Oriental Medicine (P.C.O.M.) in Chicago. During my clinical training I treated a wide variety of issues: migraine, anxiety, allergies, insomnia. I also completed several specialized internships in orthopedics (pain), oncology, and infertility.

My personal experience receiving acupuncture was profound... It was elegant and simple in its application, yet required complex theoretical understanding and scientific knowledge.

MM: Did you feel that your background as a massage therapist influenced you during your training in Chicago?

Cynthia Esseichick: Absolutely. Familiarity with internal and external anatomy, and more specifically, years of hands-on experience working with the physical body meant that palpation, one of the primary diagnostic tools in OM, and the ability to sense point location for needle placement, came easily. It takes time to feel comfortable with touch and to develop what I call "tactile vision." From the start of my clinical training in Chicago, I felt at ease with my patients; this was absolutely due to the cumulative experience I had working as a massage therapist. Massage is probably the best pre-medical training any aspiring healthcare practitioner could have. It would be a fantastic pre-requisite for medical school. It amazes me that many practitioners treat the physical body yet rarely touch their patients.

MM: Where was your Clinical Internship and how did that impact your thoughts about access to care and the potential for acupuncture to benefit cancer patients?

Cynthia Esseichick: I spent 3 years in the P.C.O.M. clinic in Lakeview; a year and a half in the Breast Care Center at Mercy Hospital on Chicago's south side; and assisted several of my professors in their private clinics, one of whom was a fertility specialist in Evanston. My experience at Mercy Hospital was profound. Our patient population was largely comprised of people who, due to socio-economic disparity, might not know about alternative medicine, or who wouldn't necessarily be able to afford it, if they had access to it. We provided acupuncture free of charge to any woman being treated for breast cancer at Mercy. It was an amazing opportunity to educate patients and physicians, to integrate acupuncture within a traditional, biomedical setting, and to offer gentle, effective care to anyone who needed it. And we got fantastic results. The oncologists and their patients loved what we were doing.

I was drawn to the centuries of scholarship and history behind Oriental Medicine, to the fact that it worked, often in situations in which nothing else had. It was helpful. It was gentle. And a little bit magical.

MM: You have mentioned that in Eastern medicine there is a saying, “Diagnosis as treatment; treatment as diagnosis.” What is meant by this? Do you incorporate massage into your acupuncture treatments? Does this relate to treating the patient constitutionally?

Cynthia Esseichick: In OM, techniques such as pulse reading, hara diagnosis (abdominal palpation) or scanning the channels of the body for changes in temperature, tone, or texture, all involve contact. Because of the dynamic nature of touch, the body responds. If I’m palpating a point where I intend to insert a needle, there may be a response to the pressure of my palpation, or the temperature of my fingertips, and so, in the course of diagnostic assessment, treatment begins.

In instances where soft-tissue work makes sense, yes, massage may be used, as well as other accessory techniques such as guasha, cupping, or electro-stimulation. It really depends on the individual situation.

In OM, patients with similar issues, such as asthma, or migraine, might receive vastly different treatments based on individual constitutional variation and the root cause of their problem. There isn’t a set way to treat a specific issue; it varies from person to person, and sometimes from session to session. A frail person will receive a less vigorous treatment than someone more robust, and vice versa. This is real-time medicine: treating what is happening today, for this person, in this particular way. You can imagine why it has been so difficult to create proper clinical trials to assess the efficacy of OM.

MM: What are your areas of specialization now? What are you commonly treating people for?

Cynthia Esseichick: Infertility, women’s health, orthopedics/pain management, digestive issues, migraine, anxiety — my work is quite varied, which I love. It’s a tremendous amount of fun.

MM: Do you have patients of all ages, including children? Do you treat many Chinese people and, if so, are they generally more knowledgeable about acupuncture?

Cynthia Esseichick: I do. My patients include children, teenagers, adults, and seniors well into their 80’s. I treat quite a few Chinese people, and yes, they are often very familiar with acupuncture and Chinese herbs, as well as the nutritional concepts important in OM. In Chinese culture there is great appreciation of the importance of food as medicine.

MM: Do you treat Western medical doctors? Has anything surprised you about working with M.D.s, as patients or as referring physicians?

Cynthia Esseichick: Yes. My patients include M.D.s and D.O.s, many of whom are surprised by the extent of an acupuncturist’s education (P.C.O.M.’s program is 4 years, full-time, and includes a substantial number of courses in Western biomedicine). I’ve been pleasantly surprised by openness and recognition from M.D.s, by their willingness to refer patients, and to work collectively on certain issues. I’m even more surprised at how many come in for treatment because of what they’ve heard from their patients.

There’s a Chinese saying, “the worse the herbs taste, the more benefit they bestow.” That’s hard for some folks to swallow.

MM: In our discussion about the similarities between acupressure and acupuncture, you mentioned a study published in Archives of Internal Medicine (May 11, 2009) in which some patients with lower back pain were given traditional acupuncture with needles, while others were given “sham” acupuncture, in which toothpicks were housed in needle guide tubes so participants couldn’t spot the sham. Both patient groups reported significant improvement in their disabilities brought about by back pain. What conclusions do you draw from this and how has this study been misinterpreted in your opinion?

Cynthia Esseichick: I love this study! One might conclude that there was no appreciable difference using acupuncture or a toothpick, and therefore, acupuncture is a sham, or certainly “no better than a toothpick.” In fact, the toothpicks are a brilliant demonstration of how responsive acupuncture points are to stimulation of any kind: acupressure, acupuncture, massage... Whether one received treatment via a needle or a toothpick isn’t really the issue, what’s important is that when the acupuncture points were stimulated, the response was “significant improvement” — that’s wonderful!

MM: When you treat people, do certain points elicit the same response on different people? If so, what would some examples be?

Cynthia Esseichick: I think what you’re referring to are unexpected responses, outside the intended goal of the treatment. Examples are people seeing specific colors or patterns or experiencing a fog lifting from their bodies. I find it curious because I don’t set up expectations for such things, yet the reporting of these phenomena tends to be fairly consistent with certain point prescriptions.

MM: Are your patients generally enthusiastic about taking herbs? Is there a fair amount of education that you have to provide them about the herbs?

Cynthia Esseichick: In my experience, folks are very enthusiastic about the idea of taking hand-crafted, centuries-old herbal formulas, tailor-made just for them. Then they try one. Yes, it may have licorice or cinnamon or mint. But the truth is, Chinese herbal formulas typically taste pretty intense. I try to explain the rationale, that it may be unpleasant, but that the bitter or astringent or sour flavors are medicinal. These formulas aren’t designed to taste good, they’re designed to effect positive change. And they do — they work wonders. There’s a Chinese saying, “the worse the herbs taste, the more benefit they bestow.” That’s hard for some folks to swallow.

MM: Do you think acupuncture has “come of age” in Ann Arbor? What are some of the advances you’ve seen and what are some of the challenges to its growth?

Cynthia Esseichick: I do. I see collaboration among mainstream physicians and alternative medicine practitioners, more integrative care for patients, which is fantastic. Challenges include educating people about how acupuncture works, what kinds of things can be treated, and overcoming the fear that it’s painful. Cost of care is another limiting factor. Why isn’t acupuncture a covered healthcare benefit? It’s effective, safe, and comparatively inexpensive.

MM: What are some of your interests outside of Oriental Medicine?

Cynthia Esseichick: I like to balance the quiet, intuitive, “yin” state of mind in which I work, with expressive, creative, or “yang” pursuits such as art and music. I’m a visual artist. I love opera. I spend time in nature. And I sing in the Ann Arbor-based band, Waynesboro.

MM: Great, thanks, Cynthia. It’s been a pleasure meeting you.

###

Cynthia Esseichick, Dipl. OM, LAc, MSTOM, is Nationally Board Certified in Acupuncture, Chinese Herbal Medicine, and Traditional Oriental Medicine. She founded Ann Arbor Healing Arts, LLC, in 1990, and three years ago relocated it to 325 E Eisenhower Parkway, Suite 1, Ann Arbor, MI 48108. For more information about her work, visit www.annarborhealingarts.com. To schedule an appointment, call (734) 761-5402 or email Cynthia Esseichick at a2healingarts@gmail.com.

Allowing Your Best Self to Shine Through: Marc Lerner on a Healthy Way to be Sick

Marc Lerner has been living with Multiple Sclerosis for 30 years. Now a resident of Ann Arbor, he runs the non-profit Life Skills Institute.

"The reality is that this wisdom that can help people deal daily with chronic illness is the same wisdom that's needed to be in love, to work, and to manifest the lives we desire to live. We all have those answers right here inside us, we just need to learn how to access them."

By Mary Runser
Photo by Joni Strickfaden

I was given the opportunity to interview Marc Lerner about the radio talk show he hosted called "A Healthy Way to be Sick." It ended up being less an interview and more a conversation between two new friends. At 60 years of age, Marc has been living with Multiple Sclerosis for 30 years. Now a resident of Ann Arbor, he runs the non-profit Life Skills Institute, which he founded in 1982, and teaches people experiencing health crises how to live happier and healthier lives. Our conversation flowed easily and smoothly as Marc expounded on his belief in the healing and transformative power of self-trust, a positive self-image, and self-love, even when our life experiences have been less than positive.

Having had several not so positive and even traumatic experiences of my own, I was fascinated by the ease with which Marc seemed to positively accept himself and his experiences. The differences his beliefs have made to him were apparent; he delights in his life. While our conversation focused on a healthier way of being sick for people dealing with chronic health issues, I realized that I could use this same approach, these very same ideas, and create a healthier way of living my own life. I'd heard everything he'd said somewhere before, but for some reason his words and his gentle nature reached into my heart, seizing on the truth that lay within. We both hope that as you read, you, too, will experience and take hold of the positive energy and acceptance that has the power to transform your thoughts and allow you to re-imagine and rebuild your life.

"In a health crisis, it is important to take control of the subconscious because it affects the healing process so significantly."

Detroit native Marc Lerner is back in his home state of Michigan after decades away. "I was born in Detroit, raised in Midland and managed to escape when I was about 20 years old. I lived in California mostly (and in some other parts of the country) for 35+ years, but came back here to the Ann Arbor area to be with my mother. Her time is short and I couldn't imagine anything more important than being with her, so I moved back here three years ago."

Marc was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis in March of 1981. "I totally freaked out because of my sudden loss of vision and inability to walk. Loss of vision was my first symptom, and amazingly, it was worse at that time than it is now. I'm legally blind, so I don't see things like most people do. I can see, but only very blurry images." MS forced him to look at the beauty of life through his spiritual eyes until his mental image of himself and his difficulties wholly meshed with what he saw on a spiritual level.

As a young man Marc began to seriously search, as many of us do, for that connection to his deeper spiritual part. "Through all of my searching and meditation — and I did it from my heart — nothing took me there or taught me how to access that part of myself or allowed me to really 'be in the moment' like MS has." According to Marc, MS has forced him to go inside himself to find the reservoir of strength and spirituality that not only gets him through the daily coping with a chronic illness, but also allows him to thrive and enjoy a full life.

For the last 28 years Marc has been working with veterans, AIDS patients, and those with physical disabilities and chronic diseases, teaching them how to use the lessons he's learned to find that spiritual connection and to live life in a way that is full and complete, without being completely dependent upon outside sources. He teaches that the strength and the answers we need are within each of us. Everybody has them; it's really a matter of some being able to access them more readily than others. "Really, it's very simple," Marc said. "The key is to breathe into silence rather than into your thoughts. We think that wisdom is in our thoughts, but really wisdom is more of a heart thing. The wisdom of the body resides in the silence beyond your thoughts." Breath as your focus was a concept Marc learned while taking Karate classes as a child. When you quiet the chatter within, move beyond your thoughts, and breathe into that silence, you can access the wisdom stored within your body.

Marc believes that the body is a tremendous reservoir of strength, spirituality, and wisdom, and within that reservoir are the answers to everything we need physically, spiritually, and emotionally. All we have to do is learn to follow the path to that wisdom. Sounds easy, doesn't it? "It's as easy as breathing," Marc said. "The reality is that this wisdom that can help people deal daily with chronic illness is the same wisdom that's needed to be in love, to work, and to manifest the lives we desire to live. We all have those answers right here inside us, we just need to learn how to access them."

"At this point in my life, I would rather deal with a chronic illness than not experience the quality of life I've experienced through having MS."

Marc's first step was determining that he was not going to live his life with a victim mentality or look outwardly for help. That decision forced him to look inside and change his inner environment, to clear the way through all the thoughts and clutter that fills the mind. "You know, right now 'the zone' is a concept popularized through sports, but there is a zone of healing, a zone of love, a zone of everything. Being in 'the zone' allows us to tap the inner resources we need to make change. We all have them; we just don't always use them."

The second key is learning to move beyond our thoughts and negative self-images. We've all learned to think negative self-thoughts and carry around negative self-images. Often these thoughts and images are imposed upon us by parents, teachers, ministers/religious leaders and other authority figures, until one day we simply begin to believe them, adopt them as our own, and they become so deeply ingrained within that we begin to live out those negative images in our everyday lives.

On the other side, there are also positive experiences and thoughts, things that make us feel as though we can do anything, things that make us feel very good and positive about ourselves. "We all have these, too. For some reason, though, as humans we tend to cling to the more negative things even though they're extremely self-defeating. When I'm working with individuals, I teach them to look at both of these experiences, recall how each one made them feel, and then give that feeling a name. Later, when they realize they're acting or reacting out of their negative character, they can stop and begin to consciously act out of their positive character. Just taking that moment to realize that we're acting out of a negative self-image and deciding instead to act from our positive self-image gets us immediately in 'the zone,' that space of silence beyond our thoughts. Once we are there, we can access our more positive nature, which allows us to truly be in the moment in our lives and in a particular situation where our very best self can begin to shine through and interact with the world around us in a positive and healthy way."

The proposition is that the unconscious mind is being consciously reprogrammed to support the healing process. "Most people try to attain wellness when they're sick through the thinking mind," Marc said. "The subconscious mind has a direct influence on the healing process, where the intellect symbolically relates to that process. Life skills such as our self-image, self-trust, and the way we relate to negative thinking are significantly influenced subconsciously. These skills can enhance or limit healing based on how they are conditioned. Normally they're conditioned through our past experiences, but they can be consciously re-conditioned if we follow an experiential path and turn them into habits. We walk through life focused on thinking and because of this we ignore the wisdom of the body...In a health crisis, it is important to take control of the subconscious because it affects the healing process so significantly. The focus of my work is to consciously condition the subconscious mind on the level of life skills we learned as we grew up."

Marc explained that it's difficult for handicapped people to date because the handicap is almost always a glaring issue, but he and Amy have never had that issue. He didn't feel bad about his handicap and she wasn't put off by it. "When we're together, neither of us is handicapped and it's the most amazing thing."

We're creatures of habit, and creating a habit of stopping to reflect on how we're reacting or how we should react cultivates trust in ourselves, especially when the outcomes are positive. This isn't a one-stop shop technique to health and happiness, but over the course of time, through repeated practice and repeated success, we begin to trust ourselves on a deeper level. "When we begin trusting ourselves and our positive nature that completely, it becomes so easy to move past all our thoughts into that space of silence beyond, where we can hear that voice of wisdom and knowledge in our bodies and begin to live healthier, happier lives, even when coping with chronic pain or illness. Creating this habit of self-trust helps us to become better partners with our physicians in an environment which allows us to speak openly and freely about the things we're experiencing, and then to decide together on a better or more appropriate health management path."

Turning patients into partners with their doctors is Marc's ultimate goal for the people with whom he works. Partnering with your doctor is about openly sharing your health issues, concerns, and desires for living your life as fully, completely, and happily as possible. These are the techniques that Marc has taught on his talk radio show "A Healthy Way to be Sick" featured on World Talk Radio. The show is not currently being broadcast, but all the segments are available on his website at www.lifeskillsinc.com, along with numerous articles he's written on a variety of health topics and links to other health-related resources.

While Marc primarily works with those who cope with chronic and often debilitating health issues, he's not solely focused on people with health crises. "What I teach these individuals can work for anyone," he said, "although sometimes it may be easier for those of us who are coping with serious health issues because we're already desperate to find something that works to help us feel less pain and help us to feel better. Desperateness can be a valuable thing. When we really want something, we have to be willing to let go of things that aren't serving us well and open up to something different. That's the point where we begin to access the wisdom of our bodies. That's where we find the purest form of love and the best of our creative abilities; that's where the quality of life comes from. One of my favorite quotes states that 'the quality of life does not depend on the health of your body, it depends on your focus,' and that is so true."

After having practiced this technique for 30 years, Marc is able to move into 'the moment' or 'the zone' frequently and with ease. "In a way, it's like being in a very narrow corridor which is the path that leads me beyond my thoughts into that space where the silence exists and my body's wisdom can speak what it needs."

Marc doesn't offer this approach as a miraculous cure for the physical conditions of the body. "Obviously, I still have MS and I have physical limitations. MS attacks and damages the nervous system, so any area of the body that has nerves, which is pretty much everything, can be affected and compromised. As I said earlier, I'm legally blind, so I can't see like other people do, but I can see. I can't walk like everyone else, but I can walk and exercise."

Today, Marc is in a wheelchair unless he is exercising by walking up twelve flights of stairs while holding on to the rail. He cannot read or make out faces, and he admits to experiencing more pain since having brain surgery last year. "The last year has definitely been more difficult," Marc said. "It's been the first year that I've experienced pain with MS. There is a benefit to that — you have to go deeper to even cope with the pain, so when you find that depth, the pain seems to be a little bit distant. It can still hurt, but it's tolerable...Sometimes I'm still trapped by my thoughts, but if I can keep my focus on something attractive or pleasing to me, that helps distract me from thoughts about what parts of my body don't work very well and helps me with the pain in a more positive way. At this point in my life, I would rather deal with a chronic illness than not experience the quality of life I've experienced through having MS. My physical vision is bad, but it gives me an advantage in being able to practice inner reflection that many healthy individuals have difficulty with."

Recently, Marc joined with Amy Rosenberg in a commitment ceremony. Amy was raised in Great Neck, New York, and has lived in southeastern Michigan for decades. They met at a Passover dinner. Marc saw her walking with a cane and, since he uses a wheelchair, decided they could become good friends. "Over 20 years ago, when she was still quite young, she had a stroke which left her with some physical difficulties." Marc explained that it's difficult for handicapped people to date because the handicap is almost always a glaring issue, but he and Amy have never had that issue. He didn't feel bad about his handicap and she wasn't put off by it. "When we're together, neither of us is handicapped and it's the most amazing thing. It's the most comfortable and loving connection I've ever experienced and she's the most wonderful woman I've ever known."

"I'll say it again. This is something anyone can do. It's simply a matter of letting go of the negative thoughts and images that don't serve you well, breathing into the silence that exists beyond your thoughts, and then listening to the wisdom of your body. It takes practice to create the habit of looking to your positive thoughts and images, but once that habit is established, it becomes easier and easier to slip into 'the moment' and hear the wisdom that's being spoken. That moment opens us up to the deeper wisdom within, allowing us to live creatively, to love purely, and allows our hearts to manifest. It's a truly beautiful gift."

Marc Lerner is the president of the non-profit Life Skills Institute. To view his work, listen to archived radio shows, and discover the silence beyond thinking, visit www.lifeskillsinc.com. On Wednesday, January 18, 2012, at X:XX x.m., he will conduct a free tele-seminar that leads participants through his key techniques for learning to change your inner reality and interpret your reality differently. To hear this tele-seminar, call (218) 862-7200, then key in the Bridge Line, 736052.

BeAyurvedic way of life

Beayurvedic Wellness Center
Dr. Beena Vesikar. M.D. (Ayurveda- India)

Ayurvedic wellness consultations, Therapies, Panchakarma, Products, Yoga, Pranayam and Workshops on healthy living.

23023 Orchard lake road, Bld-G, Farmington MI 48336, Contact – 248-631-7271
www.beayurvedic.com

20% Off
Initial consultation
With this ad
Exp. 4/30/2012

Drawing the Buddha's Sublime Form

Buddhist Artist Rob Davis on Internalizing the Image of the Buddha in Tantric Art

Chenrezig,
Lord of Compassion

Buddha Shakyamuni with proportional grid, ink

In the Vajrayana lineages of Buddhism it is known that images of Buddhas, their perfect, luminous, and empty form, contain the wisdom of the teachings.

While this practice can lead to the creation of thangka paintings, it is also an active form of contemplation and meditation, a cultivation of awareness centered in the sublimity of the Buddha's image.

Buddha Shakyamuni in Robes in Pureland, ink

By Rob Davis

Since its founding in 1990, the Tsogyelgar Dharma Center on West Liberty has steadily become a treasure to behold in Ann Arbor. In our May thru August 2010 issue (available on our archive at crazywisdom.net), we featured the developments that were transforming this Vajrayana Buddhist community's farm property, including the construction of amazing gardens, a mirror hut, and tantric murals. Rob Davis is the Buddhist artist who created those spectacular murals. Here he shares the conventions, artistry, and beauty of his process.

In 2006, I had the great fortune to meet Traktung Rinpoche in Ann Arbor. I attended a retreat where Rinpoche taught practices of the Nyingma Lineage. These included meditation on "deities," such as the image of the Buddha. In the Vajrayana lineages of Buddhism it is known that images of Buddhas, their perfect, luminous, and empty form, contain the wisdom of the teachings. They are not signs. They are living symbols, the teachings in themselves. I was inspired as an artist to serve the beauty of Traktung Rinpoche's teachings and the place of art in these practices.

The principle practice of learning to paint deities according to the master thangka painter Pema Rinzin is Drawing and Inking the Buddha. I learned to draw and ink the Buddha during a three-year period of training with Mr. Rinzin in New York. At that time, Mr. Rinzin was the first Artist-in-Residence at the Rubin Museum of Art.

↔
The artist's internalization of the proportions of the Buddha is thus only the beginning of making art.

Learning to draw and ink the Buddha is a practice given from teacher to student. It is a living lineage of artistic transmission. While this practice can lead to the creation of thangka paintings, it is also an active form of contemplation and meditation, a cultivation of awareness centered in the sublimity of the Buddha's image.

What is Drawing the Buddha? The painting traditions from the Tibetan regions are known for their use of 'grids.' These grids are guides to the proportions and contours of the Buddhas. They are largely training guides for students. Thus, the presence of the Buddha as the central proportion is the sacred origin of this art and the grid is a tool through which we understand this. Like any other tradition of conventions, the art does not achieve sacredness or beauty simply by following the grids. Conventions are limitations as much as they are useful for learning. The artist's internalization of the proportions of the Buddha is thus only the beginning of making art.

The grid for Buddha Shakyamuni is based on the unit measurement of twelve. This unit is the Buddha's face proportion. All the other proportions are based in this unit. To copy Buddha, one must pay close attention to the Buddha's form within the grid. The image one copies is Buddha Shakyamuni, the image of the Buddha at the moment of enlightenment, painted by one's teacher. His right hand is in the "earth touch mudra" and his left holds a bowl of nectar. His eyes, deep in samadhi, express the limitless compassion and indestructible wisdom of the enlightened state. Every line in the image is essential, expressing delicacy and grace. The first image a student begins is the Buddha without robes. This initial image is a harmonious simplicity that becomes the basis of all forms in general and all male figures in particular. Tara is the basis of all female forms. After drawings are made, one is ready to ink with a brush. This is the formal basis of the thangka craft: the use of the brush.

"The mind is in the line," Pema Rinzin once said, and much of the unique aesthetic achievements of Tibetan art are found in its line use. Each form in a finished thangka finds its completion with expressive outlines. The cultivation of line quality is the student's main task. To make a line fine and precise, while also being free and uncontrived, is the sign of mastery. This is achieved by inking numerous Buddhas. The cultivated use of the brush in this manner is tremendously rewarding and joyful, creating a deep connection between one's perception and one's action. It is thus a practice of mindfulness. The brush teaches one to see how each moment requires complete awareness and relaxation. In inking the Buddha, one becomes aware of the interrelatedness of each element: the drawing, the ink, the brush, and the work of the hand. This observed practice thus translates to all other creative disciplines. It teaches the student to become aware of every element that is being utilized, including one's attention. It is thus universal in its application. It is a form of impersonal training and submission, which, when mastered, allows the artist to express specificity and individuality.

Manjushri, Buddha of Wisdom

Prajnaparamita, "Perfection of Wisdom," Mother of All Buddhas

↔
The brush teaches one to see how each moment requires complete awareness and relaxation.

While the subtleties and disciplines of Drawing the Buddha were given by my painting teacher Pema Rinzin, Traktung Rinpoche taught me the implication and profundity of this practice: "To contemplate the form of the Buddha purifies negative karmas of the senses and to draw Buddha purifies similar karmas of the hands." According to Buddhism, Buddha Nature, the awakened state, is the natural state of every being. Thus the image of the Buddha is the image of every person's true nature. This was Buddha Shakyamuni's teaching at the moment of enlightenment: "How amazing, how marvelous that all beings have been, since the beginning, Buddha." This moment is the image we draw of the Buddha.

Rinpoche teaches that a human being is composed of many organs of knowledge, many centers of perception, and that contemplation of sublime forms such as Buddha, particularly through aesthetic creation, cultivates higher impressions. These impressions make integration of these 'organs' possible. The integration of organs of knowledge into a single whole, deepened as they are by aesthetic beauty, make meditation, and thus, true knowledge possible. To internalize the Buddha through this work, then, is not simply a rote task for making paintings, but a form of meditation that enriches our capacities as human beings to know ourselves. To internalize the image of the Buddha, of Tara, of Manjushri, is thus to engage one's own true nature directly and to become sensitive to the ability to know this fact.

Not only do we train ourselves to make this image for others, we train ourselves in the meditative ability to become the image of our own highest aspiration: wisdom and compassion, the Buddha. In the simple practice of Drawing the Buddha, we steep our minds in an image of enlightened qualities — qualities we intuit are our actual natures. Drawing the Buddha also creates one other simple form of enjoyment easily missed in our culture of action based on fun — pleasure — the pleasure of aesthetic discipline. To find facility with the brush, making the sinuous lines of the Buddha's form, is pleasurable. I now teach this practice at venues in Ann Arbor, including the University of Michigan Museum of Art. It is extremely beneficial for all artists and equally beneficial for people who want to train in focus, mindfulness and meditation.

Rob Davis is an artist and art teacher. In 2008, under the guidance of his teacher Traktung Rinpoche, he painted the Tsogyelgar Murals in Ann Arbor, where he now lives. Rob studied thangka painting with Mantang lineage master Pema Rinzin in New York City. He can be reached at robdisabi@gmail.com. To learn more about Tsogyelgar or to plan a trip to see the murals, visit tsogyelgar.org. For more information on Rob Davis's classes, visit the UMMA Workshops Calendar on www.annarborartcenter.org.

Siberian Buddhism, Siberian Shamanism and the Politics of Memory — Karl Pohrt Interviews Anthropologist/ Filmmaker Anya Bernstein

U-M Assistant Professor of Anthropology Anya Bernstein

“For 70 years, during the Soviet era, religion and many of the traditional practices were suppressed in this region...They believed cultures and peoples should have traditions, but not religions...And when the Soviet Union fell apart, people could remember again. But was there anything to remember?”

By Karl Pohrt
Photo by Susan Ayer

Anya Bernstein arrived in Ann Arbor a year and a half ago. She is a cultural anthropologist and documentary filmmaker, and she teaches Anthropology and Asian Cultures at the University of Michigan. She is a Postdoctoral Fellow in the University of Michigan’s Society of Fellows and a U-M Assistant Professor of Anthropology. She grew up in Russia, attended Moscow State University, received an M.A. in Visual Anthropology from the University of Manchester and a Ph.D. in Anthropology from New York University. She also holds an undergraduate degree in Linguistics from Georgetown University. She has worked and studied in Russia, England, France, India, and the U.S. while conducting multiple research trips to both North and South Asia for her fieldwork and films. Her two films have been screened at film festivals around the world. For information on her films, see www.der.org/films/in-pursuit-of-siberian-shaman.html and www.der.org/films/join-me-in-shambhala.html. This past fall she taught a course entitled “The Anthropology of Death and the Afterlife.”

Karl Pohrt: You have made two films that explore religious behavior in the Russian Republic of Buryatia, which borders on Lake Baikal in Southern Siberia. Join Me In Shambhala (2002) is a film about Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche, a Tibetan Lama who lives in Buryatia, and his attendant Tenzin Tsering. In Pursuit of the Siberian Shaman (2006) is a documentary on Valentin Khagdaev, a Buryat Shaman. Why did you pick these subjects? Do you have a personal interest in these specific religious expressions?

Anya Bernstein: As an anthropologist I have a very broad interest in the human condition and in the ways people make meaning in their lives. I’ve always thought religion was an interesting avenue into that. I am interested in the specific case of Buryatia and the issue of memory. Buryats are an indigenous people who have lived in southern Siberia for many centuries. They have been incorporated into various large state projects. Some of them were part of the Mongolian Empire. Later they became part of the Russian Empire and more recently the Soviet Union.

For 70 years, during the Soviet era, religion and many of the traditional practices were suppressed in this region. A lot of Buryats — counter to what people might imagine now — embraced Communist values. They embraced the Communist ideology. There was a lot of social engineering done with memory. They were first told to forget their culture. Then they were told to remember certain parts of it but not others. The Soviets liked the idea of ethnic diversity. They believed cultures and peoples should have traditions, but not religions. They suppressed not just Shamanism and Buddhism, but also Russian Orthodoxy, Islam and Judaism. Everything. And when the Soviet Union fell apart, people could remember again. But was there anything to remember? I was really interested in what happened to all of these pieces of shattered ideologies.

The indigenous Siberians in Buryatia are very different in northern and southern Siberia. Northern groups are closer to Inuits, while in the south there live Mongolian and Turkic groups. Buryats see themselves as part of this great Mongolian civilization. And they have been Buddhists for a few centuries, which is a source of pride. By the time I made these films they had experienced 70 years of socialism and then 10 years of capitalism. What happened to all these ideologies? Obviously, religion was resurgent. I wanted to see how it all played out. I was interested in how these people create meaning in their everyday lives, in everything from financial to existential and personal issues.

“Even the highest incarnate Lamas have to recognize the local spirits. He’s the highest Lama in Buryatia because he is a Tibetan incarnate Lama, but if you can’t establish peaceful relationships with the local spirits you don’t have legitimacy in Buryatia.”

— Anya Bernstein on Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche and the interconnectedness of Shamanism and Buddhism in Siberia

Karl Pohrt: Do you see Shamanism as a world religion? It seems to me that in the West the public’s interest in Shamanism is connected to our sense that something crucial is missing or broken in our relationship with the powers inherent in the natural world. The problem — or at least I see it as a problem — is that there isn’t a cultural context for Shamanism in the urban West.

Anya Bernstein: There are some Buryat Shamans who would like to say that Shamanism is a world religion because this advances a certain political position. Anthropologists usually don’t want to claim that Shamanism is a religion, but that is a point of academic and semantic debate. Shamanism is a Siberian phenomenon. It has its roots in Paleolithic Siberian cultures, in hunting and gathering societies, but it's such a malleable practice. It has been transformed and it's evolved with every political, social, and cultural regime that's swept through this area.

Then there is Mircea Eliade's famous definition that Shamanism is an archaic technique of ecstasy. That's a very narrow definition. Shamanism is much more than that. Eliade wrote that Shamanism is characterized by flight to the spirit worlds, that magical flight is a quintessential feature of Shamanism. However, it has been shown in many cultures, including those in Buryatia, that it's the spirits that come to the people. I would prefer to define Shamanism very loosely. To me, a Shaman is a person who communicates with the supernatural to benefit the community. It's very much a community phenomenon.

Right now Shamanism is embedded in the global forces of politics, tourism, the media, and indigenous rights. If Shamans in Buryatia want to represent Shamanism as a world religion, it is because it serves a very particular purpose for them. They live in the contemporary world and if they want to be recognized, they must have sacred sites. They need to form associations. It is said that in ancient times Shamans used to engage in violent spiritual warfare with each other, but now they form associations. They need to get some legal status if they want to establish their legitimacy. They don't have temples, so a lot of Shamans would say, for example, "Look at this rock. This is our temple. We don't go into a church and desecrate it. You must help us protect this sacred rock."

And Shamanism is also absolutely about place. This is essential. Much more than magic flying, Shamanism is about the relationship with place and with the local spirits. That's why a lot of Shamans have made such good allies with environmentalists by joining the global environmental movement.

In traditional communities Shamanism is essentially a public phenomenon. It's not about self transformation. It's about using supernatural forces for practical goals, to help people. Shamans work as psychotherapists, as family counselors, and as healers among other things. I'm not really keen on arguing about definitions, but in the West what we call Shamanism is something quite different. Shamanism has become psychologized. Whatever you call this phenomenon, it is a kind of psychology that deals with self transformation. It's much more of an individualistic enterprise. It's about causing change in the self. So it's interiorized in that sense. It's not a religion, but more like a psychology. It also has a certain view of politics because it assumes that by inducing a change in the self, society will eventually be transformed.

I think that is what has happened in the West. In Siberia it's more about the community and meeting its specific and particular goals. For example, local people who come to Shamanic séances aren't interested in the trance experience. A lot of Westerners are really interested in trance and don't come for the experience of community.

However, there is this robust feedback loop. Siberian Shamans traveled to the U.S. to meet Native Americans and Western Shamans have traveled to Siberia. Michael Harner, the famous Western Shaman, went to Tuva and trained some Tuvan Shamans in the Western techniques and they enjoyed it. So there's a lot of cross-fertilization of ideas these days. It goes back and forth and there's a lot of imitation. I think that's normal. That's how culture is usually formed.

Karl Pohrt: You use the anthropological phrase local object ideology in a recent essay. Could you talk about local object ideology — investing the natural world or local objects with meaning — and Shamanism?

Anya Bernstein: I used the term in an article I wrote on Buryat Buddhism but it is also true for Shamanism. I was writing that Buryats have specific beliefs about sacred objects. They believe these objects have links to the intentions of previous famous Lamas. They don't just appear for no reason. Recently people have been finding sacred objects in the ground. Who knows why they appear where they do? There is no explanation except a magical one. They are always linked to famous Lamas who either lived or meditated in the place where the objects appear. Essentially this functions as a reconsecration of the landscape. The landscape was neutral but now it is Buddhist because someone found a so-called self-arisen image, a non-man-made image of a goddess or a god on a stone. It just revealed itself because this famous Lama in a past century meditated there and he actually planned it so the image would appear now.

I found this process structurally very similar to what happened in Tibet with the Terma or Treasure Texts. As Don Lopez has said, when Tibetans were no longer able to travel to India, they began to discover sacred texts buried in the local soil. Donald Lopez has written about this in The Tibetan Book of the Dead: A Biography.

What this means for a lot of Buryats is that Buddhism has really come back. It's found its place — like Shamanism, right? — in the land. Buryatia is not some secondary site linked to India through Mongolia through Tibet. Now it's actually the center of the Buddhist world (or so the argument goes). Buddhism is being revealed there right now. It's a process of continuous revelation.

KP: In Join Me In Shambhala you show a connection between Shamanism and Buddhism.

AB: Yes. Absolutely. They are very interconnected in Siberia, but especially in Buryatia. Since Buddhism was introduced to Buryatia by Tibetan and Mongolian Lamas in the late 17th century, relations have sometimes been hostile but usually they have mutually pollinated each other. Buddhism incorporated the local deities in Buryatia. The more orthodox Buddhists incorporated them into the lower ranks of the Buddhist hierarchy. It's the same thing that happened in Tibet. The more orthodox Buddhists will tell you that they converted the local spirits and made them into protectors of Buddhism. On the other hand, the local deities are really central in the lives of most people. It's not the transcendent ones that are central.

I was very interested in this when I made my first film with the Tibetan Lama in Buryatia because you could see that even the highest incarnate Lamas have to recognize the local spirits. He's the highest Lama in Buryatia because he is a Tibetan incarnate Lama, but if you can't establish peaceful relationships with the local spirits you don't have legitimacy in Buryatia. There is a ritual in the film where he makes an offering to the water spirits. They read Tibetan texts during the ritual because in Tibet they have similar spirits, but these are local Buryat spirits. They are not really trying to pacify them, but they just want to establish peaceful relations. They believe that the spirits are mischievous. These spirits can cause illness because they're not quite enlightened. They both give and take. They can cause good or bad things to happen.

Some of Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche's root teachers were Buryat Buddhists, which means he has these quasi-kinship links to his Buryat predecessors, because in Tibetan Buddhism the master-disciple relationship is often stronger than that between a father and son. So some people feel that Rinpoche has a little bit of Buryat in him. This has given him a certain legitimacy. Some Buryats believe that you really have to have some kind of special connection to the place. Not just any Lama can deal with the local spirits.

KP: Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche honors that special connection with the local spirits and yet at the same time — at the end of the film — he talks about Emptiness. I thought his speech is orthodox Mahayana Buddhism, straight out of the book. It is a beautiful speech.

AB: Yes. It is right out of the book. I was very interested in these Buddhist texts at the time I made the film. I prompted Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche to talk about Emptiness and he used very classic Buddhist images like phantom, a dream and a flash of lightning. These metaphors come from the Buddhist Sutras. Of course, he knows all of them by heart, so it was very easy for him to speak about it.

KP: At the end of the film we see Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche meditating in a field. Suddenly a train moves past, briefly interrupting our view of him.

AB: I was experimenting with montage techniques and juxtaposing the two different realities. Trains always appeared during my journey. At the beginning of my fieldwork, I took the famous Trans-Siberian train from Moscow to Siberia. Yeshe Lodro Rinpoche and Tenzin Tsering were meditating on the train at the start of the film. At the time, I thought it was strange that the Lamas were meditating in their train compartment. This was because I was a newcomer in the field ten years ago. I wanted Join Me In Shambhala to have a circular structure with images of trains at the beginning and the end of the film.

Continued on page 34

"Students were fascinated that Shamans are such a vital part of everyday life and that they are part of modernity...I think it took them a while to wrap their minds around it and view Shamanism not as something exotic and scholarly, but as something real and practical and vital. I think they got it."

— Anya Bernstein on teaching Shamans, Nomads and Commissars: Introduction to North Asia at University of Michigan

Karl Pohrt Interviews Anthropologist/ Filmmaker Anya Bernstein

Continued from page 33

KP: Recently you've written about Siberian Buddhism and necropolitics. In 2002, Buryat Buddhist monks exhumed the body of the last head Lama during the Russian Empire. According to witnesses, the Lama's body had not deteriorated and it was found sitting in a meditation position. This incident reminded me of that moment in The Brothers Karamazov when the Russian Orthodox monks speculate that Father Zosima's body would not decay after his death because he was so holy. It seems most religious cultures associate holiness with the purity of the body. The use of dead bodies to legitimate certain religious and political positions seems fairly universal.

AB: Of course, Buddhism has a very peculiar relationship with death. Death is one of the four main forms of suffering in Buddhist thought, along with birth, old age and sickness; and, therefore, one should aspire to overcome death. In the specific case of that Lama there are multiple rival theories about what happened to his body after his death. There is no consensus. Some people say he did not die at all, that he conquered death. There is this motif in Buddhism that you can conquer death. You can attain to the deathless, as they say. Some people believe he achieved that. Others think that he's in some kind of deep meditation state. Yet others say no, of course he did die, but he was such an advanced practitioner that he deliberately left his incorruptible body behind to benefit future generations, to inspire faith in these difficult transition times when Buddhism is being revived in Buryatia.

KP: You are a documentary filmmaker and an anthropologist. How do these very different vocations inform — or enrich — each other in your work?

AB: Well, I see the two as complementary. I actually started out as a visual anthropologist. I did a special program that trained anthropologists in how to make films because I was interested in combining both mediums. I see them both as ways of transmitting anthropological knowledge. However, they are very different mediums. They are complementary but each has its advantages and disadvantages. I think the films I make have essentially the same themes as my writing, but the films are much more narrative driven. They are much more visceral. They provide a certain kind of synesthetic experience that you don't get from writing. On the other hand, films are also not without their disadvantages. While they can show some of the non-verbal dynamics that don't really come through in a text, they can also be deceptive. A text is more analytic. You can explain certain things that are taken for granted in a film. You can unpack certain ideas in a text. Finally, of course, there is the question of audience. Academic writing usually has a small readership, whereas my films have been circulated pretty widely and that is very appealing to me.

The use of the camera in anthropological work has been really enriching for me. I used the camera as a point of entry in the field when I first arrived there as a student in visual anthropology. Everything I have done is contrary to the more orthodox rules of visual anthropology. I was taught that the field worker, the anthropologist, has to arrive in the field and spend many years with people, with the ethnic groups. They have to get used to you before you pull out the camera. Only then can you film.

Everything I have done — and a lot of people have done this recently — has been completely the opposite. When I arrived in a community, I would pull out the camera and this drew me into a chain of social relationships immediately. When you're holding a camera you are never a passive onlooker. Immediately it drives you into a kind of reciprocity because people are interested in the film. They might be able to use the film — which I encourage — for their own purposes.

In 2002, Buryat Buddhist monks exhumed the body of the last head Lama during the Russian Empire. According to witnesses, the Lama's body had not deteriorated and it was found sitting in a meditation position.

KP: There is a scene in Join Me In Shambhala that you must have shot through the front window of a car. We see horsemen racing in front of you. It's a beautiful moment, filled with kinetic excitement and great poetic energy. It evoked in me a sense that human beings are simultaneously living in multiple worlds at this moment in our history. This is the 21st century and here we are arriving in a small village of recently nomadic people. I thought this was something that couldn't be described as effectively in a narrative text. This was something a film could do much better.

AB: Exactly. It was just one of these serendipitous moments that you often encounter when filming. I was riding in the car and I knew I had to film it. When the Lama arrived in a village people wanted to honor the occasion so they would send out teenagers on horseback. This is one of the traditional sources of pride. Horse riding, archery and wrestling — these are called 'the three manly sports.' It was an impromptu ritual. They would send these horsemen to greet us. When we got out of the car they would serve us a fermented milk drink that was considered sacred food.

KP: You taught a course last winter at the University of Michigan called Shamans, Nomads and Commissars: Introduction to North Asia. How did your students respond to the material in the course?

AB: Students were fascinated that Shamans are such a vital part of everyday life and that they are part of modernity. These people who are so remote incorporate Shamanism as part of their everyday lives. I think it took them a while to wrap their minds around it and view Shamanism not as something exotic and scholarly, but as something real and practical and vital. I think they got it.

KP: You grew up in Moscow and you did graduate work in New York. What is your sense of Ann Arbor?

AB: I've lived most of my life in big cosmopolitan centers. I grew up in Moscow and spent a couple of years in France and England before coming to the U.S. And I lived in India and Siberia during my fieldwork. Ann Arbor is as cosmopolitan as any of the other places I've lived, but it's much smaller and that's really interesting to me. It's very exotic in its own way.

Michigan, especially Northern Michigan, looks more like Europe and Central Russia than anywhere else I've been in the U.S. I was really excited when I went to Northern Michigan to see birch trees, because Russia is all about birch trees. There are not as many of them in Ann Arbor, but here I can see trees and plants that I recognize.

The only thing I knew about Ann Arbor before moving here was that it was the center of Russian dissident publishing in the seventies. The Ardis Publishers printed books by Brodsky and a lot of the exiled and dissident Russian writers. This publisher had a great impact on my parents' generation. My mother and father would read these books. Ardis Publishers and Ann Arbor were always special for them.

KP: They read the Ardis books in Moscow? They didn't have trouble getting hold of these books?

AB: Ardis books were smuggled back into the Soviet Union, ironically, often by Soviet diplomats. Most people read them in hand-made copies. It became part of samizdat — illegal literature. A lot of stuff was banned, but people read it anyway. It was somewhat difficult to get hold of, but illegal literature was always circulated.

###

*Anya Bernstein's website is at: www.cinetrance.com.
The interviewer, Karl Pohrt, was the founder and long-time owner of Shaman Drum Bookshop, an Ann Arbor literary institution for 29 years.*

Further Reading on Siberia:

The Shaman's Coat: A Native History of Siberia, Anna Reid
Walker & Co. $13.00

An overview of the last 400 years of Siberian history from the perspective of the indigenous peoples of Siberia, with a chapter on the Buryat people.

Dersu The Trapper, V.K. Arseniew
McPherson & Co. $16.00

A memoir by a Soviet geographer working in the Russian Far East in 1906-1908 of his friendship with a hunter from the Goldi tribe. In 1975, the great Japanese director Akira Kurosawa teamed up with Soviet filmmakers to make Dersu Uzala, a feature film from the book that won an Academy Award.

The Reindeer People: Living With Animals and Spirits in Siberia, Piers Vitebsky
Mariner $26.95

A memoir by an anthropologist who lived with Eveny Reindeer Herders in northern Siberia during the late Soviet and post-Soviet eras. The term Shaman comes from the language group (Tungus) of the Eveny people.

The Chukchi Bible, Yuri Rytkeu
Archipelago Books $16.00

The Chukchi live on the northern edge of the Bering Sea, and the Chukchi author's grandfather was the last Shaman in his village. The Chukchi Bible, like Genesis, begins with the creation of the world, in this case brought about by Raven.

These books are available through Crazy Wisdom Bookstore

SREYASHI DEY, DANCING WITH TRADITION

Ishika and Kritika Rajan, depicting Kalki avatar, from an expressional dance piece, Dasavatar

“For me dance is a prayer, a meditation and an offering to the divine spirit. More than literally identifying with the gods and goddesses whose stories I am dancing, it is a personal connection with the divine principle.”

Recreating Ancient Indian Spiritual Dances for Modern Audiences

By Sandor Slomovits

Sreyashi Dey is head of Marketing and Communications at the University of Michigan's North Campus Research Complex, but she is also a highly skilled practitioner of Indian classical dance. With her dance company, Srishti Dances of India, she has performed around the area and across the country. Sandor Slomovits spoke with Sreyashi and her seventeen-year-old identical twin daughters, Kritika and Ishika — who are fine dancers in their own right — about this ancient art form and their personal connection to it.

Sreyashi Dey: The dance form that we perform is called Odissi, and it's one of eight styles of Indian classical dance. This dance style is from the eastern part of India, from a state called Orissa. The origins of this style can be traced back to two thousand years ago. That's not to say that what we see today is exactly how it was two thousand years ago. It's undergone many changes. Back then, it used to be performed in the temples, by women who were dedicated to the temples, to just sing and dance for the gods. It was a form of worship, and its roots were very deep, spiritual. There were rituals associated with symbolically waking up the gods by singing, and then during the meals that were offered, then during the evening worship, and finally at night, almost like singing the gods to sleep.

In parallel to this, especially during the colonial time, which was about two hundred years and ended in 1947, in that time these traditions came under a lot of negative attention, and got a bad name. In parallel there was this other tradition that came up, of young boys who dressed up as girls, and they performed this very acrobatic form of dance, outside of the temples, in a non-spiritual context.

Sandor Slomovits: As performance?

Sreyashi Dey: Yes, as performance.

Sandor Slomovits: Did the earlier form also have a performance aspect? Did worshippers watch the dancers?

Sreyashi Dey: No, it was inside the temples and it wasn't really for the public. So there were these two traditions and, after India's independence, the teachers and dancers and scholars got together and wanted to cleanse the form of all the different elements that had crept into it because of neglect, and they wanted to recreate it and reconstruct it, based on the traditional texts. So they looked at the traditional texts, they looked at the temple sculptures and at the two remaining traditions, and they recreated the dance form that you see today.

Indian classical dance is very regional, which means that even though all the styles trace their origins to very ancient texts and techniques prescribed in those texts, they all have a very regional flavor and they're based on regional literature and poetry and language. Even in the body language, there is a very large variation in India from one region to another, and the regional styles are reflective of the culture of that region. Even though some of the mythology is common to all, and some of the older texts are common to all, the lyrics would be sung in a regional style of music and the movements would be reflective of the regional style.

In the 1950s, dance slowly became a performance art, it came more to the proscenium stage, and it became suitable for an evening-length performance.

Sandor Slomovits: Just women dancers, or women and men?

Sreyashi Dey: Women and men.

Sandor: Dancing together?

Sreyashi: Both. Dancing together and separately. More women than men, but in the case of Odissi that is something that has changed. There are more men in recent years, which is a very good trend because it used to be very difficult for men to support themselves as performing artists only. The teachers are almost always all men, but there was less support from the audiences for men as dancers. They wanted to see more women. Now that trend is changing. It's not equal yet, but there are definitely more men now who are dancers.

Initially, the whole repertoire was one long piece. In the 1950s, when it was first developed, the whole repertoire was one hour-long piece. Then, to accommodate the needs of the present times, and shorter audience attention spans, it was broken into shorter pieces, while still keeping the

Continued on page 36

SREYASHI DEY, DANCING WITH TRADITION

Continued from page 35

Sreyashi Dey, in a pure dance/rhythmic piece, Pallavi

worship for the gods. Elaborate temple rituals included dance as an offering to the divine. The themes used in classical dance are derived from religious and spiritual texts over the centuries. The lyrics for the songs that accompany the dances are based on spiritual literature. The narrative for the dances, the themes, the music and the movements all reflect spirituality, which can't be separated from the dance.

For me dance is a prayer, a meditation and an offering to the divine spirit. More than literally identifying with the gods and goddesses whose stories I am dancing, it is a personal connection with the divine principle. After all these years of immersion in dance, I cannot separate what is technique and what is spiritual. It is all a part of a larger whole that is deeply beautiful and joyous.

Sandor: You were born in India?

Sreyashi: Yes.

Sandor: And you learned this form as a child?

Sreyashi: I started when I was seven. I actually started with another form of dance from Southern India and, when I was about seventeen, I switched over to Odissi. Then, when I was twenty-one I came over to the U.S. for grad school, but I continued studying, practicing, performing, and teaching.

Sandor: What did you study in grad school?

Sreyashi: I came to do my Ph.D. in economics.

Sandor: Here at the UM?

Sreyashi: No, it was at Purdue. I finished a master's in economics there and later I did an M.B.A. Instead of one Ph.D., I ended up with two graduate degrees. (Laughter)

Sandor: Was there a history of dance in your family? Did either of your parents dance?

Sreyashi: No. I grew up in Delhi, and the kind of family background I came from, and in my circle of friends and family, nobody is into dance or music as a profession. I studied dance the way girls here would study ballet. Girls would go to classes, moms would take them, and they would have recitals every year.

Sandor: Did you ever have aspirations to be a dancer as your full-time work?

Sreyashi: Yes, I did actually. Around the time I was starting college, I was seriously thinking about being a professional dancer. But my parents kind of talked me out of that.

“...Even though all the styles trace their origins to very ancient texts and techniques prescribed in those texts, they all have a very regional flavor and they're based on regional literature and poetry and language.”

Ishika and Kritika Rajan, depicting Kurma avatar, from an expressional dance piece, Dasavatar

“The origins of [the Odissi dance] style can be traced back to two thousand years ago... There were rituals associated with symbolically waking up the gods by singing, and then during the meals that were offered, then during the evening worship, and finally at night, almost like singing the gods to sleep.”

traditional elements. One kind of dance is more rhythmic — what they call pure dance — which is based on the melody of the music, and is just reflective of the joy of movement and follows the structure of the melody, and the development of the song. The other kind is more storytelling, through facial expressions.

Sandor: Is it accurate to say that Odissi still has a spiritual component?

Sreyashi: Oh, definitely, because the texts that are used are still very ancient texts. One of the main texts that's used in Odissi for the storytelling pieces is from the twelfth century. The mythology is also very old. It's entirely spiritual.

Sandor: How is spirituality integrated into the dances?

Sreyashi: Spirituality is an essential element in Indian classical dance. Born out of spiritual impulses since ancient times, it was used as a means of

We support your path to lasting health and vitality.

LINDA BERRY, D.C.
KATHLEEN DVORAK, D.C.
Chiropractic Physicians

RENÉE RUTZ, R.P.P.
LISA FOX-DEL ZOPPO
KIRSTEN MOWREY
Massage Therapy • Polarity Therapy
Craniosacral Therapy • Lymph Drainage
Trager® Approach

2020 HOGBACK RD, SUITE 7
ANN ARBOR, MI 48105
734.677.1900
www.CCBTherapies.com

“One kind of dance is more rhythmic — what they call pure dance — which is based on the melody of the music, and is just reflective of the joy of movement...The other kind is more storytelling, through facial expressions.”

Sandor: That was going to be my next question. (Laughter)

Sreyashi: Yes, they said, “Oh, we think you need to go to college.” Not that I wasn’t going to go to college. That was not an option, but they were talking beyond that. They said it was going to be hard to be just a performing artist, and why not think of it as a parallel thing that you do? I guess I let myself be persuaded by that.

At this point in our conversation, Sreyashi’s seventeen-year-old identical twin daughters, Kritika and Ishika, joined our conversation. They both graduated from Pioneer High School in 2011 and are now attending the University of Michigan.

Sandor: How long have you been dancing with your mom?

Kritika: (Addressing her mother) Since we were the same age you were, six or seven?

Sandor: Is it just the three of you who dance together?

Sreyashi: No, I do have a couple of other students who perform with us on a regular basis and we’ve also had visiting artists from India who I’ve performed and toured with.

Sandor: Are either of you interested in pursuing this as seriously as your mom has?

Kritika: It’s tough. I guess right now we want to pursue it as much as we can. We’ll have to see as we go forward, though, how much school is going to get in the way, or how jobs get in the way. But as of right now, we’re definitely interested in keeping up with it as much as we can.

Sandor: Some twins never want to be apart, while others want as much space as possible once they grow up. (Laughter) You see where I’m heading with this, right?

Ishika: I think we’re pretty close. Like any siblings, we have our moments. (Laughter)

Kritika: I think we’re both looking forward to college a little bit just because we’ll be separated a little more than we are already. We spend a lot of time together now and we both kind of want to see what it’s going to be like to not be together, like every moment. But at the same time, because we’re both going to the same school, the other person is still right there.

Sreyashi: They might actually end up being in the same dorm. But they won’t be in the same room.

Sandor: Where do you give performances these days?

Sreyashi: Actually, more often outside of Ann Arbor than locally. I used to have a pretty active touring schedule, performing all over the U.S. Every year it would be about ten to fifteen cities, and then we’d also perform in India and internationally, if not every year, then every other year.

The Ann Arbor community has great exposure to all kinds of art forms and the audiences here are really wonderful. Before moving to Ann Arbor, we lived in Pittsburgh and I had a more formal dance company, as a registered nonprofit organization, and it was much easier to get grants and get private foundation support and state support. That aspect pretty much went away when we moved here, because the state of Michigan is not supporting the arts anymore.

Sandor: How long have you lived in Ann Arbor?

Sreyashi: Since 2004.

Sandor: You didn’t come at a great time for Michigan. (Laughter)

Sreyashi: No. I think it’s difficult for a professional arts organization in

Continued on page 38

BODY BALANCE

promoting body awareness and balance

Julie Jeffery Peale, CHP, SMS | www.bodybalance4u.net

Hellerwork and Structural Medicine are innovative tools to work with some of the body’s most complex issues. Your work with me will be a collaborative effort to discover and treat the source of the pain and imbalance you’re experiencing. You’ll come away with better posture and body awareness, reduced pain and discomfort, increased flexibility and agility, and an improved sense of well-being.

MENTION THIS AD TO RECEIVE 50% OFF YOUR FIRST TREATMENT!

“Julie skillfully brings Hellerwork together with her knowledge of anatomy to create a customized treatment for her clients. I have found her work to be effective in helping some of my patients to experience relief from pain or postural deviation in their bodies. I have personally benefited from her outstanding work for many years.”

-Dr. Jay Sandweiss, DO Ann Arbor

708 W. Huron St., Suite 3 Ann Arbor, MI 48103 p. 734-395-6776

Bernadette S. Kovach Ph.D., PLLC Psychologist / Psychoanalyst

Everyone wants to be successful in his or her relationships at work, at home, and as a parent.

By providing a warm, safe environment I can help you identify the emotional barriers preventing you from reaching your desired goals.

As a psychoanalyst, I am dedicated to helping my clients listen to themselves and their children with the kind of empathy and compassion that leads to warmth, growth, and fulfillment.

199 N. Main Street
Suite 200
Plymouth, MI 48170
734.812.1157

SREYASHI DEY, DANCING WITH TRADITION

Continued from page 37

Ann Arbor. There's this two-fold aspect. The audiences are great, they're very interested, and a lot of people are very knowledgeable not just about the art form, but also about the cultural context, because they're into different religions and spirituality, and yoga. I'm not talking just about India; it's that way with other cultures as well, with similar levels of interest and exposure. The audiences are very welcoming, so that aspect is great. At the same time, there isn't enough support. Especially after having moved to Ann Arbor, I'm very glad that this is not the only thing I do. Because if I was hoping to support myself or my organization through external support like that, it would be difficult here. Lately, rather than just traditional straight-up performances, I'm doing more work with other artists, with photographers and writers, in venues that are not just large theaters, such as the UM Museum of Art and the UM Lydia Mendelssohn Theater.

Sandor: You still have family in India.

Sreyashi: Yes. We've gone to India, if not every year, then every other year, for sure. My daughters have also studied dance in India. There's always been that connection.

Ishika: Dancing is definitely the biggest part of Indian culture we were immersed in, the biggest part of Indian Sreyashi Dey in a rhythmic or pure dance piece called Pallavi. There is no story interpreted through this dance. However, the joy of movements and the accompanying music is apparent. Unfolding at a slower pace, it builds up to a fast paced climax at the end.

“...After India's independence, the teachers and dancers and scholars got together and wanted to cleanse the form of all the different elements that had crept into it because of neglect, and they wanted to recreate it and reconstruct it, based on the traditional texts.”

culture that we've been a part of.

Sandor: So if they said to you, “We want to dance professionally,” what would you say? (Laughter)

Ishika: You would actually say the same thing your parents did.

Sreyashi: Yes, I would say the same thing. (Laughter)

Kritika: But, I think if I wanted to take a year off and go to India and study and perform, you'd be OK with that.

Sreyashi: I'd be very happy with that.

###

Sreyashi Dey, with Ishika and Kritika Rajan and Debnita Talapatra, will present the dance performance “Language of Mudra” as part of the U-M LSA Language theme semester at the U-M Residential College's Keene Theatre on Tuesday, January 10, 2012; it starts at 7 p.m. Admission is free. For more information, go to www.srishtidances.com. The website for the performance is: <http://language.lsa.umich.edu/event/language-of-mudra/>

...to a mountain
the pebble grows.

I believe that within each of us is a drive toward wholeness and unitive reality.

My practice is grounded in professional, real-world experience.

- Transpersonal / Spiritual Psychology
- Reiki / Energy Sessions
- Workshops & Classes

Arammai Services

www.arammai.com

Mara Evans, MTP: mara@arammai.com

Karltta Zarley, RN, CHTP
Certified Healing Touch Practitioner

- * Essential Oils
- * Healing Touch Energy Work
- * Multidimensional, Intuitive and Transformational Healing
- * Spiritual Direction
- * Flower Essence Master Formulas
- * Colored Light Therapy
- * Workshop & Retreat Facilitator

Karltta Zarley, RN, CHTP
210 Little Lake Dr., Suite 7
Ann Arbor, MI 48103
(734) 433-9333
www.karltazarley.com

Step into Who You Really Are

Music Reviews

By Sarah Newland

Return of the Tiger cd By James Asher

Asher returns with a wonderfully dynamic new drumming cd featuring rhythms of energy and celebration. Unifying these ten tracks is the power of the drum, creating a spiritual force and emotional depth – an intensity Asher has created in all his cds since being first produced by Pete Townshend in 1979. This music is a journey inviting trance and connection and includes didgeridoo, bells, acoustic guitar, and keyboards.
$16.98 Shelved with Drumming Music.

Songs from Before cd By Fionnuala Sherry

This cd is a new recording from the violinist of the band Secret Garden. Her hope was to create a tribute to traditional Irish song, and includes many beautiful old airs – one dating from the 13th century. She worked with producer Kjetil Bjerkestrand to reflect the new and modern Ireland. While recording these songs, she discovered her grandfather was also a violinist and her mother still had copies of Irish folk tunes belonging to him. It is a lovely Celtic recording, primarily instrumental with some vocals.
$16.98 Shelved with Celtic Music.

Healing Sound Journey cd By Terry Oldfield and Soraya Saraswati

This cd is a magical journey of healing sound and music. It is a rich tapestry with flute, crystal bowls, strings, symphonic gongs, percussion, and voice that is deeply relaxing and peaceful. Oldfield is well-known for his nature recordings, featured in this composition to give a deep and profound sense of connection to the planet. These musicians travel the world to offer Healing Sound Journey workshops. Guests are invited to lie down and close their eyes, relax, and listen, experiencing directly the vibration of the music in a space of deep peace and relaxation. This form of music and sound healing is known to increase immune system activity, ease pain, lower blood pressure, reduce stress, and promote healing.

$16.98 Shelved in Meditation Music.

Reiki Om cd By Dean and Dudley Evenson

Eastern musical flavors soothe the soul and create a sacred ambience for energy healing. Chinese zither, tamboura, and Tibetan singing bowls blend with Dean Evenson's signature flutes and keyboard orchestrations. Harp, viola, and soft bass rhythms enhance the healing mood and resonate with recurring, soft tones of Om. During meditation, we chant Om to attune ourselves with the cosmic vibration to connect with the Universal Oneness of all life. This cd is a wonderful background to any Reiki treatment.

$15.98 Shelved with Reiki Music.

A3 Radio hosts Folkit!

A radio broadcast LIVE from Crazy Wisdom Bookstore and Tea Room

Every Sunday

in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room from 6:00 p.m. until 7:30 p.m.

Songs, stories and good vibes abound each Sunday when the talented musicians of A3 radio step up to the microphone.

Grab your favorite tea or coffee and join Little Tommy Saunders and the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room staff as they fill your Sunday evenings full of live music; featuring award winning songwriters who spin tales and sing tunes that speak to the past, present and future of folk in an environment that can only be described as unique and welcoming.

Bearing Witness –

The Story of a Holocaust Survivor's Journey from Escape to Being a Forensic Psychiatrist Specializing in Homicide

Emanuel Tanay, M.D., is the author of Passport to Life: Autobiographical Reflections on the Holocaust and Legal Injustice: Behind the Scenes with an Expert Witness

I do not use the word “evil” because it contains too much religious zeal and because it interferes with having empathy, even for one’s enemies, that might allow us to understand them and be ourselves survivors.

Interviewed by Richard Gull, Ph.D.
Photos by Joni Strickfaden

(Editors' Note: As we move further away from the mid 20th century, the history of the Holocaust may feel distant from our Ann Arbor lives. Yet we still have survivors of the Holocaust in our midst, and it remains powerful and affecting to hear from them — to hear their stories, and imbibe their wisdom. We were approached a few months ago by Richard Gull, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, University of Michigan, because he wanted to interview Dr. Emanuel Tanay for the Crazy Wisdom Journal. Knowing Richard Gull and having heard about Emanuel Tanay, we readily agreed.)

*Dr. Emanuel Tanay (his nickname is Emek) was born into a middle class Jewish family in a small town in Poland in 1928. Nazi Germany invaded Poland in 1939 and the extermination of the Jews began in 1942. His father procured a birth certificate giving Emek a non-Jewish name and allowing him to enter a Catholic monastery as a novitiate. After a year, one of his teachers strongly suspected that Emek was really a Jew, so he quickly left. He helped his mother, sister, and girlfriend escape from Poland to Hungary through Nazi occupied Europe. After the liberation, he returned to his hometown in Poland. He discovered that his father had been executed for hiding a Jew by Amon Goeth, head of the Plaszov labor camp (Goeth is portrayed in Schindler's List by Ralph Fiennes). Returning to Budapest, the family then went to Munich for six years. Emek received a medical degree and the family came to America. He tells this story in Passport to Life: Autobiographical Reflections on the Holocaust (2004). He then became a psychiatrist and an expert witness in murder trials. In a recent book, American Legal Injustice: Behind the Scenes with an Expert Witness (2010), he discusses his work on and views of high profile cases like Ted Bundy, Sam Sheppard, Jack Ruby, and John Hinckley.*

*In spite of his experiences in the Holocaust, Emek is optimistic about the future. He says: “Every survivor is a hero. Every survivor needed resourcefulness and the courage to endure. These attributes made them successful after the war.” Yet he warns of religions and ideologies that lead to hatred and genocidal killing. Why tell this story? To quote Eli Wiesel (from his book, And the Sea is Never Full): “Long ago, over there, far from the living, we told ourselves over and over that if we were to come out alive, we would devote every moment of our lives to denouncing by word and deed the cynicism and silence of mankind toward victims past and future.”*

Richard Gull: You are a survivor of the Holocaust. You tell your story in your 2004 book Passport to Life: Autobiographical Reflections on the Holocaust. You have also had a long and successful career as a forensic psychiatrist and expert witness in murder trials. You tell that story in your 2010 book American Legal Injustice: Behind the Scenes with an Expert Witness. You write: “My professional life was, for the most part, devoted to the study of people who killed someone; people who wanted to kill me dominated the early part of my life.”

Dr. Emanuel Tanay: That is correct, I am a survivor of the Holocaust. And maybe one should add that I am from Poland, because Poland was the killing grounds of Nazi Germany. In Eastern Europe that's where the Germans behaved without any kind of restraints.

Richard Gull: Wasn't there a greater percentage of the Jewish population wiped out in Poland than in Germany itself?

Dr. Emanuel Tanay: In Germany, itself, the percentage of German Jews killed was a proportionally small fraction of what happened in Poland. First of all, Poland had the largest number of Jews in the world, i.e., three and a half million. Germany at the highest point had maybe six hundred thousand Jews in a country of 60 million. Hitler encouraged emigration, so that by 1939, when the war started, there were only 200,000 Jews in Germany. By comparison, out of thirty-some million Poles, you had three and a half million Jews, more than ten percent of the population.

It took a teenager to take risks and do certain things that an adult was not up to. I arranged through various contacts for us to escape from occupied Poland to Hungary.

Richard Gull: You come from a small town in Poland named Miechow and your family was middle class.

Dr. Emanuel Tanay: My father was a dentist and my mother was a physician dentist. There was a distinction in Poland.

RG: September 1939 is when the Nazis came into Poland. What happened to you then?

ET: On September 1, 1939, Nazi Germany invaded Poland and within two weeks Poland was defeated. Most Jews attempted to flee, to go east, and my parents did, too. But the German army came from two directions. We had to return to our town. The extermination process did not begin until about late 1941.

RG: How did you become separated from your parents? How old were you?

ET: I was 14 years old when my mother, through an acquaintance, arranged for me to be accepted at a well-known monastery in Krakow, not as a Jew, but as a Pole. Polish Jews were not assimilated, unlike the German Jews, so it was very difficult for a Jew to pretend that he wasn't a Jew. But I came from an assimilated family, which meant that I spoke perfect Polish. It was the only language I knew at the time. I was already somewhat familiar with the Catholic practices. My father secured a birth certificate from a priest who was his patient. The birth certificate was in the name of Janek Wojcik. I entered the monastery under that name and studied for the priesthood.

RG: So what was that experience like for you?

ET: It was extremely difficult. I didn't know the prayers so I had to learn them. I was assigned to a choir but didn't know the songs, so I pretended by lip-syncing. Due to the constant danger of betrayal, my motivation to learn was quite high. I learned prayers in Latin, the history of the Church, and the Saints, and so on. But posing as another person was tricky. The birth certificate my father got was of a peasant boy my age who was born in a village. In Poland peasants spoke a peasant idiom, but I came from a cultured family and spoke a Polish that didn't go with my name.

A good friend of mine in the monastery, about my age, was, like me, named Janek (John in English). In Poland you didn't celebrate birthdays. Instead you celebrated Name's Day, the celebration day of the saint who is your namesake. I made the mistake one time of assuming that my Name's Day was when John the Baptist's day was celebrated (my friend's namesake), whereas John Chrysostom (my namesake) is a different date. I did not know that my patron saint was John Chrysostom. This confusion nearly revealed my true identity. Ironically, I now know more about Catholicism than Judaism.

RG: How did your time in the monastery end?

ET: One of my teachers in the monastery, a really dedicated anti-Semite, preached often how wonderful it was that the Germans were getting rid of our Jews. After a year in the monastery (it was 1943), he approached me and asked me some questions and then corrected my pronunciation. And that was like a siren going off: he suspected, or knew, that I was a Jew. That very night I was afraid to sleep in my room, so I hid in the big bellows of the church organ. Incidentally, that whole episode was depicted in a documentary called Courage to Care, which was nominated for an Oscar. I escaped from the monastery and then lived on the run. I helped my mother, little sister, and my girlfriend, Gina (who now lives in Israel), escape from Poland. It took a teenager to take risks and do certain things that an adult was not up to. I arranged through various contacts for us to escape from occupied Poland to Hungary.

RG: So your family saved you by getting you into the monastery and now you are the one helping family members and your girlfriend to escape. But in the meantime what happened to your father?

ET: My father was educated in Vienna and spoke perfect German. He was placed in a labor camp located at the Nazi Air Force base. He had a dental office in the labor camp and treated not only the Poles who worked there but also the Germans. This was contrary to Nazi principles: a Jew was forbidden bodily contact with an Aryan. It was called Rassenschande, meaning race contamination. But they had no choice since they didn't have a dentist. For a Jew to be touching a German and working on his teeth was unheard of.

I am not religious, nor were my parents religious. Even when I was in great danger, I did not turn to a higher power.

My father had a dental assistant named Leon Storch. Leon developed typhus. A Jew who suffered typhus was "treated" by a bullet to the head. So my father hid Leon in his office and didn't report his illness. A Gestapo man, Amon Goeth (portrayed in Schindler's List by Ralph Fiennes), was in charge of all the Jews in the Krakow area. When Goeth discovered that Leon suffered typhus, he shot him on the spot. He then wanted to kill my father, but the head of the Air Force base, who had the rank of Major, ordered Goeth, who was a Captain, to leave my father alone. When this Major went on vacation, Amon Goeth came to the Air Force base, picked up my father, and took him to the Plaszow labor camp. He executed my father in front of the whole camp.

RG: So you went with your mother, sister, and girlfriend Gina from Poland to Hungary? What was the journey like?

ET: It was a real exploit. We had to cross the Tatra Mountains. As I said before, it took a teenager to function under these circumstances. At one point we had to cross a road and encountered a German patrol with dogs. Our guides, who were mountain people, escaped quickly. It seemed we had no chance of escape, but I noticed a ravine with a stream. I quickly pushed mother, sister, and Gina into the stream. Because I had read Karl May, who wrote about American Indians, I knew that walking upstream would prevent the dogs from finding us. The mountain people were conscientious enough to return the next day searching for us. To make a long story short, we made it to Hungary. That is where we were ultimately liberated in January 1945. Hungary at that time was like a paradise for Jews until March 1944 when the Germans occupied Hungary.

"Emek" Tanay and his wife, Sandra, have been married for 41 years.

Continued on page 42

Anita Rubin-Meiller, L.M.S.W.
Integrative therapy
for Body, Mind and Spirit
 Phone: 734-332-0669
 Email: anita1018@sbcglobal.net
 1935 Pauline Blvd., Suite 200
 Ann Arbor, MI 48103

Bearing Witness –

Continued from page 41

RG: After the liberation you returned to your home in Poland seeking your father. What was the journey back to Poland like?

ET: Yes, I returned to my hometown. I rode on roofs of freight cars by tying myself to protrusions. I came searching for my father. I didn't know that he had been murdered until I returned. People who knew didn't tell me right away. Returning to Poland after the war was dangerous for a Jew. You have to keep in mind that in Poland there was tremendous anti-Semitism. The hatred of the Jews was so intense that it is difficult for an American to imagine. For example, when I was on false papers in Poland, a German couldn't distinguish me from a Pole. But a Pole might. When I came back to my hometown, our neighbor, Mrs. Wroblewska, begged me not to stay overnight, because they would kill me if I did. Many Jews were killed when they went back. This hatred of the Jews continued into the post-war communist era in Poland. Before the war, Jews were often accused of being communists; in the communist era, they were often accused of being capitalist sympathizers and were expelled. I resumed my false identity. I pretended not to be a Jew again. I returned to Budapest.

RG: So you were liberated in Budapest. Where did you go after you were liberated?

The turning point in my forensic career came when I was asked to be an expert in the Jack Ruby case on a retrial (Ruby murdered Lee Harvey Oswald).

ET: I heard that in the occupied Germany there was now American zone, French zone, English zone. The American zone of Germany was the biggest. We went to Munich. It is bizarre, but we were perfectly safe in Germany and were given a place to live right away. There were displaced person camps, but my mother, sister, and I were not in one. The point is that no country wanted us. You couldn't go to United States; you couldn't go anywhere. Ironically, there was a Polish quota that was not oversubscribed. For the next six years we lived in Germany. I learned German. Eventually I attended medical school. I graduated from medical school and then we came to the United States because there was a new law passed called Displaced Persons Act allowing us to come to the United States. That's where I got my internship and psychiatric residency.

RG: How did you become a well-known expert witness in murder trials?

ET: While I was a psychiatric resident in Elgin State Hospital in Illinois in 1954, I had a patient named Alice, a teenager who was schizophrenic. She drowned a four-year-old boy. Because she was poor, the lawyer who defended her had no choice but to rely upon me as an expert witness. I knew very little about psychiatry at that time and my English was rudimentary. I began to study the subject and was successful in persuading the judge that she was insane. Lawyers came with other cases, even though I wasn't yet a full-fledged psychiatrist. The turning point in my forensic career came when I was asked to be an expert in the Jack Ruby case on a retrial (Ruby murdered Lee Harvey Oswald). Then I became well known.

RG: In your recent book about your career as a forensic psychiatrist and an expert witness, American Legal Injustice, you discuss the Jack Ruby case. Besides Ruby, you've been involved in a number of high profile cases like Ted Bundy, John Hinckley, Sam Sheppard, and Andrea Yates. In the case of Ted Bundy, you make the point that, unlike these others, Bundy was a psychopathic serial killer, which is rare.

ET: Ted Bundy was a psychopathic serial killer who ultimately confessed to murdering 30 women. He may have killed as many as a hundred women. But these cases are very rare. Yet the more crime declines, the more people fear crime because television feeds this fear night after night.

Forensic Psychiatrist Emanuel Tanay and Philosophy Professor Richard Gull.

I'm 83 years old and I have cancer. Reaching old age and dying of it is an achievement of which I am proud; it is achieved, not bestowed.

RG: Your book is in one sense a call to recognize the reality of mental illness and take it seriously in the law in a way it has not been. For example, the so-called insanity defense has virtually disappeared since the John Hinckley case, the would-be assassin of President Reagan. That Hinckley was sent to a mental institution was widely considered a failure of our justice system. But you defend the verdict in the Hinckley case.

ET: There is no doubt that the verdict was fully justified. The jury did what a jury is supposed to do, namely, they applied the law. The insanity defense exists on paper, in the textbooks of law, but in reality it is nonexistent. It doesn't matter how psychotic a person may be. Andrea Yates drowned her five children and then called the police and told them that Satan told her to do it. If she was not insane, then who is? Yet the prosecution saw to it that she was declared sane. I stopped accepting insanity cases because I said it was taking money under false pretenses. The outcome, no matter how meritorious the case, no matter how effective I would be as an expert witness, would be a rejection of the insanity defense.

RG: Yet many people in prison are mentally ill.

ET: Not far from where we are now was Ypsilanti State Hospital where I worked for a while. It had 4,000 patients. You know what's on the grounds of the state hospital now? There is a "correctional" institution otherwise known as a prison. At one time, there were 600,000 psychotics in state hospitals. At this time, there are virtually no state hospitals, no mental institutions. All you have is psychiatric hospitals where a psychotic can be admitted for days, maybe weeks. It's not unusual for a psychotic to have been admitted 12, 14 times. Until he or she commits a crime and ends up in jail.

Half of the prison population suffers from mental illness. So what has happened? We closed the state hospitals and replaced them by prisons. This is dreadful from a humanitarian point of view and ridiculous from a fiscal point of view. A psychotic person in prison cost $30-40,000 a year. The mental institutions were communities for the mentally ill. Patients worked there and had a setting suited to their needs.

RG: Why do you think these mental institutions were done away with? They got a bad name as reflected in the 1976 movie One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.

ET: At the end of the Vietnam War, there were these idealistic liberals who, together with fiscal conservatives, got together and abolished the system. There was a lack of comprehension of what psychosis is. We have no cure for schizophrenia. The medications don't cure and don't even significantly change it.

R.G.: You contributed a system of classifications of homicides to the psychiatric literature.

E.T.: I proposed a classification of homicides based on personality structure. According to Freud, the anatomy of personality consists of the ego or self;

the id or the unconscious; and the superego or conscience. Behavior consistent with one's personality is egosyntonic; behavior that is contrary to one's self-image is egodystonic. Behavior caused by psychosis is psychotic; a psychotic killing is motivated by delusions. A homicide (every killing of human by a human is a homicide) is egosyntonic when carried out in accordance with the conscious wishes of the actor. Examples would be a policeman killing a fleeing criminal or a soldier killing the enemy in war. An impulsive killing is usually egodystonic, contrary to the wishes of the individual. Most homicides are impulsive (or egodystonic in my terminology) and committed not by criminals but by people who know each other.

R.G.: You argue in your book that Jack Ruby's killing of Oswald was impulsive. They did not know each other. Would you explain that?

E.T.: There is convincing evidence that Ruby did not plan to be in the basement of the Dallas Police Department Headquarters contrary to the conspiracy theory that Ruby was part of a plot to silence Oswald. Ruby just happened along when the transfer of Oswald to the county jail was taking place. He had been running errands and had left his beloved dog Sheba in his car, which he would not have done knowing that he would be going to jail. And he always carried the concealed weapon that he used on Oswald. The famous elevator door opens and Ruby fires the fatal shot. Ruby's killing of Oswald was impulsive or egodystonic.

RG: So both your early life and later life brought you into contact with killers. In your later life, you arrive at an analysis of acts of killing, like whether they are impulsive (or egodystonic) or the act of a sadistic psychopath, while in your early life you experienced first-hand another type of killing resulting from genocidal ideology. Was Amon Goeth, who murdered your father and many others, a psychopathic serial killer?

E.T.: No, Amon Goeth, like most perpetrators of genocide, thought of himself as doing "God's" work. Genocides are always carried out in the name of a "good" or "holy" cause. Goeth's killings were egosyntonic for him.

R.G.: But Goeth had the wrong God. His religion was Nazi ideology. Do you consider yourself to be a religious person? Are you a spiritual person? If one and not the other, how do you distinguish between the two in your own mind?

E.T.: I am not religious, nor were my parents religious. Even when I was in great danger, I did not turn to a higher power. After the war, some orthodox Jews argued that non-orthodox Jews brought about the Holocaust. I find this perplexing. Being an amateur student of religion, I think that many bad things have been brought about by religion. Religion and ideology have inspired genocidal hatred.

If you did something to annoy me, I could express my anger directly to you and resolve the matter. But if your priest or rabbi tells you that you are not measuring up, you cannot express your anger directly because your religion cannot be the object of your anger. So this anger is suppressed and becomes rage. If rage, which must be expressed by some means, is suppressed, it comes out as hatred. Oppressed people need hated scapegoats as objects for their suppressed rage.

In 1915, in the Ottoman Empire, Armenian Christians became victims of genocide. It takes hatred to perpetrate genocide because genocide is killing people for no other reason than their identity. Nazi ideology declared that the lives of Jews are "life unworthy of living." When the Israelites went to Canaan, the Canaanites did not just pick up and leave — they had to be killed. Most theologians agree that historically Christianity laid the foundations for the Holocaust starting in the 3rd century A.D. when Christianity became the official religion of Rome. Christianity laid the foundations for the Holocaust by propagating a hatred for and persecution of the Jews. In November 1938, on Kristallnacht, Jewish shops were attacked in a pogrom in Germany and Austria and a hundred Jews were killed. It was a harbinger of things to come.

The September 11 attacks may similarly be a harbinger of something larger — at worst a humanicide. But I remain an optimist, perhaps because of my experience of the Holocaust. I do not use the word "evil" because it contains too much religious zeal and because it interferes with having empathy, even for one's enemies, that might allow us to understand them and be ourselves survivors.

Continued on page 44

THE YOGA SPACE

Yoga For EveryBody

Small Classes

Individualized Instruction

180 Little Lake Dr. Ste. #1 / Ann Arbor off Jackson betw. Wagner & Zeeb
Free Parking
(734) 622-9600
www.yogospace.info

Kabbalah Miracles

Personal Growth through the TREE of LIFE

Embody the CREATOR'S QUALITIES

Become PRO-ACTIVE CO-CREATOR of the HEALTHY LIFE YOU DESIRE

Define SOUL'S PURPOSE/CAREER

Refine RELATIONSHIPS, FINANCES, LIVING CONDITIONS, & INNER PEACE

Day Or Evening Classes Ongoing
Once-a-Month Commitment

FRIDAYS 10:30 AM - 1:30 PM
Starting Jan 27th

OR WEDNESDAYS 7-10 PM
Starting Jan 11th

OR TUESDAYS 7-10 PM
Starting Jan 24th

For other starting dates, contact Karen Greenberg at (734) 417-9511 or krngrnbg@gmail.com www.clair-ascension.com

one pause Celebrate National Poetry Month April 2012

new website new location

APRIL READING SERIES, WITH VISITING POETS
Khaled Mattawa, Jennifer Chang, and Aimee Nezhukumatathil

April 6 Poetry Reading 7-9pm
at METAL, 220 Felch Street
Ann Arbor, MI

April 7 Conversations 10³⁰am-noon with visiting poets at METAL, 220 Felch Street
Ann Arbor, MI

onepausepoetry.org

follow us

all readings and conversations are FREE + open to the public for more information contact Sarah Messer: sarah@onepausepoetry.org

Bearing Witness –

Continued from page 43

R.G.: Would you say that you are a spiritual person?

E.T.: I'm not sure what is meant by spiritual. Obviously, I am a person who pays attention to human feelings and intellectual reflections. I am interested in philosophical issues. In spite of my experience of the Holocaust, I am optimistic about the future. If you call that spiritual, then I am spiritual.

R.G.: You have said that you don't like calling the perpetrators of genocides evil? What would you call that other side, that dark side, if not the force of evil?

E.T.: I would call it a combination of oppression and hatred. Some religions and ideologies suppress rage and create hatred. If you are an orthodox Jew, your religion tells you which foot you are to put on the ground first when you wake up in the morning. If you are a devout Catholic, you don't engage in contraception. The most oppressive religions and ideologies control your life from A to Z.

Another consequence of being a survivor is that I never read fiction.

Many people willingly subject themselves to these rules because that is their religion or ideology. Yet they can never live up to the expectations. You are a sinner; you are unworthy. Or if you are a communist, you are never quite a totally good communist. If you did something to annoy me, I could express my anger directly to you and resolve the matter. But if your priest or rabbi tells you that you are not measuring up, you cannot express your anger directly because your religion cannot be the object of your anger. So this anger is suppressed and becomes rage. If rage, which must be expressed by some means, is suppressed, it comes out as hatred. Oppressed people need hated scapegoats as objects for their suppressed rage.

RG: The song from South Pacific says that we have to be "carefully taught to hate all the people our relatives hate." But your view is the opposite.

ET: Yes, the opposite. You have to be carefully taught not to hate because you don't have to teach a child to project his or her rage. A little child runs into a table. Who does he blame? His mother. When he becomes an adult, if he hasn't really matured, he might now blame the Jews. So I say that anybody who has been an infant has the potential to be an anti-Semite, a hater. Certain religions and ideologies are breeding grounds of hate when they declare certain kinds of people to be unfit for living. Every genocide is committed in the name of a "good" cause. Hitler said he was protecting the Aryan race, whatever that is, from destruction by the Jews. Every genocide is presented as self-defense, because hated qualities are projected onto the groups that are its victims out of hatred.

RG: As you look back on the events of 70 years ago, at the Holocaust, what are your current day thoughts and insights about that time in your life? Have there been any "gifts" that have emanated from that experience?

ET: My friend Elie Wiesel, a well-known survivor, has said that he did nothing to survive. But I disagree with him. Every survivor is a hero. Every survivor needed resourcefulness and the courage to endure. These attributes made them successful in life after the war. It is true that we all suffered from what we now call post-traumatic stress syndrome.

For myself, I have found that I have the ability to make good judgments about my family, my friends, my employees, my patients. I think my early experiences gave me an intuitive feel for people. I developed an intuitive sense of who to trust. Once, during that time, I had to entrust myself and members of my family to a Gestapo man who claimed to be a Serb in order to escape.

Another gift is gratitude. Cicero said that gratitude is not only a virtue, it is the greatest of the virtues. I am grateful for all of the many people who helped me survive. Another attribute of survivors is that they are not haters. Hate was characteristic of the perpetrators, but not the survivors. My analyst thought it odd that I did not hate the Germans after the war. I explained to him that hatred would not have been useful for survival.

Another consequence of being a survivor is that I never read fiction. In Germany, I once read an article in which the author wrote that my ability to empathize often fails me at the doorstep of my next-door neighbor, and yet fiction asks me to shed crocodile tears about some imaginary disasters.

R.G.: Are there ironies and lessons from having worked professionally with forensic psychiatry after the murderous insanity that you witnessed firsthand on a societal scale?

E.T.: I discovered studying homicides that they are perpetrated either by criminals or by people acting impulsively. There is a vast difference between the two groups. The people who were out to kill me were, they thought, acting in a noble cause. Most people are basically good, but one wouldn't know that by watching crimes enacted on television or in the movies. I believe in the goodness of human beings in spite of the fact of our history of slavery, genocide, and so on. The fact is that the civilization we have is based on cooperation. We all cooperate with each other. We focus on the "evil" deeds, but we would not be where we are without helpfulness, cooperativeness, call it love or anything you want.

So there is this struggle between those two forces. I believe that the force of cooperation we observe in the animal kingdom has been perfected in homo sapiens and our civilization is based upon it. People who claim that some invisible hand of the market will make everything right are mistaken. It takes people who get together and form a community and a government, who are people of good will, for society to survive.

R.G.: You came of age in a cruel, inhuman, and dark world. What is your view of Ann Arbor, where you now live?

E.T.: I was in Ann Arbor in the 50s in a post-graduate program while I worked at Ypsilanti State Hospital. I loved Ann Arbor then. So, when I retired 10 years ago, I decided to come back. I call it a mini-New York. It has some of the advantages of New York without many of the disadvantages. There are so many young people here who are enthusiastic. It is so encouraging to walk the streets and see the energy, the interest, and the future of this country.

I inherited my optimism from my parents. My optimism, I believe, was necessary for my survival. And it is necessary for our survival as a civilization. I'm 83 years old and I have cancer. Reaching old age and dying of it is an achievement of which I am proud; it is achieved, not bestowed. In spite of the early misery inflicted on me, I have had a good life. I have had three children and have six grandchildren. My children are successful and optimistic, and I like to think I've passed that on to them. I've been happily married to my wife Sandra for 41 years. She was raised in Traverse City and had a rather strict Lutheran upbringing. She has, however, mastered the art of Jewish cooking.

*The interviewer, Richard Gull, can be contacted at: rgull@umich.edu.
Emanuel Tanay can be reached at: drtanay@umich.edu.*

A Compelling Reason to Join our Email List

Last year, over 60 different spiritual, holistic, and psychological growth organizations and individuals used the Crazy Wisdom Email List to reach our over 3,000 self-selected subscribers.

If you want to know what's going on in the wider body, mind and spirit community in the Ann Arbor region, sign up to get on our Email List. Yes, it's true, you will get some emails from Crazy Wisdom about store events and happenings, but more importantly, you will be receiving emails, through us, from many organizations and centers and groups that sponsor the kinds of events, classes and programs that you care about.

To subscribe, go to our website at www.crazywisdom.net. And to send out an Email to our Email List subscribers, you can contact our webmistress, Carol Karr, at: carol@crazywisdom.net

The Healer Development Program
Training Healers Since 1986
 Classes in Person, Live Internet or Phone

The Healer & Ascension Certification Course
 Learn to provide healing on the deepest levels of body, emotion, mind, spirit, relationships, children, animals, DNA, and Healing Qabalah. Learn to help the planet and all living creatures navigate through the changes taking place on Earth at this time and ascend to a higher way of being.
 Legal UCM Healer Practitioner Certification
 Alternate Wednesdays beginning January 18th, 7:00 - 10:00 PM for 13 months

Reiki Certificate Courses
 All Levels, begin January & September

Healer Development 101
 Self-Healing, Intuition Development
 6 Wednesdays beginning March 6, 7:00 - 9:30 PM

Eve Wilson has been a full time healer and trainer of healers since 1986.

For more information visit:
www.spiritualhealers.com www.spiritualhealers.com/blog or call 734-780-7635

Drop the Knife: A Memoir in Song –

Ann Arbor Peace Activist and Musician Jeanne Mackey Creates a Performance Piece on the Occasion of Turning 60, and her Musician Friends Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian and Eric Fithian Help Make It Happen

Photography by Rachael Waring

Lori Fithian, Laz Slomovits, Jeanne Mackey and Eric Fithian

What follows is her story of returning to the small town of her youth to sing her life song. And we've also asked Laz, Lori, and Eric to reflect on collaborating with Jeanne Mackey and what it means to "come home."

Bringing It All Back Home

An Ann Arbor Songwriter, Musician, and Community-Builder Returns to the Small Town of Her Youth to Sing Her Life Song

By Jeanne Mackey

This is how it feels when worlds collide. I'm in Oxford, Ohio, my hometown, rolling down High Street in a minivan with my life partner, Pattie, my 91-year-old mother, Marge, and three intrepid Ann Arbor musicians — Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian, and her brother Eric. We picked up Mom from the assisted living apartment where she has lived since Dad died in 2002 and are headed for dinner at Kona's, the only restaurant in town that serves fresh, local cuisine. Mom's in the front seat chatting with Pattie, her walker stashed in the back of the van.

During dinner Marge is uncharacteristically quiet. Her aging brain, slowed by the progression of dementia, can't track the lively conversation. Afterward, she confides to Pattie about the band — "I don't know who those people are, but they're really nice." Pattie gently reminds her that we're all in town for my performance the next day. We pick up a copy of The Oxford Press to see their write-up of the show. Oxford Press articles from years past flash through my mind. Me with my brownie troop roasting a marshmallow over a fake campfire. Mom on the front page as Citizen of the Year. Brother Dave marching in the high school band. My toothy smile when I sold enough newspaper subscriptions to win a transistor radio. Actually, Mom sold most of the subs, secretly hoping that owning a radio would make me appear to be a normal teen.

In Stacie's What's the Story workshop, she managed to shake something loose by challenging me to go off and "write a bad song." I came back with a doozy and shared it with the story circle — a process that somehow opened my secret passageway to songwriting.

I decided a few years ago that I needed to create a performance piece to usher me through the threshold of turning 60 in 2010. I've got a good track record for dreaming up events and making them happen — benefit concerts, rites of passage ceremonies, creative play days, workshops. This 60th birthday big idea was a little riskier than most, however, because I had declared to friends and family that it would be a performance of all-original songs and stories. In the 50+ years I'd been playing music, I had written maybe two songs that I'd ever want to hear again. When I tried to write, I'd just hear snippets of other people's songs and would quickly get disgusted with myself and give up.

The songwriting block is just a variation on a lifelong theme. I'm prone to lose touch with my own true impulses and ideas. I got the message early on that it was safer to let the grown-ups tell me how I should be feeling and acting. It was the 50s, after all. I really wanted to be a good girl — it felt like a matter of survival. And I had a primal yearning to be true to myself. My unsuccessful efforts to do both resulted in an awkward, tense, and timid demeanor in social settings. When I look at photos of my mom around the same age, she looks pretty gawky and shy herself — which is probably what made her so determined to have a socially successful daughter. But her efforts tended to backfire. I felt her lack of confidence in me (and herself) long before I could put it into words.

Photo by Rachael Waring

Photo by Rachael Waring

Drop the Knife

Once a young woman asked the 14th century Sufi mystic and poet, Hafiz, "What is the sign of someone knowing God?" Hafiz remained silent for a few moments and looked deep into the young person's eyes, then said, "Dear, they have dropped the knife. They have dropped the cruel knife so often used upon their tender self and others."

I had to leave home to find my own way. And when I did, it was in the context of the social justice movements of the 60s and 70s. My friends and I were the good guys, fighting the evil establishment. It was glorious! Mom took it even harder than Dad when I revealed my disdain for their basic values. I tried to engage her in principled debates, but she was crafty when threatened. If I started to win the argument, she'd inevitably burst into tears, and that was the end of the conversation.

But I was wrong about my parents' values. Turns out they cared more about staying connected than being right. Both raised as conservative Republicans, they were willing to re-examine their beliefs, given half a chance. My dad, a Miami University professor, became an advocate for affirmative action and women's equality on campus. Mom joined Planned Parenthood and began speaking in college dorms, gleefully passing around multi-colored birth control devices (she has always enjoyed shocking people). An avid miniaturist, she coped with her kids' lifestyle choices by creating a tiny hippie pad, complete with bong, a waterbed, beaded curtains, and Nixon's picture on the little toilet seat. Her resilience was impressive — and she would need it even more in a few years when I started seeing a psychotherapist and decided that all my insecurities were Mom's fault. When she found out I was a lesbian, she told me tearfully, "If you have decided that you hate men, I don't even want to hear it!" But I hadn't. And in 1990 when I married Pattie, my soul mate, Mom and Dad wholeheartedly welcomed her into the family.

"But I was wrong about my parents' values. Turns out they cared more about staying connected than being right."

After dinner, we drop Mom off at her apartment and prepare to rehearse for the next evening's show at the Oxford Community Arts Center. I have successfully created a performance piece of original songs and stories, expertly coached throughout the process by my old friend Stacie Chaiken, an actor, playwright, and teacher who lived in a feminist group house with me back in college. In Stacie's What's the Story workshop, she managed to shake something loose by challenging me to go off and "write a bad song." I came back with a doozy and shared it with the story circle — a process that somehow opened my secret passageway to songwriting. The song arrangements blossomed in collaboration with Laz, Lori, and Eric. I recorded most of the tunes in Eric's Electric Farm Studio in Dexter (complete with crowing rooster on the final track) and released a CD. After we premiered the show in Ann Arbor last November, I knew the next stop would be the old hometown.

But now that the show is only a day away, I'm feeling queasy. "You'll pull it off just fine," Pattie reassures me. "You've never been one to sabotage yourself." But she didn't know me when I lived in this town. The many times I backed myself into a corner. The social situations where I tried to converse with somebody who intimidated me — which included almost everyone — and watched their facial expression morph from confusion to disinterest. I know myself to be capable of clutching on stage.

That evening, I peek from behind the curtains as the audience members come into the theatre and take their seats: Jan, my best friend from high school; the Trumps, our across-the-street neighbors of fifty years; another friend of the family whom I last saw at one of my parents' bridge parties in the 70s. Mom rolls in with her walker, accompanied by my brother, sister-in-law, niece, and nephew.

The lights go down, Pattie introduces me, and I walk out on stage. My frightened 14-year-old self is whispering frantically, "You can't do this; you don't know how!" But I know something that she, frozen in time, will never learn. I've grown up! I have the chops, the will, the heart, and the inner resources to deliver the goods, to put the show across and make it sing. And I do: "There's no time to hesitate, contemplate, meditate. Tell my tale, it's getting late!"

Jeanne Mackey and her band — Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian, and Eric Fithian — will perform Drop the Knife: A Memoir-in-Song at Washtenaw Community College's College Theatre in Ann Arbor at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, April 21, 2012.

Afterward, people line up to hug and congratulate me and the band. Mom comes wheeling up from behind. "I'm so proud of you!" she says. "You made me laugh and cry. That was just terrific!" She delivers the punch line with a grin: "I didn't know you had it in you." So quintessentially Marge, with a level of honesty made possible only by her current level of dementia. "I know you didn't, Mom." I feel her fragility as we embrace. The old lady is loath to get sentimental, but there's a catch in her voice as she tells me, "I'm glad I lived to see this."

Jeanne Mackey is a lifelong musician, community-builder, and change-maker. The CD of Drop the Knife is available at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. For more information, or to reach Jeanne, email jmackey50@gmail.com or visit www.umich.edu/~mackeyj.

RACHAEL WARING

PHOTOGRAPHY

ONE FREE 8X10 - MENTION THIS AD WITH YOUR PORTRAIT SESSION

734 904 7499
ANN ARBOR

RACHAEL@RACHAELWARING.COM

We Offer Over 170
Loose Teas
Exquisite Tea Accessories from Around the World
Enjoy a Cup with a Late Breakfast, Lunch or Early Dinner
All of Our Menu Items are Made from Scratch in the TeaHaus Kitchen
Tea 2 Go
Private Tea Parties, Showers and Custom Gift Favors
Tea Tastings &
Special Events
Online Shopping Available

204 & 206 N. 4th Ave
Ann Arbor, MI 48104
734.622.0460
www.teahaus-annarbor.com

Coming Home

- ⊗ Re-enchanting your Life:
Making Your Whole Life Sacred.
- ⊗ Joy Coaching.
- ⊗ Shamanic Herbalism.
- ⊗ The Faerie Essences.
- ⊗ Ceremonies for the Soul.

Consultations available in-person or by phone

Bronwen Gates, Ph.D.
www.bronwengates.com
BronWild@gmail.com
(734) 975-8754

GATEWAYS WELLNESS

Three Ann Arbor Musicians — Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian, and Eric Fithian— on Collaborating with Jeanne Mackey and What It Means to “Come Home”

Laz Slomovits Reflects on his Early Years in Hungary, and the Meaning of “Coming Home”

As a collaborating musician on Jeanne Mackey’s performance piece “Drop the Knife,” you’ve had to consider what it means to “come home.” What speaks to you in this piece and in Jeanne Mackey’s “Bringing It All Back Home” essay? As you’ve been working with Jeanne on “Drop the Knife,” what’s been stirred up for you?

Laz Slomovits: There is a story in "Drop the Knife" where Jeanne tells of burying a hatchet on her ancestral land in Ireland, as a way of lifting a curse and making peace in her family. This is something she actually did a number of years ago, and she told me about it just before I was about to take a trip to my ancestral home in Hungary. I found the image very powerful, and though I did not use that specific way of resolving old issues in my ancestry, it helped me find my own way. In general, I've long admired Jeanne's courage in looking to find a way to live a meaningful, conscious life — and "Drop the Knife," and the insights into her life which she talks about in her essay, feel like she's reached a new high point in honesty, clarity, and self-acceptance. Working with her on the performance piece has inspired me to continue going deeper in my understanding of my own life.

Where were you raised? Did you like being raised in that town or city? Do you remember your childhood fondly? Do you ever go back to that place?

Laz Slomovits: I was born in Budapest, Hungary, to parents who had both been through the Holocaust, had lost many family members, met after the war and tried to start a new life. When my twin brother and I were eight years old, we left Hungary with our parents during the 1956 Revolution. This was just 11 years after World War II, and they saw more of the same coming. I have mostly pleasant memories of growing up in Budapest, and even the Revolution, terrifying to my parents, seemed like some kind of war game to my brother and me.

What was not pleasant was the day a Russian official came into our 2nd grade classroom and asked the teacher "Who are those monkeys with the beanies?" (My brother and I wore yarmulkes, skull caps, to school — our father was a Cantor in several Budapest synagogues.) The teacher answered, "They are among my best students." The official responded, "Flunk them." (To her credit, our teacher did not do that — she gave us B's and tearfully told our mother that she was very sorry she had to do that.) In addition to this, my father saw not only his livelihood, but his whole way of life threatened once again, and so our family left with two suitcases. Looking back, and how my life has been able to unfold in America, I feel that was a bargain.

My brother and I didn't go back to Budapest until both our parents had passed away, just a few years ago, more than 50 years after we left Hungary. We found the apartment complex where we'd lived as children, went to the synagogues where our father had sung (one of them, the Dohány Templom, is the largest synagogue in Europe, where we remember playing in the organ loft while our father sang below), visited some of my mother's favorite places (she'd grown up in Budapest, and the week before we left, she took us to these places saying, "I want you to remember these because we may not be back for a long time."), the cemeteries where my mother's parents were buried, and the small town where my father lived with his first family before the war. It was obviously a very emotional visit on many levels — I wanted to find a way to connect to my family roots, but also to make peace within myself with the Hungarians who had stood by or actively helped the Nazis during the war. This is where having the image and ritual of Jeanne "burying the hatchet" was very helpful. I knew my way would have something to do with music, but I didn't know how.

We realized we were within a few blocks, on the same street, where our mother had been held in the ghetto before being deported to Ravensbruck, the concentration camp where she spent the rest of the war.

Photo by Rachael Waring

My father saw not only his livelihood, but his whole way of life threatened once again, and so our family left with two suitcases. Looking back, and how my life has been able to unfold in America, I feel that was a bargain.

My brother and I had made our hotel reservation based on two factors: that it'd be near the heart of Budapest (so we wouldn't have to spend a lot of time traveling to visit sites important to our family) and that it'd be very affordable. Later we realized that the hotel we were staying in was in the old Jewish Quarter of the city, which had been turned into the Jewish ghetto during the war. Part way into our visit, looking at maps of the city as it had been during the war, we realized we were within a few blocks, on the same street, where our mother had been held in the ghetto before being deported to Ravensbruck, the concentration camp where she spent the rest of the war. In fact, that street marked the edge of the ghetto — barricaded, with signs saying that no one could enter or leave on pain of death. I stood on this street and thought about my mother held captive in that building, while across the street people were free to come and go as they pleased. I tasted the bitterness of that in my mouth — and knew that I did not want to hold on to that any longer — not for myself, not for my mother, not for anyone on either side of that street, living or dead.

The only instrument I had brought with me on the trip was a small wooden flute, a Hungarian furulya. On the day before we were to return from Budapest, I stood in a corner of the building, with traffic flowing by me on the street and on the sidewalk, and started to play a tune that I made up as I went along. I tried to allow all the feelings that were welling up to come into the melody — the terror, the rage, the hatred, the grief — and to ask that they be transformed into forgiveness and peace. I can't explain what happened as I played, but I knew as I started to cry that somehow, somewhere, this tiny offering was being heard and accepted.

I have since found that what happened in those few minutes was a beginning. I am still learning to release old grievances and fears. But it was a beginning. And I'm committed to continuing.

Do you go to high school reunions? How have they been for you? Have you been surprised in any way by encountering your past? If you haven't gone, why not?

Laz Slomovits: After we left Hungary in early 1957, we lived in Israel for three years before we moved to the United States. I grew up in Kingston, New York, went to school at the University of Rochester in upstate New York, met Helen who was to become my wife when I was a senior, and a year later we moved to Ann Arbor so Helen could go to graduate school here. We thought we'd be here a year or two — and have never left. In a very real sense, I feel like my life started when I met Helen and I found home and community when we moved to Ann Arbor.

So, this may seem like a long preamble to answering the question, but no, I have not been to either high school or college reunions. Although I had a few good friends in both high school and college, I feel like I did not really start waking up and living the life I felt was mine until I after I left those places — and the connections to the old friendships did not feel possible to maintain in any deep way.

Are you at all in touch with people from the part of your childhood that you spent in the United States, and if so, do you like that sense of connection with your roots?

Laz Slomovits: I have some wonderful memories and a great deal of gratitude for some of my teachers and coaches, both in high school and in college, almost all of whom have passed away, as have most of the members of my childhood family. There is one quite elderly Hungarian couple who still lives in Kingston who became my parents' best friends when we arrived in this country. They were very helpful and kind to us then, and we've maintained a sweet phone connection on a regular basis. In a sense, they are my only link to my "old life" and I enjoy talking to them as I might to the grandparents I never knew.

I can't explain what happened as I played, but I knew as I started to cry that somehow, somewhere, this tiny offering was being heard and accepted.

Photo by Rachael Waring

What does it mean to you to "come home"?

Laz Slomovits: I am very grateful to Ann Arbor — the various communities I am part of, and everything the city has to offer. This has been home for most of my adult life, where I've been supported, nourished, and stimulated in my work and in my spiritual seeking. I have a dear wife and son that I cherish, a brother with whom I've played music all these years and still consider my best friend, his wife and daughter who I feel closer to than I felt to my blood family growing up — I couldn't possibly ask for more from a family. I have some wonderful friends, especially in music (like Jeanne, Lori, and Eric) that I feel close to. To me, all of this adds up to "coming home."

And yet, in a very real sense, all of this means "home" because of what I started to glimpse in my early twenties — that there was a "home" that was within me — and everything else on the "outside" followed from that. I am still learning what it means to come home — but I know more and more that for me it happens on the inside, and then is reflected in the place where I live, the people I connect to, the work that I do. And while it's not always easy — the distractions and wanderings are many — I can come back to this true home any time, all the time.

Laz Slomovits is one of the twin brothers in Ann Arbor's nationally known family folk music duo, Gemini. In addition to his award-winning music for children, Laz has also set to music and recorded the poetry of Rumi and Hafiz, 13th and 14th century Sufi mystics, in translations by Coleman Barks and Daniel Ladinsky. For more information, visit PoetryIntoSong.com and GeminiChildrensMusic.com.

crazywisdom.net
Email Service

Crazy Wisdom's Email Service is a great way to showcase yourself, your business and your services! This service is a cost effective method of reaching a targeted audience without the need for investment in costly hardware and mail related software!

- Send out a listing of your upcoming classes, workshops, and events
- This is a great way to reach the more than 3000 people who currently subscribe to our Email Subscriber List and are looking for Body, Mind and Spirit Resources!

We offer 2 levels of Email Service...

Level 1 - text only email • $89.00

Level 2 - Graphic email • $139.00

If you missed getting your listing into the current issue of The Crazy Wisdom Journal, our email service is an excellent way to still reach many people who might be interested in what you're offering!

Email Service ads must be mail-ready and emailed to Carol. For more information contact Carol at carol@crazywisdom.net or visit www.crazywisdom.net

Crazy Wisdom Bookstore and Tea Room
114 South Main Street, Ann Arbor
734.665.2757 • www.crazywisdom.net

Three Ann Arbor Musicians — Laz Slomovits, Lori Fithian, and Eric Fithian — on Collaborating with Jeanne Mackey and What It Means to “Come Home”

Drummer Lori Fithian

As a collaborating musician on Jeanne Mackey’s performance piece “Drop the Knife,” you’ve had to consider what it means to “come home.” What speaks to you in this piece and in Jeanne Mackey’s “Bringing It All Back Home” essay? As you’ve been working with Jeanne on “Drop the Knife,” what’s been stirred up for you?

Lori Fithian: I’m really impressed with Jeanne’s creativity. The songs are just amazing — I keep wanting to ask her “how did you come up with that tune?” Her clever lyrics and the amazing storytelling really make for a wonderful musical evening — a deep personal journey woven together with great music that’s fun to play. It’s been great to see and hear the audience reacting. The process of shaping the raw songs with “the band” was also lots of fun, and a good challenge. I thought it would be like painting on somebody else’s painting, but Jeanne welcomed our ideas, suggestions, and changes, and it was truly a collaborative process with all four of us contributing. I think it’s stirred up a little more creative juice in me — she is very inspiring!

Where were you raised? Did you like being raised in that town? Do you remember your childhood fondly? Do you ever go back to that place?

Lori Fithian: I was actually born here in A2, in what’s now called the North Ingalls Building — it’s the old “St. Joe’s” hospital, so I’m definitely a native and a townie. Ann Arbor is a great place to grow up, and, yes, I have lots of fond memories. We lived on the edge of Thurston Pond, on the north end of town, and we often go over there to take a walk in the woods, see how the pond has changed, peer over the fence at the pool where we spent most of our summer days, and swing in the old swing set at the school.

Do you go to high school reunions? If you haven’t gone, why not?

Lori Fithian: Haven’t been to any of those. I’m pretty out of touch with anyone from high school, even though I was pretty involved in the band/orchestra community. I was actually pretty shy and awkward back then, probably a bit like Jeanne.

Are you at all in touch with people from your childhood — your childhood friends, your close relatives, neighbors, teachers, coaches — and if so, do you like that sense of connection with your roots — your childhood and young adulthood?

Lori Fithian: Well, since I live here, I do run into folks from the old neighborhood, especially during art fair. But I wouldn’t say I’m close to anyone from back then. My one friend who goes back to 2nd grade, Vera, lives out in Oregon now, and I keep in touch with her over email and visit with her

Photo by Rachael Waring

I thought it would be like painting on somebody else’s painting, but Jeanne welcomed our ideas, suggestions, and changes – Lori Fithian on contributing to “Drop the Knife”

I think I feel most like I’ve “come home” when I’m with my chosen and original family, when we have reunions, just being in that “nest” of people who love me.

when she comes back. I have more a sense of connection with the “place,” not so much the people. I suppose if I was on Facebook I might know more about all those high school people.

It’s been great to see and hear the audience reacting.

What does it mean to you to “come home”?

Lori Fithian: I think I feel most like I’ve “come home” when I’m with my chosen and original family, when we have reunions, just being in that “nest” of people who love me. It doesn’t really matter where we are. It seems pretty different from most of the folks I know, who’ve left their hometowns and still have a place to go back to, like Jeanne.

Lori Fithian has been facilitating drum circles and rhythm workshops since 1998 and offers her “Drumcommunity” program all over the Great Lakes region. Lori is a full time freelance musician, leading programs and workshops, teaching lessons, as well as accompanying singer-songwriters on stage and in the recording studio. Her website is www.drumcommunity.com.

RAW FOOD & YOGA
Retreats, Classes
Healthy Lifestyle Coaching

DISCOVER A NEW VIBRANT YOU!

Ellen Livingston 734.222.3634
LivingYogaNow.com
photo by strickfadenphoto.com

Musician Eric Fithian

As a collaborating musician on Jeanne Mackey's performance piece "Drop the Knife," you've had to consider what it means to "come home." What speaks to you in this piece and in Jeanne Mackey's "Bringing It All Back Home" essay? As you've been working with Jeanne on "Drop the Knife," what's been stirred up for you?

Eric Fithian: I have only known Jeanne for the past few years, having been introduced at one of my sister Lori's house jams. In that time I have come to really admire her for her talent and determination in doing all this. It's one thing to write a couple of songs about some personal history, but this show! This show really takes the audience (including the band members!) on an amazing trip through life as seen through Jeanne's eyes and heart. What speaks to me, in particular, is Jeanne's writing: very literal verses and choruses, put together, not simply poetically for the sake of the song, but also in a way that really explains things clearly. The story pieces are particularly engaging. While the band is working on the "mood" and setting the scenes with music, she sets a visual scene in the imagination.

Having worked with Jeanne on the CD production, learning how to get the best from each other, good days and not so good, pulling and pushing for just the right sound and mood, we got to know each other better and were able to really work together creatively to put these wonderful show pieces into an arrangement that could be enjoyed whenever, not just on the stage.

What was "stirred up" is a realization that life can be so much more than we usually make it. Sometimes getting caught up in day-to-day survival, we lose some perspective. Jeanne's words and music about her searches for who she is reminds us that it is a big world out there, full of answers to our questions of who we are individually, historically, socially, and so on. Her stories tell us to get out there and find them.

Where were you raised? Did you like being raised in that town? Do you remember your childhood fondly? Do you ever go back to that place?

Eric Fithian: My family finally settled in 1964 at the northeast corner of Ann Arbor, in a newly developed subdivision. I could not have imagined a better childhood for anyone! We had free rein of the whole area; things seemed so safe and free. A big pond with tons of frogs, turtles, and fish, with a large wooded area right in our back yard! And, of course, many new construction sites to go to and get into trouble with our friends. I go back and visit "the woods" when I can, venturing around the pond, trying to remember our trails and landmarks from 40+ years ago! A lot has evolved since that simple time.

Do you go to high school reunions? How have they been for you? If you have gone, what has been most meaningful for you about being there? What has been hardest? Have you been surprised in any way by encountering your past? If you haven't gone, why not?

What was most meaningful was seeing people that I did not really hang with back in high school and being able to strike up new connections...just enjoying them as peers, not worrying about cliques or other factors that used to block me from engaging socially. Eric Fithian on high school reunions

Eric Fithian: I went to the 20, 25 and 30th Huron High School class reunions for the Class of '78. Had a blast, laughed a lot, caught up a bit, then went home. There are some special friends I like to see at the events, but we don't really stay in contact. What was most meaningful was seeing people that I did not really hang with back in high school and being able to strike up new connections, reminiscing, getting little bits of gossip here and there, but mostly just enjoying them as peers, not worrying about cliques or other factors that used to block me from engaging socially.

Seeing those that seemed to have it all back then now struggling with serious issues like addiction, illnesses, and so on, is the hardest part of going.

I'm not so surprised at encountering my past, but I enjoy the surprise of how many people from that past remember me so well!

I go back and visit "the woods" when I can, venturing around the pond, trying to remember our trails and landmarks from 40+ years ago!

Photo by Rachael Waring

What speaks to me, in particular, is Jeanne's writing: very literal verses and choruses, put together, not simply poetically for the sake of the song, but also in a way that really explains things clearly. The story pieces are particularly engaging.

Are you at all in touch with people from your childhood — your childhood friends, your close relatives, neighbors, teachers, coaches — and if so, do you like that sense of connection with your roots — your childhood and young adulthood?

Eric Fithian: Actually, not so much. I often think about my friends growing up on Bluett Road, or former band mates and musician friends, but have never really tried to get together or really communicate. Maybe sometime, when the 'day-to-day' slows down a bit!

What does it mean to you to "come home"?

Eric Fithian: I think just what Jeanne said, to bring your accomplishments and successes, struggles, trials and tribulations, back to the place and people who knew you "when." Maybe they had an idea of who you were, what you could do. Maybe they thought you couldn't, who knows? But you bring it back to show 'em: "You had it in you." Know what I mean, Jeanne?!!

Eric Fithian lives north of Dexter with his family on a small farm with mules, donkeys, goats and a bunch of other critters. Electric Farm Studio is his studio where he works with area musicians on various projects from songwriting collaboration to demo and CD production. He has been in the Ann Arbor area for all but his first year.

ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL

Deconstructing “Dog Food”

Why Pets Crave Variety in their Diets
as much as Humans Do

Alice Liberson is a Certified Veterinary Acupuncturist. She is also the owner of Dogma Catmantoo. She is shown here with her dog Satchel.

There is little question that dogs can survive eating only dried kibble. But these dogs probably do not have great energy, healthy coats, good disease resistance, and low incidence of chronic diseases, such as allergies, recurrent ear infections, immune mediated diseases, and cancer. Many people accept these as the “normal” condition of today’s pets, and bring out the antibiotics and steroids when there is a flare up. Still, many others have seen for themselves the huge difference that better nutrition makes, seeing changes such as renewed vigor, better breath, and even natural resistance to fleas.

You’ll find that the best foods come from companies you’ve never heard of.

All pet foods are not created equal. While you can be pretty sure cheap food will be of poor quality, you cannot be sure that expensive foods are of higher quality. “Premium” and “natural” are marketing slogans and bear no relation to the product’s contents. Healthy-sounding names or pictures of fruits and vegetables on the package reflect marketing, not nutrition. Some very recognizable, high priced so-called “premium brands” are anything but.

Fortunately, there are a number of good brands that use human quality raw ingredients. You’ll find that the best foods come from companies you’ve never heard of; companies that do not advertise in mainstream media and are not found in grocery or big box stores. Beware of anyone who tells you what the “best” food

By Alice Liberson

What would you think if your doctor said you should be eating “People Chow”? The doctor explained that People Chow was a complete and balanced food, with all the nutrients you or any person needed. And it was cheaper and more convenient than real food! People Chow should be eaten for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. You shouldn’t eat anything else, and if you did, it might cause a problem.

You probably would not follow this advice. What we choose to eat can reflect our nutritional, environmental, and other personal values. How and what we eat is also based on our available time, interests, and resources. We also choose food based on cravings. When we feel like we “need” an orange or ice cream, we can eat an orange or some ice cream. We like food and want to enjoy the tastes and textures of different foods. We know that fresh food is better than processed food. We know that every meal we eat is not perfectly balanced, but hope that overall we will come close to having a balanced diet. We may also take supplements to ensure we are getting everything we need.

While you can be pretty sure cheap food will be of poor quality, you cannot be sure that expensive foods are of higher quality.

So how do we make food decisions for our dogs and other pets? Most people simply reach for a bag of dog kibble off the grocery store shelf. We have been programmed to believe that “dog food” is not just the best thing for our pets to eat; it’s the only thing they should eat. Variety and “people food” are not simply unnecessary; they are “bad” and possibly dangerous. Because we love our dogs and want to do what is best for them, we follow this advice.

Until relatively recently, dogs ate only “people food,” or what is generally known simply as food! After World War II, companies realized they could make use of waste products from the human food industry to make commercial pet food. Grain dealers found a market for moldy, contaminated products. Slaughterhouses were able to sell their “4-D” animals: those that are dead, dying, diseased, or disabled, and other animals unacceptable for human consumption. Many of these animals had been given drugs, including antibiotics, hormones, and even euthanasia solution. These raw materials were just the starting point. In much of commercial pet food production, high temperatures required for rendering, baking, and other processing denatures and depletes most of any whole food nutrients initially present, while, unfortunately, many drugs and other toxins can survive these conditions. Synthetic vitamins and minerals are then added to make the diet complete. Manufacturers acknowledged that fresh, real food was better for dogs, but had shown dogs would eat and could live on commercial food. The advantages of these new commercial foods were touted as cost and convenience.

A perfect storm of rapid growth in the agribusiness, food processing, and advertising industries following WWII contributed to the pet food industry gaining control of how we thought about our pet’s nutritional needs. Originally sold as cheap and convenient, we were now told this was the best and healthiest way to feed our dogs.

We have been programmed to believe that “dog food” is not just the best thing for our pets to eat; it’s the only thing they should eat.

is, because what may work best for one dog is not necessarily the best for another. Smaller independent pet stores or specialty health food stores are a good resource for information. Go online. Add some canned food, which is less heavily processed. Consider using dehydrated foods, which are dried at lower temperatures and preserve more whole nutrients. You might also try feeding some fresh vegetables — a lot of dogs love carrots! Or, you might use a combination of high quality pet food and fresh, whole foods. Switch up the commercial food, brands, and flavors. Variety is good for nutrition and makes our pets’ lives more interesting. You may want to add a supplement, preferably one that is whole food based. Use common sense. Remember that dogs should not be fed grapes, raisins, macadamia nuts, caffeine or chocolate. Dark, higher quality European chocolate is most dangerous.

Many people have decided to prepare their own dog food. If you do decide to be responsible for more of your dog’s diet, do a little research (I would not recommend making food for a puppy unless you are willing to do a lot of research). Remember that while every meal does not need to be balanced, the overall diet does. Use a good supplement. There are many books and websites dedicated to canine nutrition. I recommend starting with Dr. Susan Wynn (susanwynn.com) and Dr. Richard Pitcairn (drpitcairn.com).

Adding variety and fresh foods to your dog’s diet will bring better health to them and much joy to both of you. Remember to think about this the next time someone tells you to feed a family member nothing but “Chow.”

Alice Liberson, D.V.M., is a Certified Veterinary Acupuncturist. She is also the owner of Dogma Catmantoo, an Ann Arbor pet boutique that carries only top quality foods and treats. (Although she wants you to buy less and make more.) They also carry a wide range of U.S. made collars, toys, beds, and other supplies. Dogma Catmantoo is located at 208 N. 4th Avenue, just a few doors down from People’s Food Co-op. Find out more at www.dogmacatmantoo.com or call 734-929-0022.

A neighborhood store for dogs, cats & people who love them.

established 2001 dogMA

Catmantoo

- Superior Products
- Personalized Service
- Competitive Pricing

When we opened our doors, a lot of people thought we were nuts. How could this small, neighborhood shop - dedicated to the values and aesthetics of pet lovers looking for healthy, quality and affordable products - make it through the year? A community focused place that went beyond the basics: a resource for products, ideas and information that help enrich the life of your pet.

As we enter our 10th year, I am proud of our place in the local business and pet communities. Our knowledgeable, experienced staff—Allison, Susan and of course, Jake—offer advice you can trust and amazing service. And yes, we are affordable (best poop bag prices in town!). If you’re already a customer, you know. And if you haven’t shopped with us, please come and visit, and you’ll see why we’re THE LEADER OF THE PACK!

Alice Liberson, DVM, Diplomate ACVP, CVA

208 North 4th Ave. Ann Arbor, MI 48104 • (734) 929-0022 • www.dogmacatmantoo.com

We're happy keeping your pets happy.

Pet sitting. Dog walking.
Home boarding. Reiki for pets.
Dedicated, professional, reliable.

PEACEABLE PETS ANIMAL CARE, LLC

Robin Peterson, Owner
Bonded and insured

See our professional qualifications and rates at www.peaceablepets.com

734.846.0012 | robin@peaceablepets.com

Lunch and Learn Seminars!

The doctors of WVH lead discussion on a variety of topics relating to canine and feline health

Check our website for dates and details

www.washtenawveterinaryhospital.com

2729 Packard Road
Ann Arbor, MI
(734)971-5800

Experience a Higher Level of Pet Care with Enhanced Treatment Options!

Our services include:

- Acupuncture
- Chinese Herbology
- Nutritional Therapies
- Wellness exams, diagnostic services, advanced dental

Dr. Monica Turenne

Washtenaw Veterinary Hospital
Where East Meets West in Veterinary Medicine
Call (734)971-5800 for an appointment today and come experience the best of both worlds!
www.washtenawveterinaryhospital.com

Center for Functional Nutrition

“Listening to your body’s communications to find supportive, non-invasive, and non-toxic solutions to your health problems.”

- Nutrition Programs
- Individualized Supplement Protocols
- Detoxification
- Raindrop Essential Oil Therapy
- Far Infrared Sauna

Judy Stone, CN, MSW

www.CenterForFunctionalNutrition.com • 734-994-5549

Now in Ann Arbor

- Allergy & Skin Clinic
- Bioenergetic Behavior Therapy
- Ultimate Wellness Testing
- Chiropractic
- Holistic Nutrition Center
- Functional Medicine

John B. Smith, D.V.M.

Office Hours by appointment

www.dogdoctor.us

(734) 213-7447

Petcare Holistic Veterinary Center

1954 S. Industrial Drive,
Ann Arbor, MI 48104

At Green Pawz Pet Supply our main focus is nutrition. We carry pet foods made in the United States and Canada rated five star for providing your pets with the optimal nutritional value. We strive to carry the best quality, safest, U.S.A made treats and toys.

Some of the brands we carry:

Acana, Orijen, Petcurean, Merrick, Pinnacle, Canidae, California Natural, Honest Kitchen, Sojo's, Grandma Lucy's, Dr. Harvey's, Tiki Cat, Weruva, Wellness, West Paw Design, Planet Dog, Ruff Dawg, Ezy Dog, and many more!

Interested in Raw feeding? We carry three full lines, including Bravo, Primal, and Vital Essentials.

Store Info:

Monday-Saturday 10 am - 8 pm
Sunday 11 am - 6 pm

211 N. Maple, Ann Arbor, MI 48103
Located in the:

-Maple Village Shopping Center-

Phone: (734) 222-9622

www.greenpawzannarbor.com

C
r a z
y
W i s d o
m K
i d
s

The Crazy Wisdom Kids Section

Great kid-relevant articles, reviews of books, music and dvds, and listings for upcoming events for kids.

Children's Book and Media Reviews

By Sarah Newland, mother of two (ages five and thirteen), devoted parent of Waldorf education, and Senior Manager and Buyer at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore.

Children's Animal Spirit Cards

By Steven Farmer, with illustrations by Pamela Anzalotti

These simple, age-appropriate cards feature 24 spirit animals with corresponding messages that will provide easy to use guidance in your child's passage through childhood. The vivid images and profound messages offer daily teaching and comfort for children of all ages, but especially for kids ages six and above. The paintings are colorful and inviting, and the messages are succinct and inspirational; for example, the cougar card reads, "You can do it!" and the butterfly card reads, "Get ready for big changes." These words are simple messages kids can take in, and remind me of the best-selling Angel Cards, but with more words. A booklet for parents or older children comes with the deck. $14.99

World Music for Little Ears cd: Authentic Lullabies from Around the World

Presented by Ellipsis Arts

This collection of lullabies from around the world will ease your little ones to sleep with gentle lyrics sung in the native tongues of Ireland, Brazil, Wales, Africa, Nova Scotia, Cuba, and more. It is a musical welcome to a world in which the sweetness of a parent's love is universal. The selections on this recording were gathered from the award-winning lullaby series produced by Ellipsis Arts, including Latin Lullaby, African Lullaby, Celtic Lullaby, and Brazilian Lullaby. $12.98

Cozy cd: Radiant Child Music

By Shakta Kaur Khalsa

For 30 years, Shakta collected and composed songs in her various roles with children – as a mother, Montessori teacher, and founder of Radiant Child Yoga. These loving songs have been joyfully crafted to speak to children on every level – body, mind, and spirit. Many of the chants are from the Kundalini Yoga tradition, with newly added words children can relate to. Other songs are traditional American folk tunes, with children sometimes singing along. Cozy is an accompaniment to her other children's cd, Happy. $17.99

Magic Island Relaxation for Kids cd

This cd teaches children how to relax. Beginning with a playful tension-release exercise that loosens tight muscles and relieves physical stress, Magic Island directly engages the listener. With a background of peaceful music, the storyteller takes your child on an imaginary journey by hot air balloon to a magic island. Your child is encouraged to breathe deeply and quiet their mind, while emotions are soothed and imagination and creativity are expanded. 52 minutes. For ages 4 and up. $16.95

The Pocket Guide to Boy Stuff

By Bart King

This small book is super fun and enjoyable to read – even for parents! Written by a teacher whose goal it is to interest even the child who doesn't like to read, he includes experiments, activities, explosions, weapons, and gross stuff (my 12-year-old daughter went right to that section). Each entry isn't too long, and it's filled with great things to do. One hilarious thing I learned from this book: George Bush Sr. threw up on the lap of a Japanese prime minister in a Tokyo restaurant in 1992 – on television camera. The Japanese created a new word to honor the moment: bushuru – to vomit in a public place. $9.99

Children's Book and Media Reviews

Emily Windsnap's Fim-tastic Friendship Book
By Liz Kessler

Emily Windsnap and her best friend, Shona Silkfin, take you deeper into their world of mermaids and sea creatures, and offer tips and tidbits about their friendship. Based on the New York Times bestselling series, this is an activity book full of fin-tastic fun. From games and fill-in quizzes to crafts and stories, this book is packed full of pages to share with your best friend, including handwriting analysis, lists of favorite things, and how to make a friendship mobile. One thing I learned from this book: the Japanese believe mermaids cry pearls instead of wet, salty tears. $5.99

The Land of Long Ago
By Elsa Beskow

This is a delightful fairy tale from pioneering author and illustrator Elsa Beskow of Sweden. Central themes in Beskow's books are the relationships between children and adults, and children's independent initiative. Her books are continually reprinted and are well-loved especially by Waldorf families. In this book, Kelly and Kai love to play around their favorite old tree. One day, a mischievous gnome brings the trunk to life, and the children are whisked off to the Land of Long Ago on the back of the old tree dragon, meeting a princess, knights, and the troll king along the way. $17.95

101 Ways You Can Help Save the Planet Before You're 12!
By Joanne O'Sullivan

This book is wonderfully photographed with short entries on how to help make the planet thrive. It includes simple things all of us can do, such as litter-less lunches, green games, saving paper, eco-trips, saving energy, and helping animals. I think the book would be best for pre-teens and teens with a commitment to living eco-consciously.

One thing I learned from this book: use dryer lint as mulch in your garden! $14.95

The Barefoot Book of Mother & Daughter Tales
Retold by Josphine Evetts-Secker

with illustrations by Helen Cann Meet mothers and daughters from different traditions around the world. These stories deal with themes that challenge and guide girls on their passage to womanhood. Drawing on the collective wisdom of many generations, this is a book for mothers and daughters to share and celebrate. Evetts-Secker doesn't shy away from challenging issues, such as anger, jealousy, and hatred. Her goal is to help girls prepare and ready themselves for union with, and unity within, the cosmos. They also offer a global view of the planet, with tales from Greece, China, Germany, Russia, and Native cultures. Beautifully illustrated as Barefoot Books always are. $21.99

BOOK SIGNING & TALK

With Priscilla Warner author of
LEARNING TO BREATHE

MY YEARLONG QUEST TO BRING CALM TO MY LIFE

THURSDAY
February 9th at 7PM

BREATH
Crazy Wisdom Tea Room

More Than a Class
Research based program nourishes your child's brain & affects total development.

Instrument Exploration

Mixed Age Classes
Birth - 5

$30 Discount
For New Families

Baby and You

A Special Class for Baby and the Grown-Ups Who Love Them...

A warm, gentle, nurturing environment of activities to support your daily routine.

Together we will bounce, play instruments, listen, rock, folk dance, share hugs & laughter.

The More We Get Together
Nurturing Relationships Through Music, Play, Books & Art
A Resource & Activity Guide

Staff Development
Concerts and Assemblies
Pre-K - 2nd Grade

Gari Stein

garistein@aol.com
www.little-folks-music.com
ph/fax 734-741-1510

Tea with the Fairies at Crazy Wisdom

Thursday, February 23 with 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. seatings.

Mother's Day Fairy Tea
Sunday, May 13 at 1:00 -

Children and their families are welcome for tea and petits fours served by real-life fairies! Celebrate with our magical fairies as they serve tea, treats, and magic.

There will be storytime from books available from Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. Fairy attire is encouraged.

Be creative! $11 per person. Tickets are available by stopping in to Crazy Wisdom or by phoning prior to event.

Babies 18 months and younger free. For information, call 665-2757; christina@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Conscious Parenting

Sweet Journeys and the Grocery Checkout

By Bernadette S. Kovach, Ph.D.

A mother and her toddler began their journey through the market around the same time as I did. I was immediately impressed at the mother's ability to negotiate the competing needs of her toddler's wish for attention and the task of shopping as they walked up and down the aisles. The mother talked to her toddler, pointing out the various labels and reading the ingredients in such a compelling way that I found myself interested in what she was reading. What seemed like a wonderful solution was the beginning of an interaction we have all seen or taken part in.

Nearing the third or fourth aisle, the toddler's interest in the boxes began to oscillate rapidly between disinterest and a desire to hold the objects. "Have that?" was a frequent refrain to which the mother answered, "No, we don't need that." The mother, beginning to look a little frazzled, offered her child a toy and some snacks, redirecting the toddler's attention to what they had with them. For a time, the offers of toys and snacks contained the emotional overload, and mother and child marshaled on. As I continued my shopping, I occasionally heard the mother directing her child to notice something on one of the shelves by inquiring if her toddler could find the red can or the blue box.

As luck would have it, they completed their journey around the same time as I did. It was at the checkout that the now fatigued mother and child began an easily recognizable interaction. The toddler wanted candy and, by this point, had become loud and insistent that her demands be met. Leaning toward the candy counter, she was able to snag one of the chocolate bars, and so took matters into her own hands. She wanted something and at that moment the something she wanted looked like candy. The toddler could no longer look at all the shelves of colorful items without taking action.

The mother, looking more frazzled and slightly embarrassed, asked the toddler to give up the candy, reminding her they have candy at home and snacks with them. Holding tight to the candy, the toddler insisted that she found what she wanted and became even more distraught when her mother put the candy back.

Remembering how it felt when you were little can help bring the focus back to what you want to offer your child and what works for both of you.

In retrospect, it appears the mother's desire to complete her own task left her vulnerable to forgetting that her method would set up a desire in the toddler to have what she saw. It is easy in shopping centers or groceries for both adults and children to become overwhelmed and feel needy because everything in the store is set up to entice. Although the mother read the labels with enthusiasm to entertain her child, it likely increased the toddler's desire to have what was outside of the cart. Then in the checkout line, when the toddler asserted an independent and creative solution to wanting something outside of what she and her mother could supply, the mother was unable to empathize with her daughter's solution. I also wondered if the toddler wanted to shop and put things in the basket, as mommy had.

Watching the interaction, I was reminded of news articles I have read debating if grocery stores should remove candy from the checkout counters or place the candy at a level not visible to a child in a shopping cart. While these can be valuable solutions that take into consideration how difficult it is for children to see something and not touch, it is also worth considering what the child and mother are really in need of, desiring, and what has led up to it.

We can all identify with a parent who wants a few more minutes to finish a task. A parent's competing desires can result in an over estimation of what can be emotionally tolerated by a child at any age. In this, and similar instances, remembering the child's capacity to wait, the stimulation of a grocery store, particularly a store that sells items other than groceries, and the number of invitations to reach out and explore are important considerations to keep in mind when embarking on the adventure. Remembering that toddlers and even older children enjoy exploring their world through tactile means, as well as moving about freely and being part of the excitement, can help us consider ways to make shopping adventures remain fun.

Remembering how it felt when you were little can help bring the focus back to what you want to offer your child and what works for both of you. Sometimes taking a few minutes to play with a familiar toy or redirecting the child's attention to his or her own pretty clothes or something they share with you can help decrease the external stimulation. Asking the toddler to help you place items in the basket keeps them engaged while satisfying the need to touch. Taking a few moments to rest or ending the trip before you would like can also be a good enough solution. It may also be in the best interest of both mother and child for mother to take a shopping trip alone. This gives both mother and child a time to do something different and come back together with renewed enthusiasm.

The toddler could no longer look at all the shelves of colorful items without taking action.

Even with planning, it is at times impossible to predict how your child might react on any given day. A child's capacity to self-soothe or be soothed depends on many factors related to the child's changing developmental capacities and your own emotional state and awareness. The parent's ability to maintain a sense of calm and use a child's actions as a form of communication is influenced and complicated by how the parent was parented. Recalling how our parents handled these situations is part of remembering what led up to our solutions and our automatic responses.

Some parents are also more prone to becoming anxious or angry when they feel helpless or incapable of helping their child. Talking with friends, being involved with toddler groups and caring preschools, or seeking an outside consultation can assist parents in becoming more aware and accepting of the constitutional and historical factors that will help make the adventures of parenting sweeter for everyone.

Bernadette S. Kovach, Ph.D., is a Fully Licensed Clinical Psychologist, Adult Psychoanalyst, and Advanced Child Candidate at the Michigan Psychoanalytic Institute. Dr. Kovach is affiliated with Allen Creek Preschool, Wayne State University, University of Detroit-Mercy, and Madonna University. Her clinical practice serving all age groups is located in Plymouth, Michigan. Dr. Kovach can be reached at 734-812-1157 or by email at bkovach@sbcglobal.net.

Music and Parenting: Somewhat Like A Symphony

*By Gari Stein
Photos by Susan Ayer*

Music and Parenting: Somewhat Like A Symphony

Gari Stein of Music For Little Folks

“Music can be your best friend. A simple song can help slow things down, bring everyone together, and give your children a gift of lifelong memories.”

By Gari Stein
Photos by Susan Ayer

Music For Little Folks, founded in 1993, is a community music school, based in traditional music, for children birth through 5 years old and the grown-ups who love them. Working at a local pre-school, I saw the power of music go way beyond the fun factor. With a wish and a prayer, I ventured out on my own to take music into early childhood settings throughout Washtenaw County.

Branching out to provide family classes, I observed much more happening when singing and dancing than the music. Not just with the children, but with the grown-ups, too. Big toes were tapping next to little toes. Folks were smiling and relaxing. Alongside the music making, I found myself conducting a symphony of parenting.

“With parents being their child’s first and favorite toy, making music together is a time to be fully enjoyed”

Space is always found for newcomers who are welcomed with open arms. Resources to introduce them to the community are gladly provided. My little music school became a safe, warm environment, inviting friendships and playgroups to form.

Support and networking play a big role in our time together. Folks return with 2nd, 3rd and even more siblings. When the time comes to move on, there are tears and heartfelt sadness from the children and the adults. “An important event of community,” “Our time together reminds me that there is still peace and calm in the world” – I love the sound of these comments from two moms.

“Accepting children where they are developmentally and not comparing them to other children will go a long way.”

Families from many backgrounds arrive with their own style of parenting. Some folks hover and fret. Introvers are coaxed out, while extroverts are reigned in. Some folks are laid back, giving children space, letting them be. Often adults label their child as shy, while I prefer slow to warm up. Some folks seem less secure in their parenting roles, having high expectations of behavior or performance. Some are just simply uncomfortable with the idea of movement.

The first rule is to always be prepared for the unexpected. First timers are given a handout of helpful hints and tips to enable the flow of the class. I instill a sense of silence in between activities. This gives the children time to process what they have just heard and make the transitions calm and productive. Children come away confident, with new musical and social skills — turn taking, being part of a group, and having a safe vehicle for self-expression.

Participation is a hot topic. Most children are kinesthetic learners. Some learn by doing, some by watching. I have to remind the adults that observation is a valid form of participation. Often parents want to see results with the child doing, doing, doing. I find the child that sits and just watches, taking it all in, may get more out of the program than the child that is doing, doing, doing. Children should be able to join in when they are ready. I gently encourage but never push.

Accepting children where they are developmentally and not comparing them to other children will go a long way. As a young parent, I realized I had to accept my children for what they were not, as much as for what they were. This breakthrough, while they were still young, saved us all a lot of therapy.

As an educator and grandmother, I have a lot of opinions on parenting. With parents being their child's first and favorite toy, making music together is a time to be fully enjoyed. I ask my families, for 60 minutes a week, to leave their expectations at the back door, to let their children be and experience the music in their own way and on their own time frame. Sounds simple, but this can be difficult, especially with so much pressure and hype from the media to make our children smarter and faster. It helps to remember that these children are only 1-2-3-4-5 years old.

If I see an adult struggling, I will take them aside and offer some suggestions to make the time together more enjoyable. I emphasize that they are the parent, but this is my experience and perhaps they might give it a try. Some are able, some simply cannot, and the beat goes on. Often there are cultural mores that affect the way the parent interacts.

What is the main goal of the program? Fun, of course, but this is serious music making. The fun can't happen if the adults are chit chatting with each other. The children can't listen to me or to the music if their adult is talking to them. To help with this listening process, we put on our listening ears, and zip zip zip our lips.

Listening skills are critical for learning and even the babies learn to listen. Our society has become very visually oriented, with babies being put in front of computers younger and younger. Research tells us this is not good for brain or visual development.

Making music requires no expense and can transform cranky to calm in an instant, helping parents get through challenging situations. Everyone is busy. Music can be your best friend. A simple song can help slow things down, bring everyone together, and give your children a gift of lifelong memories.

So, when all else fails, try singing and dancing. It really works!
Put on a waltz and bring out the scarves.
Share laughter, hugs and more.

###

Gari Stein is the founder and director of Music For Little Folks (little-folks-music.com) in Ann Arbor and has 30 years of experience with early childhood education. She is the author of Sing With Me: A Music Curriculum and The More We Get Together: Nurturing Relationships Through Music, Play, Books and Art. She can be reached at garistein@aol.com or 734-741-1510.

“Shouldn't childhood be a journey, not a race?
What's the hurry?”

Storyteller Laura Pershin Raynor ~ A Gift to the Community

By Karen Foulke Larson

It is 10:45 on a Wednesday morning, and kids and their grown-ups are streaming into the downtown branch of the Ann Arbor District Library. Some children arrive in strollers or in their mothers' arms. Others are walking, and a few are even running toward the cheerful story corner of the youth department. By 11:00 a.m. the crowd of toddlers, infants, parents, grandparents, and daycare providers has grown to over 60 people who are eagerly anticipating Preschool Storytime.

Laura welcomes the crowd with her smile, friendly greetings, and the warmth in her voice. Some of them are visiting for the first time, but most are return visitors, with high expectations for the stories and songs. The enthusiasm is visible in their faces as children and adults greet "Miss Laura." Miss Laura is Laura Pershin Raynor, a nationally known storyteller and a youth librarian at the Ann Arbor District Library.

Storytime begins and a roomful of children and grown-ups become the rain ("pitta-patta, pitta-patta") and the wind (following Laura's arm movements). They sew with words and movements ("snip, snip, snip" and "stitch, stitch, stitch") following Laura's melodic voice.

For this session, Laura leads all the songs and the dances, and gives kids the opportunity to move around in between the stories. Other days, Storytime includes the accompaniment of professional musicians.

Storyteller and librarian Laura Pershin Raynor has a talent for captivating audiences of all ages.

Laura says that, after being in school all day, the kids wanted to play and not sit still. So she had them act out stories, put on finger plays, and even repeat silly back-and-forth rhymes.

Photo by Ken Raynor

Laura Pershin Raynor

Laura Pershin Raynor performs at storytelling festivals across the country, but her biggest impact may be in Ann Arbor where she has been a positive literary influence on thousands of Ann Arbor youth with her work as a librarian.

Years after Ann Arbor's young people have outgrown Storytime, they still remember Laura...One young man in a Pioneer High School letter jacket saw her and shouted, "Story Lady!" Laura laughs, "For a second, he forgets that he is cool, and the wall comes down. Then he looks around, embarrassed."

Parental Approval

Betsy Beckerman is one of the musicians who provide music for Storytime. She first met Laura when she started bringing her own kids to the library 15 years ago. Betsy says, "She is still riveting for my kids!"

When she's playing the music, Betsy has a front-row view of the performance and the audience's reactions to Laura's storytelling. She describes how Laura "has a dynamic range and a variety of different voices. She also uses her body with great success." Whether Laura is a bumbling bear or a fairy princess, it is not just her voice, but also her body, that transforms.

The co-artistic director of the Wild Swan Theater, Sandy Ryder, has known Laura for approximately 20 years. Sandy says, "Laura is an amazing person and an incredible storyteller. She can bring puppets to life in a way that no one else can." Sandy adds that Laura "gets inside the story with her voice, with her smile, with her presence," which keeps the audience hooked.

Rohit Setty and his seven-year-old daughter, Shalini, started attending Laura's Storytimes when Shalini was 18 months old. He says, "Both Shalini and I are still captivated by each and every story that Laura tells and the way she tells them."

Inspiring Family Tradition

Storytelling has always been part of Laura's family traditions. Starting as a young girl, she attentively listened to her Grandma Dinah tell stories about coming to the United States from Russia at the age of 17. Laura says, "Her stories were my fairy tales."

Another favorite part of Laura's childhood was the weekly trips to the library with her dad. One of Laura's earliest memories of her dad is when he was telling stories at a family gathering, surrounded by his male cousins. "I truly believed that every family was filled with storytelling moments," Laura says. She didn't realize until she was in college that her friends didn't know their families' pasts like she knew her own.

Library Outreach

As an undergraduate student at Michigan State University, Laura discovered a little public library on Abbot Road in East Lansing, Michigan. She made it a habit to go once a week and was struck by the variety of ages there, which made it like a community. Parents were coming in with tots for story time, while elders were spending hours reading every newspaper in the library.

"I saw the children's librarian taking the kids on a little musical parade around the circulation desk. The children had shakers they had made out of paper plates and beans," Laura remembers. Her visits to that library helped her decide that she wanted to be a children's librarian. She graduated from Michigan State in 1976 with a bachelor of arts and an A.M.L.S. degree (master of arts in library science) and a K-12 teaching certificate.

In 1975, Laura worked part-time doing outreach for the Ann Arbor Public Library. Her job included visiting Peace Neighborhood Center after school. Laura says that, after being in school all day, the kids wanted to play and not sit still. So she had them act out stories, put on finger plays, and even repeat silly back-and-forth rhymes. She recalls that it was such a "joyous" time, incorporating stories and play into learning. Laura also began telling stories for adults as well as children, and searching for places to do it.

A National Pastime

In 1980, Laura and her husband moved to Boston, where he started a graphic design studio. Boston provided many professional opportunities for Laura. She got a job as an outreach librarian, at the library that her successor in Ann Arbor had left!

It was at that library that Laura found a co-worker and friend who shared her passion for storytelling, Ellen Block. Laura recounts, "I was fortunate that a storytelling revival was occurring in New England and around the country. Ellen and I traveled through Massachusetts, Vermont, and New Hampshire together, telling stories at schools, libraries, and festivals." They also began teaching workshops for teachers and at library conferences and elder hostels.

During their years in Boston, Laura's daughters, Molly and Emma, were born. A decade later, Laura and her family moved back to Ann Arbor. Laura returned to working at what is now called the Ann Arbor District Library.

Photo by Lisa Zeldes

Laura with her daughters

Storytelling is a family tradition for Laura Pershin Raynor (center) and her daughters Emma (left), a photographer, and Molly (right), a poet.

Laura is part of a team of librarians who, she says, "are amazing. We all have different styles, and we learn from each other." She also appreciates how "Ann Arbor parents understand the importance of imagination and are not afraid to be silly," and adds, "Ann Arbor spoils me rotten!"

Whether Laura is a bumbling bear or a fairy princess, it is not just her voice, but also her body, that transforms.

What's Your Story?

Laura got permission from her family members to fictionalize their tales in order to make them universal, and recorded them on two CDs for young adults and adults. Both "All Dressed Up" and "A Well-Kept Secret" (which won a Parents' Choice Award from the Parents' Choice Foundation) include Laura's sense of humor.

Laura's storytelling takes her across the country to perform. For 15 years, she has been a storyteller at the Celebration of Light Festival in Midland, Texas. Laura performed at the National Storytelling Festival in 2004; then in 2005, she was part of the Teller-in-Residence Program, both in Jonesborough, Tennessee. She has also performed at festivals in Utah, California, and Virginia.

In 2009, Laura and her husband, Ken, spent a week with professional storyteller Donald Davis on North Carolina's Ocracoke Island. They were part of a group of 14 people from across the country who took a workshop with Davis on finding and telling their unique stories. PBS aired a television series called "What's Your Story?" with footage from that week, and a DVD of the series will be released in 2012.

Continued on page 62

We pay writers

We are looking for good articles about the holistic scene...reportage, personal journaling and essays, profiles, interviews, journalistic explorations, and other feature writing.

For more info, be in touch with bill@crazywisdom.net

Windrise Retreat Center

Celebrating 17 years of hosting women's & men's groups, small corporate meetings and events, retreats and family reunions.

Enjoy private use of 140 acres of pristine nature with hills, old growth woodlands, meadows and pastures bordered by the Flint River. Canoe or kayak in the pond. Hike, mountain bike, snowshoe or cross country ski the wooded trails that crisscross the land.

Prime retreat dates are available year round. To arrange a tour, or to book your preferred dates, call Estela at 313-407-0953 or e-mail emo823@comcast.net

Windrise
Tel. 313-407-0953
Metamora, MI
www.windrise.com

Estela Monjo Boudreau is pleased to announce the opening of Galeria Mariposa, her sculpture gallery and studio in Grosse Pointe Woods, MI. For information on exhibitions and sculpture classes visit www.galeriamariposa.net

Storyteller Laura Pershin Raynor

Continued from page 61

Award-Winning Talent

Laura's talents have been widely recognized. The Creative Arts Institute of America honored Laura as National Storyteller of the Year in 1997. In 2006, she received the Michigan Library Association's Children's Services Award of Merit, which is granted to a librarian who has made an outstanding contribution to library service to children and young people in Michigan.

In 2011, the Ann Arbor Book Festival honored Laura as a Leader in the Literary Arts. The festival's program director, Jeff Kass, teaches creative writing at Pioneer High School and is the creative arts director at The Neutral Zone, a teen center in Ann Arbor. In Jeff's introduction of Laura at the awards ceremony, he mentioned the thousands of children whom Laura has influenced over the last 20 years and that, for a lot of kids in Ann Arbor, Laura is their introduction to literature.

Jeff uses his own kids as an example of Laura's influence. Even as toddlers, they learned to sit and "pay very close attention" to Laura's stories. "She makes stories really come alive," says Jeff.

Erin Helmrich, teen services librarian at the Ann Arbor District Library, has worked with Laura for eight years. Erin says, "Laura is a completely positive, open, and giving person whose lightness and positivity are contagious, and the parents and kids respond to that. Not to mention that so many of them are genuinely entertained by her amazing storytelling talent."

Lasting Impact

With over 20 years of working with Ann Arbor's youth, Laura has enjoyed the opportunity to "meet them as beginning readers, moving from red dot [books] to green dot" - and again as teens, when they still trust her to recommend books in the teen room.

Years after Ann Arbor's young people have outgrown Storytime, they still remember Laura. She tells a story about waiting in line behind a bunch of teenagers at a bagel shop on Main Street. Suddenly, one young man in a Pioneer High School letter jacket saw her and shouted, "Story Lady!" Laura laughs, "For a second, he forgets that he is cool, and the wall comes down. Then he looks around, embarrassed."

Laura's favorite part of her job is the sense of community created by parents, grandparents, caregivers, and kids all "meeting in a magical place for a few minutes."

As the hands of the clock in the youth department move toward 11:30 a.m., the crowd is still in a magical place and the young audience is oblivious of time. There are whispers of delight as Laura takes out the limberjack toys (wooden dolls with moveable limbs) that always dance with her last song.

Once Storytime ends, the crowd disperses to various parts of the youth section to browse the shelves, find a couch and read a stack of books, then take their selections to the self-check-out. The 30-minute Storytime has ended for the day, but parents like Betsy Beckerman, Rohit Setty, and Jeff Kass can tell you that the impact is ongoing.

Laura Pershin Raynor's storytelling inspires children and adults to love the art of storytelling, to love books, and to love visiting the library. As Sandy Ryder says, "Ann Arbor is so lucky to have Laura as a storyteller and as a person. She is a real gift to the community."

Visit the Ann Arbor District Library's website at aadl.org to see the list of Storytimes. To read more about Laura Pershin Raynor, go to her page at the National Storytellers Network website: <http://www.storynet.org/teller/directory.php?ID=148>. Laura may be contacted by email at lpaynor@gmail.com.

Laura Pershin Raynor's award-winning first CD, "A Well-Kept Secret," is out of print. Her second CD, for young adults and adults, "All Dressed Up," is available exclusively at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore.

Ann Arbor
Holistic Resource Guide

.....

Comprehensive. Useful.
Trusted. Accurate. Online.
Over 450 listings in 160+ categories.

The place to go for information about holistic practitioners in southeastern Michigan. And if you are a practitioner, please join in. It's easy to get listed - just register and you can include photos and multiple category listings. And it's free.

www.annarborholistic.com

@ Relax Station

MASSAGE THERAPY

Voted Best Massage In Ann Arbor
Walk-Ins Welcome
Open 7 Days a Week

Call 734-623-1951 301 W. Huron www.relaxstationmassage.com

The Power of Movement

Katy Held's quest to help her son inspired her to teach body and brain integration programs that reduce stress while enhancing brain function.

Photo by Dwight Cendrowski

By Karen Foulke Larson
Photography by Dwight Cendrowski and Doug Russell

Katy Held loves life. Katy and her husband Woody have a gregarious 14-year-old son, Oscar, and Katy works as a consultant, teaching people of all ages about the benefits of movement. She is devoted to her family and passionate about learning and teaching.

Katy is a Licensed Brain Gym Instructor/Consultant and a Sanctioned Bal-A-Vis-X Instructor/Consultant. Her business is called Learning from the Heart, which seems appropriate for a mom who has spent the last fourteen years finding information to benefit her son Oscar, and, in the process, has helped children, parents, teachers, and health care professionals.

Inspiration

Oscar was born in 1997, and, although the Helds actively sought answers and help for their baby boy, it took eight months of doctor appointments and tests before it was confirmed that Oscar had experienced a significant stroke as a newborn that affected his right side.

Katy says the news of the stroke was "pretty devastating" but it "started me on my quest" for helping Oscar. Online support groups provided valuable information. Katy first learned about Brain Gym from a posting by another mother.

Brain Gym is a system of movements that reduce stress naturally and quickly enhance brain function. It is suitable for all ages. The program has existed for more than 30 years and it's estimated to be used by well over 10,000 schools in 88 countries around the world.

In 2001, Katy signed up for her first Brain Gym class. It was a four-day Brain Gym 101 for Special Education in Farmington Hills. She says that class was “one of the most life changing experiences I ever had.”

The class was taught by Cecilia Koester, who has become both a friend and mentor to Katy. Ten years later, Katy can still describe in great detail the immediate benefits of Brain Gym for the kids who participated in the class. One boy, who initially had trouble even holding his pencil, wrote clearly after his Brain Gym exercises, and then proudly showed his work to the group. Katy says, “I still get goose bumps every time I tell that story.”

Katy’s response to the Brain Gym class was, “That’s what I’m meant to do!” That feeling was reinforced when she saw how these exercises benefitted Oscar.

During that class, Cecilia also provided Katy’s introduction to Bal-A-Vis-X (BAVX), a brain integration program that integrates the senses of BALance, AUDitory and VISion using rhythmic eXercises done with beanbags or racquetballs. Katy laughs as she recalls being “so bad” at her first attempts at BAVX. She says she was over-focused and bouncing the balls at her partners’ feet.

Three years later, in 2004, Bill Hubert, the man who developed BAVX, taught a workshop in Westland, Michigan. Since many of the exercises require two hands, Katy wasn’t sure how well they would work for Oscar, whose right hand still wasn’t very functional. After reading Bill’s book, she decided to sign up for the class and asked Bill if he would be willing to work one-on-one with Oscar.

Oscar was a happy seven year old, but he did have some physical issues, attention issues, and difficulty holding his head still and tracking with his eyes. After ten to fifteen minutes of bouncing balls and Oscar rocking on a balance board, there was a dramatic difference in Oscar’s ability to track with his eyes!

The Teacher

It only takes a few minutes of talking to Katy to understand why she teaches. She is passionate about what she does and she loves helping people.

“As the parent of a child with physical and learning challenges, I know the stress that other parents feel, and how that transfers to their children.”

– Katy Held

Photo by Dwight Cendrowski

Using a combination of approaches including BAVX, Brain Gym, and Rhythm Movement Therapy, Katy has helped improve their attention, motor planning, and visual tracking. Sue says, “As a parent, I can’t ask for anything more.”

Sue adds that last summer Lauren and Ella did BAVX before their tennis lessons and their grandma, Eleanor Bresky, was amazed at the improvement in their rhythm, hand-eye coordination, and fluidity in their overall movements. Eleanor now uses some of the same exercises before she goes golfing.

Sue works as an Occupational Therapist in a K-8 school and in an outpatient office treating adults with acquired mild traumatic brain injuries. She has seen BAVX help both groups. Sue says, “The students show improved focus and better behavior... and my patients with brain injuries also benefit from improved attention and awareness of timing.” Sue adds, “Both groups also demonstrate improved ocular motor skills for tracking/reading, etc. Better yet – both kids and adults enjoy BAVX.”

Pat Hansel teaches in a cross-categorical classroom in Canton that includes students with emotional impairments and cognitive impairments. She uses BAVX with her students daily. Pat says, “Katy is my hero because she has changed the way I evaluate my students’ needs and then the way I approach teaching. She has shown me how important movement is in a child’s ability to learn, especially the struggling learner. I have seen wonderful results now that I look at children’s foundational skills first — their auditory, visual, motor, and sensory skills. Katy has shown me techniques to use to improve those foundational skills so that I can see improvement in their formal learning: reading, writing, and math.”

Pat describes Katy as “selfless” because of her positive, caring teaching style. She says Katy is a “great teacher” because of “Katy’s knowledge of the brain and the body and the importance of them to be fully integrated and her passion to share it in understandable terms.” Katy has taught these programs at Detroit Country Day, Oakland County ISD, Children’s Hospital, University of Michigan Hospital, as well as in the Chelsea, Dexter, Whitmore Lake, Ann Arbor, Brighton, Livonia, Novi, Farmington Hills, Rochester and Northville school districts. Her sessions usually include occupational therapists, physical therapists, social workers, teachers, and parents.

Karen Koets, a first grade teacher in Gull Lake, Michigan, heard about BAVX and Katy Held from a colleague. When she saw that Katy was teaching BAVX as part of an early childhood seminar in the fall of 2010, she signed up just to take Katy’s session. She says the training was interesting and informative and adds, “Katy has a way of bringing what you need to make it easy to take back to our classrooms.”

Koets includes Bal-A-Vis-X as part of a “Read and Ride” summer camp, which includes children reading to therapy dogs and therapeutic horseback riding. She says, after only one week of camp, there is a dramatic increase in their reading scores, which she attributes to BAVX.

Life in Balance

Katy finds that helping parents also benefits their kids. She knows that when parents are doing BAVX and Brain Gym and reducing their stress, their kids benefit. After a child has taken a few sessions, she offers a free session to either parent.

Katy says, “I don’t charge much. I’d rather be accessible.” She speaks from the experience of a mom who tried so many types of therapy (some at great cost) to help Oscar. Even her website includes a list of mainstream and alternative therapies that she is “glad to share any information about to interested parents.”

As a student in one of Katy Held’s classes, it is hard to picture the stressed, over-focused mom that Katy describes herself to have been back when Oscar was little. She has positive energy, a friendly manner, and a sense of humor that puts everyone at ease. Koets says Katy’s sessions are “relaxed and comfortable.”

Photo by Dwight Cendrowski

Katy has logged over 1,300 hours of coursework. She says, “The more I learn, the more I want to learn. I never get bored.”

Melissa Gallagher’s son Carson does Rhythmic Movement Therapy with Katy. Melissa says, “Katy is wonderful! She explains things very clearly and has always been very friendly, patient, and easily approachable.”

Sue Bresky describes Katy as “really incredible” and says her daughters, Lauren and Ella, love Katy and ask to do BAVX.

Katy attributes the delay in finding out that Oscar had a stroke to the fact that, “So many doctors don’t know that kids can have strokes.” According to the Children’s Hemiplegia and Stroke Association, strokes occur in infants who are younger than 1 month old in approximately 1 in 4,000 live births. For children 1 to 18 years old, strokes occur in 11 out of 100,000 children.

The Power of Movement

Continued from page ____.

It is easy to see how much she loves what she does. Katy says, "I feel grateful. I can't imagine anything I can do [that would be] more fulfilling. It is complete satisfaction and joy to see kids say, 'I can do this now,' and parents say, 'look what they can do.'"

After years of learning BAVX and Brain Gym, Oscar assists his mom with Bal-A-Vis-X trainings. He is very proud of being "whole-brained" and like his mom constantly has a smile on his face and a friendly, helpful attitude.

Katy Held's journey to help others began with her own son Oscar, but what she has learned has now benefitted so many other people. She says, "My intention for working with children and adults is to create a safe place for them, where they come to feel honored just as they are. Through our movement sessions, be it Brain Gym, Bal-A-Vis-X, reflex integration movements, or some combination of these, we create a space for higher functioning to occur naturally. As the parent of a child with physical and learning challenges, I know the stress that other parents feel, and how that transfers to their children. I come to this practice from my heart, to help children and their parents lower their stress levels, grow closer and be the best they can be."

Find out more about Bal-A-Vis-X®, Brain Gym®, and other services provided by Katy Held at the Learning from the Heart website: www.learningheart.com.

"I have seen wonderful results now that I look at children's foundational skills first — their auditory, visual, motor, and sensory skills. Katy has shown me techniques to use to improve those foundational skills so that I can see improvement in their formal learning: reading, writing, and math."

– Canton Teacher Pat Hensel

Photo by Doug Russell

"One boy, who initially had trouble even holding his pencil, wrote clearly after his Brain Gym exercises, and then proudly showed his work to the group."

– Katy Held describing the first Brain Gym class she attended

Photo by Doug Russell

Photo by Doug Russell

"Through our movement sessions, be it Brain Gym, Bal-A-Vis-X, reflex integration movements, or some combination of these, we create a space for higher functioning to occur naturally."

– Katy Held

Katy Held's Tips to Maximize Brain Function

By Katy Held

- 1. Hydrate. Our brain is 75-85% water. Water is an element of our body. One of the best things you can do for your brain is to sip water constantly throughout the day. Encourage your children to sip water often. Get them their own "brain juice" bottle. Drink extra water when you are under stress. For every cup of coffee, which is a diuretic, drink an extra glass of water. For every glass of alcohol, drink two extra glasses of water.
- 2. Limit flat screen time. Flat screens include TV, computers, Gameboys or Nintendo DS, cell phones, and so on. Flat screens are two-dimensional, but our eyes are made for looking at three-dimensional objects. Too much flat screen time weakens eye muscles and tracking issues can result. For every 30 minutes of flat screen time, balance it with playing outside whenever possible or just take a flat screen break. Look away from the computer screen every 10-15 minutes to give your eyes a chance to refocus in 3D.
- 3. Do some cross-lateral movement every day. Walking is great for the brain, especially when your arms swing. Moving your left arm activates your brain's right hemisphere and moving your right leg activates your brain's left hemisphere. So, when you swing your arms as you walk, you activate both hemispheres simultaneously, which makes it easier to think. If you walk and don't swing your arms, you are only activating one hemisphere at a time.
- 4. Practice Cross Crawls. If you're a parent of a child at least 5-years-old, see if they can do this movement pattern easily: Touch one hand to their opposite knee, then touch their other hand to the opposite knee. The child can start out seated, but ideally they should be able to do this standing. If they have trouble reaching across to their opposite knee, or naturally touch the knee on the same side, you can put a sticker on the R hand and L knee (or vice versa) and have them match the stickers. When your child can effortlessly cross the midline — which in Brain Gym is called the Cross Crawl — for about a minute every day, life will be easier, as they will now be able to access both hemispheres at the same time. Just before it's time to do homework, put on some fun music and do some Cross Crawls for at least a minute. Homework should be easier afterwards.
- 5. Get up, stand up. Nature designed us to be moving, not sitting still at desks or on couches. After we sit for 15 minutes, the blood starts pooling in our legs and our brains get sluggish. So a good rule of thumb is to get up and move every 15 minutes, even if it's only to do a big stretch. It will keep our brains more active if we move our bodies.
- 6. Exercise your eye muscles. Eye tracking is critical for reading. If your child struggles with reading, check their eye tracking. Simple things like playing catch or bouncing a ball back and forth are excellent for exercising eye muscles, which will help with eye tracking. If a child can't track an object through space easily, reading will likely be a challenge. It may also be difficult to pay attention in school if eye tracking is poor. To quote Bill Hubert: "Where the eyes go, attention follows."

Green Apple Garden
Child Care & Preschool

Nature-Based Education
Spanish Language Immersion Program Naturescape Playground

www.GreenAppleGarden.org

Barb Christensen, Breaking Barriers (and Boards) in Karate

How one of the first female black belts in Shimabukuro karate went on to lead her own club in Ann Arbor

Interviewed by Bill Zirinsky
Photos by Joni Strickfaden

Barb Christensen was the first woman in her karate school to reach black belt and one of the first women in the entire style to do so. She helped found the National Women's Martial Arts Federation and was one of the first women to run a local martial arts studio here in Ann Arbor. She is the head instructor at the Okinawan Karate Club of Ann Arbor and a 7th-degree black belt in Shorin Ryu karate. I sat down with her at her sunny and well cared for home on the west side of Ann Arbor, and she talked about her path to becoming a female karate instructor, the emphases of her karate program for kids, and the rewards of being a martial artist.

Bill Zirinsky: Barb, where were you raised, and how long have you lived in the Ann Arbor area?

Barb Christensen: I grew up in the Toledo area and I have spent my adult life in Ann Arbor.

Bill Zirinsky: When did you begin in martial arts? And what drew you in, initially?

Barb Christensen: When I was a freshman in college, I took a self-defense course. After it ended, some of us began attending Tae Kwon Do classes with the instructor. The self-defense class wasn't real interesting, but I loved the athleticism of the martial arts classes. We were taught and pushed to do a lot of new things. That made it both interesting intellectually and challenging physically.

Bill Zirinsky: You practice Shorin Ryu karate, is that correct? Have you been doing that since the beginning and, if not, what caused you to change to that style of karate?

Barb Christensen: I started out in Tae Kwon Do, which is a Korean form with the same roots as karate. After a few years, I migrated to Shorin Ryu because I liked the completeness of the style. In addition to the empty hand aspects, the Shorin Ryu school also taught five weapons, which was unusual at the time.

BZ: When did you get your black belt? And what level are you at now?

Barb: I earned 1st-degree black belt in 1978 and I now hold the rank of 7th-degree black belt.

BZ: When you started, were there lots of girls and women in the martial arts? What was it like back then for females?

Barb: I was the first female at my dojo [school] to reach black belt and I believe the third in the entire style of Grandmaster Shimabukuro. There were not many women in the martial arts at all. But, the seventies were a very energetic and enthusiastic time for young women to try "men's" activities. We were pushing against all kinds of barriers in sports and in the work world. So young women were becoming interested in martial arts and were joining area clubs. That met with some interesting dynamics, as virtually all of the instructors and top students were male, and women wanted to take their place in the programs.

Barb Christensen is the founder and long-time head instructor of the Okinawan Karate Club of Ann Arbor.

BZ: Are there a lot of women now at the higher levels in karate, and what about years ago?

Barb: There were very few women black belts then. The martial arts in general were much younger here in the states and for women – we were just getting started. Now, there are many high-ranking women. In my style, one woman has a 9th-degree black belt, which is as high as anyone can go, other than the Grandmaster.

BZ: You were one of the founders of the National Women's Martial Arts Federation. What were its origins? How big was it originally, and how big is it today?

Barb: In the seventies and eighties, a lot of female martial artists were getting together for conferences and trainings in order to share expertise, support each other, and socialize. There were many very talented women who were training around the U.S. and in Canada, and we eventually created a formal organization that still exists today. There is a five-day training every summer that is attended by women from all over the U.S. and also from Canada and Europe. The trainings are smaller now, but the skill level of the instructors is very high and there is great camaraderie and exchange of ideas and training methods.

BZ: Where is Shorin Ryu based? Can you briefly tell us the story of its roots, and also trace its emigration to the U.S.?

Barb: Shorin Ryu is a popular style with three main branches, all coming from Okinawa, Japan. Our organization is headed by Grandmaster Eizo Shimabukuro, tenth dan [rank]. In general, Chinese fighting arts mixed with indigenous arts in Okinawa to create systems of karate. Shotokan is a very well-known Japanese style that came from Shorin Ryu, and Tae Kwon Do is

Centers of LIGHT
It's a soul thing

Parenting from the Heart

The heart has its own "intelligence" that the mind doesn't have. In this class we will explore the source of our parenting values, usings exercises and meditations to guide our parenting choices.

Monday, January 16th
Monday, February 13th
Monday, March 12th

The class will run from 7pm-8:30pm at Crazy Wisdom Community Room

For more information contact Rev Selena @ 734-330-5048 or revselena@centersoflight.org

a well-known Korean style that also came from Shorin Ryu. After World War II, there were a lot of military bases on Okinawa and Americans stationed there studied with local masters. When they returned to the U.S., some of them began teaching karate. Karate has spread and grown over the decades, with Americans continuing to travel to Okinawa and Japan for training, and Masters from there coming here.

BZ: Approximately how many Shorin Ryu martial arts clubs are there now in the U.S.?

Barb: I don't know. Way too many to count and many different branches.

BZ: And are they all associated with the same Grandmaster? If so, is it a close association, or more varied? Are others of the clubs led by women?

Barb: There are several Shorin Ryu Grandmasters and quite a few associations here of various sizes. Some schools are independent and others are closely associated with their roots. There are many schools and clubs that are headed by women, or headed by women in partnership with men.

BZ: Overall, can you describe the changes in the atmosphere for women in martial arts over these 35 years?

Barb: The changes are so drastic it is hard to describe. I would never have imagined the success that women have had in the martial arts. When I was training in the seventies, there was a fair amount of open hostility towards women. We were pushing for acceptance and respect and, as a result, many of us were booted out of the schools we attended. There was a serious glass ceiling and, in fact, Judo had a formal policy that women could only go as high as 5th degree, while men could go to 10th.

BZ: You said to me that, on a local level, you knew everybody here in town in the martial arts 25 years ago. Tell us about the "scene" then, and about the "scene" now?

Barb: Martial arts in the U.S. has grown tremendously and is now a very popular activity for children as well as adults. Previously, in Ann Arbor, many of the clubs were associated with the University on some level. At that time, anyone could use the U of M gyms. So there were formal student clubs as well as clubs for a combination of students and community members. We used to train at the Intramural Building and at the old Waterman Gym. Now most of the schools are commercial or clubs associated with the Y or Rec and Ed. Our club rents space and meets a few times a week. I know many of the long-time instructors here, but there are a lot that I don't know at all now. Ann Arbor is a popular place to locate a school.

BZ: You said to me that you're "very earthbound, very grounded" and that you want to talk about concrete things, that you're perhaps less inclined to talk about martial arts philosophy than instructors in other schools. Can you say more (or less) about that?

Barb: Well, activities lend themselves to personalities that mesh with their philosophy. I think there is a perception that martial arts people sit and meditate for hours and read people's minds. There are some people who emphasize that, but most of us are very ordinary people with ordinary families and lives. Karate has low stances and is grounded and stable. It also has a lot of sharp, staccato movements. We start on time and end on time and don't spend much time philosophizing about it. We just do it.

"My class is not based on competition. There are many competitive sports available and I wanted a more inclusive atmosphere for kids..."

BZ: Tell us about your program...how many kids and how many adults, what do you focus on, what are the strengths of your program?

Barb: At this point, I am the head instructor overall. But I handle the children's program and my student, Missy Siudara, handles the adult program. Some of the adults have children that joined and then the parents followed. Likewise, the adults have enrolled their children in the kids' classes and many of them help teach. We have about thirty kids from age four to 14. We focus on traditional karate technique and personal development in the area of leadership. The students who continue in the program receive instruction in teaching and leading classes and exercises. The school is small enough that everyone is my student and I teach all of the classes at this point.

BZ: I know that different martial arts studios have varying emphases: self-defense, character and self-esteem, competition, etc. Where does your studio fit on that continuum?

Barb: Everyone who teaches imparts some of their values through whatever they are teaching. For some kids, it is very hard to manage their behavior to be the kind of example to younger kids that we want them to be. For others, it is hard to get up in front and speak up and demonstrate with confidence. So along with physical karate technique, this is what I work with the students on. It is great for adults as well as kids. If you can teach a class, you can run a meeting. It is very useful training.

BZ: You told me you focus on "leadership." Please elaborate.

Barb: A few years ago, I started a program for intermediate/advanced students called the Black Belt Club. It is a leadership group that I work with in teaching and leading exercises. I teach them about the history and tradition of karate and the nuts and bolts of teaching. They work on using a commanding voice, keeping a steady pace, and thinking on their feet. The kids lead warm-up exercises, model techniques, and help the lower-ranking students. They eventually work their way up to teaching a class on their own when they are black belts. In the high schools in Ann Arbor, there are many opportunities for leadership in the different after-school activities. This program helps prepare kids to be ready to take their place in high school, college, and the workplace.

BZ: When did you begin your program for Little Dragons?

Barb: We started Little Dragons about eight years ago. The idea is to give a separate environment for the under-seven-year-old group, as their needs are much different than the nine-, ten-, and 11-year-olds. It has been a wonderful and fun program and I have had several students who started in Little Dragons and stayed to earn their black belt.

BZ: You told me that in your program, every kid gets her/his turn, everybody wins...please explain.

Barb: Yes, my class is not based on competition. There are many competitive sports available and I wanted a more inclusive atmosphere for kids. I was a very good athlete, but I always enjoyed the practices more than the games. The stress of competing was a de-motivator for me. I love the athleticism and focus on improvement in the martial arts, and I try to create an environment where there are unlimited opportunities to expand, improve, and grow. Every student participates fully in the classes and advances through the belt system. Class attendance is the most important factor.

BZ: How long does it take to get a black belt in your program?

Barb: For an adult, four to five years. For a child, five or six years.

BZ: You said that karate has been called "moving zen." Why?

Barb: There is nothing like the feeling one has after a great practice. The mind is calm and happy, as well as the body.

BZ: Can you get kids to do "moving zen"? Kids are pretty active, aren't they?

Barb Christensen, Breaking Barriers (and Boards) in Karate

Continued from page

Barb: Yes, well that varies. We have fairly rowdy times and we have quiet and focused times. Of course, the older and more advanced students are better about this than the young ones. But, many parents are surprised by the focus the kids have in class.

BZ: How might parents best determine the right martial arts school for their child?

Barb: The best thing to do is go watch or even have their child participate in a class. See how comfortable it feels. The students have to enjoy it or they won't continue long enough to benefit. Some places are very structured, others more flexible. Some are competitive and attend tournaments. There is a lot of variety and many different arts and styles.

“The seventies were a very energetic and enthusiastic time for young women to try “men’s” activities. We were pushing against all kinds of barriers in sports and in the work world.”

Barb: Karate is very challenging intellectually and this is what attracts a lot of people. Many sports are focused on winning, so they only work on strategies that will help them win. But, we have a huge variety of material that we cover. There is a lot of memorization, and also a lot of patterns and sequencing. But, unlike [academic] school, everything we do is in the context of practice and perfecting and moving up — trying to get it right. Since the students want to earn the next belt, they are very willing to do the work. Physically, we practice a wide variety of motor skills, more than any sport I have ever seen. So, the brain is working to get the body to be able to perform the tasks stronger, faster, and more accurately. The physical is in the context of learning and memorizing exercises, so many brain functions are working at the same time. Schools seem to be standardizing and narrowing the kinds of learning they emphasize and there seems to be a lot of memorization taken out of context.

So, it is important to participate in activities that cover a broader range of kinds of learning.

“[Karate is great for brain development because] we have a huge variety of material that we cover. There is a lot of memorization, and also a lot of patterns and sequencing... Physically, we practice a wide variety of motor skills, more than any sport I have ever seen. So, the brain is working to get the body to be able to perform the tasks stronger, faster, and more accurately.”

“Boys tend to be willing to lead, even when they are not totally confident that they know what they are doing. Girls want to make sure they are doing things correctly before they will get up in front. So I try to be mindful of this and provide settings for girls to gain confidence in ways that they are comfortable.”

BZ: You said to me that karate is great for brain development. Please tell us about the ways that skills are built, and what martial arts activities in your program enhance overall development.

BZ: Do you have kids in your programs with learning issues or attention issues, and how does your program help them?

Barb: We have a whole range of students and our program helps all of them. There are about 30 students at any one time, and many of them stay for years, so the instructors know the kids pretty well. We focus on helping each student move forward. There is no one absolute standard that everyone has to meet. It is flexible.

BZ: As a woman martial arts instructor, you can be an important role model for girls. Can you speak to that?

Barb: Obviously, the world is wide open to both girls and boys today. There are unlimited opportunities for both. This is a generalization, but my observation is that around age eight or nine, boys become more outgoing and confident and girls start pulling back. I think that boys' culture is more hierarchical and focused on moving up and being better than someone else. Girls tend to work on perfecting their own skills but are not necessarily driven to beat someone else. For instance, in sparring, a boy may be trying to win, while a girl may be trying to survive. Also, boys tend to be willing to lead, even when they are not totally confident that they know what they are doing. Girls want to make sure they are doing things correctly before they will get up in front. So I try to be mindful of this and provide settings for girls to gain confidence in ways that they are comfortable. Today, parents want their girls to be prepared to take leadership positions just as much as their

KIDS KRUISER L.L.C.

Safely Driving the Future
A Taxi for Kids

734.255.3556

 Kids Kruiser www.kidskruiser.com

boys. I don't think it is as much role modeling as that atmosphere. The trick is to help all students meet challenges without feeling defeated. It is a hard balance to achieve. There are many boys who are also not confident. I never criticize or embarrass anyone who gets up in front. I simply thank them and give corrections at another time.

BZ: You mentioned to me that you "look out for your girls." And that karate is confrontational, that girls quit in environments where they're overpowered. Would you explain these issues for our readers, and also talk about "boy culture" versus "girl culture"?

Barb: I think it is cooler for a boy to know karate than it is for a girl. So there are more rewards [for boys], because being tough is a lot more important in boy culture than it is in girl culture. But, parents want their daughters to be very competent and confident, so they really want them in activities like martial arts. The challenge is to provide a great atmosphere for everyone. We practice everything from rolling and falling to board breaking and sparring. I talk about that and remind students that there will be parts that are easy and comfortable, and there will be parts that are difficult and make them feel incompetent. The variety is a big strength of Shorin Ryu. I have seen many females quit martial arts throughout the years because they feel beat up physically and emotionally. Sparring is always optional and sometimes the girls opt out and practice something else or they might want to just spar with other girls their size. This can also be true for boys. Mostly kids really challenge themselves and get out there and practice and improve.

BZ: You said to me that moms and dads want their girls to be able to have a combination of emotional and physical safety. Please elaborate.

Barb: Obviously physical safety is a huge concern for parents of girls. I do not teach "self defense" and it is not my focus. However, the principles of karate are self-protection. Surprisingly, awareness, eye contact, and confidence can be more important than how hard someone can hit.

BZ: You have two daughters. What ages are they and what are they into? Did they study martial arts and, if so, did they like it?

Barb: I have two daughters, both in high school. They both trained in my class and earned black belts. They are very busy with school and sports activities, so they don't participate regularly in the club at this point. Do they like karate? Good question. I think they had a lot of fun and enjoyed it, but at the same time it was the obligatory "piano lessons" of our household.

BZ: You said that it's hard to keep a martial arts school alive without another job or other work. What is your background outside of the martial arts, and what have been your other occupations?

Barb: It is possible to make a living teaching martial arts today, because of the popularity with children. But, I never wanted my hobby to be my job. It is a labor of love for me and if I had to bring in students to pay the rent, I always thought the enjoyment would be gone. I am trained as an electrician and I worked in that trade in construction and in management at the U of M for many years. At this point, I am self-employed as a rental property owner and manager.

BZ: Over these many years of being into the martial arts, what's been most challenging about it for you? And what have you liked least about it, as a martial artist, and as a teacher of the martial arts?

Barb: The hard part is to balance teaching and learning. There is a saying that when you teach, you become a very good green belt. That means that we keep teaching the same basic material over and over and have little time to get our own training or to develop the advanced material. I have had the good fortune of always having students who are there to learn from me. Who can say no when there are 20 kids lining up and staring at you? It is very inspiring and energizing. I love teaching kids. It doesn't seem like work. I am always thinking about the next class, the next test, the next activity to introduce. I don't have the constraints of school; everyone is there because they want to be, and I have a great group of adult assistants. So there is not much that I don't like.

BZ: What have you most loved about being a karate practitioner, and what have you loved most about being a karate instructor?

Barb: What I like about the martial arts is the unlimitedness of it. There is always more to learn, more people to train with, more ways to practice. It is a wide-open sport.

###

Classes for adults and children at the Okinawan Karate Club of Ann Arbor are held at the Dakota Building at 1785 W. Stadium, inside the Mind, Body, Spirit Academy. Barb Christensen may be contacted at SenseiBarb@KarateAnnArbor.com or 734-678-3882.

An Extraordinary Education

The Rudolf Steiner School of Ann Arbor

Partnering with parents to prepare children for a life rich in knowledge, feeling, activity and joy

The educational foundation at The Rudolf Steiner School of Ann Arbor is built on the premise that knowledge is more than facts. The school's thoughtfully constructed curriculum is designed to support children through all stages of development.

Security Not Limits

Self-confidence and assurance come from knowing oneself well, from being able to test one's limits safely, and from being supported in occasional failures. Our teachers know that children develop a strong sense of self-worth through being successful and growing in an atmosphere of care and respect.

A Community Not an Institution

The Rudolf Steiner School of Ann Arbor is a strong community of parents, teachers and students. The school experience goes beyond the school day with plays and musicals, field trips, and strong relationships developed between families over the years.

Experience The Rudolf Steiner School of Ann Arbor

We invite you to schedule a tour to see why we are part of the fastest-growing educational movement in the world.

Early Childhood Program Options

- Parenting Program
- Parent-Infant Playgroups
- Parent-Child Playgroups: Two years at start of program
- Pre-Kindergarten: Three years by September 1
- Kindergarten: Four years by September 1

Now Enrolling
Openings Available in Kindergarten, 1st and 2nd Grades

New, Fun, and Just Plain Cool

Crazy Wisdom Kids in the Community

By Karen L. Totten

If you'd like to be considered for inclusion in the next Crazy Wisdom Kids column, please contact our columnist at: cwkidscolumn@crazywisdom.net. The deadline for submissions for the May thru August 2012 issue is March 1, 2012.

The Progressive Education Consortium (PEC) is a Washtenaw County group of individuals interested in alternative/progressive forms of education, who come together on a monthly basis to discuss how better to represent the schools they serve.

The consortium, which had its initial meeting in March of 2011, is a collaboration among local learning communities and alternative schools, including Clonlara School, New Point Learning Center, Ann Arbor Academy, Little Lake Learning Community, and Rudolf Steiner School. The consortium formed as a result of networking between two of the current members during an education conference early in 2010.

One problem for alternative school personnel is finding like-minded individuals with whom to troubleshoot, discuss problems and issues, and share ideas for finding those populations of school children who are a good fit for alternative programs. In the consortium, members can serve as resources for each other and as sounding boards. As Martha Rhodes, Campus Coordinator at Clonlara Campus School and PEC member, says, "If a student is not a good fit for Clonlara, I can recommend them to one or several of the other schools that I know might better suit his or her needs."

Another major function of the consortium is reaching out to the public through lecture series and other public events that showcase alternative approaches to education. Two lectures will be forthcoming in 2012: One at the Ann Arbor Academy (topic TBA) in January and another in March at Clonlara School.

One problem for alternative school personnel is finding like-minded individuals with whom to troubleshoot, discuss problems and issues, and share ideas for finding those populations of school children who are a good fit for alternative programs.

Additionally, the PEC is hosting a screening of the film Play Again, about the importance for children to have outdoor play and engage with nature. The movie explores the changing balance between "virtual" and "natural" worlds of six teenagers who, like the average American child, spend 5 to 15 hours a day behind screens (TV, computer, and otherwise). The film asks, "What are the consequences of childhood removed from nature?" Showtime is March 1, 2012, at 6:30 p.m. at Clonlara School. Donations will be used to help send students from the various PEC schools to a three-day April conference of the National Coalition of Alternative and Community Schools at The Farm in Tennessee.

While the consortium began as a vehicle for school administrators, Rhodes notes that participation is no longer confined to members exclusively from those realms. The PEC members have begun reaching out to persons interested in alternative education, from business and community leaders to anyone committed to the ideas behind progressive educational programs.

Dr. Diane Babalas and Abby

For further information on the PEC, contact Martha Rhodes at 734-926-4617.

"I have always loved working with children," says Diane Babalas, doctor of chiropractic, "because their systems have so much adaptability and are so open to change that miracles are commonplace." Babalas is speaking of the change that can occur in children whose nervous systems are affected by stress. Her practice utilizes an approach to chiropractic called Bio Geometric Integration (BGI), which emphasizes light touch and breath work to release tension from all parts of the body.

The gentleness of BGI makes it a great choice for children, says Babalas. Although children often have trouble remaining still, she says that work can still be done on them. Additionally, the treatment is not loud, scary, or painful. BGI deals with alignment, like traditional chiropractic, but also looks at the whole body, to take input from all tissues to help a patient relax.

Behind the practice of Bio Geometric Integration is a philosophy that our bodies are intelligent and know how to heal themselves. Symptoms of stress arise as a signal that we are unable to integrate and release stress from the body. The more stress accumulates, the more we have symptoms.

Stress can be physical, chemical, or emotional in nature, says Babalas, and indicators of problems include physical symptoms. She has treated children

• Uncle Goose • Kathe Kruse • Holziger • Plan Toys • Artterro • Fiensted • Blik • Haba •

Lexi's Toy Box
 (734) 332-1101
 Tuesday-Saturday 11a.m. - 5:30 p.m.
 328 South Ashley (between Liberty & Williams) Downtown Ann Arbor • Ample parking across the street
www.lexistoybox.com

• Uncle Goose • Kathe Kruse • Holziger • Plan Toys • Artterro • Fiensted • Blik • Haba •

with gait problems and those injured in falls, and well as cases of torticollis (inability to straighten the neck).

Signs that a child might be suffering chemical stresses include frequent illnesses, allergies and asthma, ADD, and seizures. She has had great results with children suffering from epilepsy staying seizure-free after several adjustments.

One of those miracles Babalas referred to involves a girl who at six months old was a lively child but whose neck was stuck to one side (torticollis). Her parents were considering surgery, but Dr. Babalas was able to relieve the neck spasm causing the misalignment of the bones, and thus the little girl was able to move her neck freely without requiring surgery.

Babalas found her way to chiropractic after years of performance in clarinet during undergraduate school led her to suffer a serious case of tendonitis. She couldn't wash her hair or brush her teeth due to the condition. After some time spent in the "medical model" of care, Babalas found chiropractic. Since it helped her so much, she decided to use her biology minor to pursue a four-year program in chiropractic school. She has been in practice in Ann Arbor for 11 years and using BGI for the last 10 years.

You can learn more about Dr. Babalas, her practice, and BGI at her website, gatewaychiropracticbgi.com, or by calling 734-239-6060. Her practice is located at 210 Collingwood, Suite 100, Ann Arbor, 48103.

Directed by Melissa Palma, the Little Lake Learning Community of Ann Arbor is a green-based democratic education environment for children. The program opened in 2010 and now hosts 14 students ages 4-13. Little Lake Learning Community is child oriented; a place where a child can explore his/her passions and interests, be they trains, sharks, art, or fort building. As Palma says, the role of the advisor (teacher) is to support each child on his or her educational, emotional, physical, and social journey.

“When students are motivated by passion or interest, then they learn more efficiently and authentically,” says Melissa Palma. This is, in effect, the guiding principle of democratically based educational programs.

The program takes on a theme area of study each semester. In fall 2011, the theme was water. Students explored the subject in their own ways, brainstorming to come up with sub-topics of interest and ways to approach them. The underlying assumption is that advisors don't have all the answers; and in this way co-learning can take place, with all participants engaged in discovery of the subjects. “When students are motivated by passion or interest, then they learn more efficiently and authentically,” says Palma. This is, in effect, the guiding principle of democratically based educational programs.

There are no grade levels at LLLC. The children are grouped loosely according to age: 4- to 7-year-olds and 8- to 13-year-olds. The groups work both independently and in concert, sharing group activities such as art or science projects, then breaking apart for other age-oriented studies. On the day I visited, a more structured period of English and math for 4- to 7-year-olds was followed by a group art activity for all the students, where they created holiday ornaments to sell at a school fundraiser.

Bio Geometric Integration (BGI)...emphasizes light touch and breath work to release tension from all parts of the body. The gentleness of BGI makes it a great choice for children, says Diane Babalas.

At Little Lake, children are free to learn what they like, though not to do so without direction. “It's not in a child's nature to do nothing,” says Palma. She finds that students are eager to learn when adults provide the opportunities and support, and step out of the way to let it happen.

Skill sharing is very valued by the program and an effort is made to welcome adults to bring their talents into the program. Palma's, mother, for instance, comes in on a weekly basis for physical education. In addition, Little Lake students go out into the larger community to explore, via weekly Wednesday field trips to various locations around the area.

In recent months, the group visited the Arb; traveled to the Heidelberg Project and the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle in Detroit; drew pictures at the University of Michigan Art Museum, explored the Hands-On Museum, and made use of local public libraries. Palma says, “If you are riding a public bus in Ann Arbor on a Wednesday and see a gaggle of kids, it's probably us!”

Continued on page 72

DANCERS EDGE AT "STUDIO D"

Competitive Dance Programs

Home of U of M Dance Team

Winter classes begin Jan. 23rd

Princess Camps, Pom Camps, Musical Theater Camps, Art Camps, Dance Camps, Girls Empowered Leadership Classes and more!

Register online at www.DextersDancersEdge.com

*Jazz • Hip-Hop • Ballet • Lyrical • Studio Technique • Tap • Baton • Cheer Voice Lessons • Piano Lessons • Adult Fitness • Art Classes
Team Building & Motivational Seminars • Girls/Boys Empowered Leadership Workshop • All ages Welcome • Private Lessons Available*

734.424.2626 • 3045 Broad St., Dexter dextersdancersedge@yahoo.com

Crazy Wisdom Kids in the Community

Continued from page 71

There are rules to follow, as with any environment, but the community of Little Lake has a strong commitment to a group-based approach to governance. Children, parents, and advisors are welcome to attend the weekly All-School Meeting, where the agenda is open to anyone who would like to add a topic of discussion. Everyone has an equal vote and equal say in determining the community's rules. When a change is proposed, consensus is used to make decisions.

This spirit of community extends to conflict resolution as well. Tensions that arise are handled by non-violent communication and peer mediation. Time is spent helping children learn to solve their problems with each other, rather than being told what to do. Palma says, "The role of the community is to help all members address their emotions in a healthy way, which leads to healthier people."

Little Lake Learning Community is open for additional enrollment. "We want to stay small," says Palma, "but we have room for about 30 [total]." To contact the school, call Palma at 734-218-4877 or visit their website at littlakelearningcommunity.org. The school is located at The Episcopal Church of Incarnation, 3257 Lohr Road, Ann Arbor, 48104.

Imagine being able to communicate with your pre-verbal toddler without resorting to guessing games. That's what Stephannie Moore helps parents and children accomplish through a program called Baby Signing Time, an interactive method that teaches American Sign Language through song and play.

Designed for hearing babies between 6 months and 36 months, the program teaches children basic signs for everyday events and emotions. "Children are able to sign much earlier than they can speak," says Moore. She leads them to make signs for key things like hunger, for example, and focuses on nouns and verbs, not the syntax or grammar of ASL.

"Children are able to sign much earlier than they can speak," says Stephannie Moore. She leads them to make signs for key things like hunger, for example, and focuses on nouns and verbs.

Not only does the system lead to fewer tantrums from frustrated children, but there are other benefits as well. According to Moore, research in the field supports the idea that babies who are taught symbolic language tend to have more developed vocabularies as they age. In addition, the interaction between parent and child develops their relationship and enhances bonding.

Moore's own interest in baby signing began after adopting an infant son in 2010 whose biological brother was most likely autistic. She wanted to ensure that her son was equipped with every communication tool at his disposal.

The baby signing program was developed by a singer/musician whose 12-month-old daughter was discovered to be deaf. He wrote the songs used in Baby Signing to help teach ASL to others, so that the world would be more accessible to his daughter. Because the signs in the program are ASL-based, once children or adults learn them, they can be used for children of all ages and abilities to interact.

Moore is not a newcomer to the wonders of music. She grew up playing eight instruments and studied in the University of Michigan's music school. She was headed for a degree in opera at Northwestern when she changed direction and began to explore other options.

For the last 15 years, Moore has been a teacher of private instruction in voice and piano. Her Dynamic Expressions Studio teaches voice and piano to individuals ages five to adult, including special needs and hearing/speech-impaired students. She loves working with children. "They spark my creativity," she says, adding, "The energy of children brings an ability to communicate joy in all sorts of eclectic ways."

For more information about Baby Signing classes, contact Stephannie Moore at Dynamic Expressions Studio. The phone number is 734-417-0760 or you can e-mail her at stephannie@dynamicexpressionsstudio.com. You can also visit the website at www.dynamicexpressionsstudio.com.

###

FOR THE VEGGIE FOODIE IN YOU!

Voted as Best Restaurant for Vegetarians in Washtenaw County: 2011 AnnArbor.com Readers Poll

BRING THIS COUPON TO RECEIVE
30% OFF ON ANY ONE ENTREE
COUPON NOT VALID WITH OTHER OFFERS.

108 S. Main, Ann Arbor, MI 48104 (734)-222-0203
Just two doors down from the Crazy Wisdom Bookstore.
Follow us on Facebook, key words: Jazzy Veggie

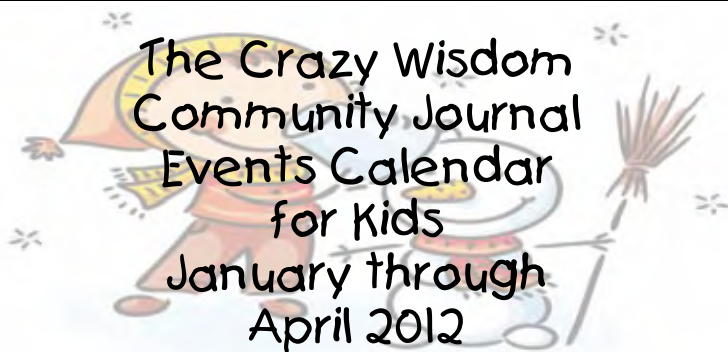

WWW.JAZZYVEGGIE.COM

Correction

In the CW Kids Column of our September-December 2011 issue, the Natural Balance Wellness Medical Center was incorrectly identified as "New Balance." We apologize for this error. Natural Balance Wellness Medical Center is located at 1310 S. Main Street in Ann Arbor and can be reached at 734-929-2696 or nbwellness.com.

Photographers Wanted

To take pictures for The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal. Moderate pay, wonderful exposure. It's also fun and interesting to meet the people we take photos of: healers, authors, bodymind therapists, yoga teachers, professors, holistic and spiritual types, and other fringe elements! For more information, contact Bill Zirinsky at bill@crazywisdom.net.

The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal Events Calendar for Kids January through April 2012

Fairy Teas at Crazy Wisdom • Feb. 23 with 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. seatings; May 13, 1 p.m. Mother's Day Fairy Tea • Children and their families are welcome for tea and petit fours served by real fairies! Celebrate with our magical fairies as they serve tea, treats, and magic. There will be story time with books available from Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. Fairy attire is encouraged. Be creative! $11 per person. Babies 18 months and younger free. Tickets are available by stopping in to Crazy Wisdom or by phoning prior to the event. For information call, 734-66-2757 or email jerri@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Sing With Me! with Gari Stein • Jan. 10-April 11: Tuesday or Wednesday, 9:15 or 10:45 a.m. • Traditional music enrichment and instrument exploration for children birth to five and the grown-ups who love them. Together, we sing, chant, bounce, folk dance, play instruments, share hugs, laugh, and more. A research-based program that enhances development, learning, listening, literacy, and provides resources for grown-ups. $224 includes four cds. Financial assistance available. Call 741-1510; little-folks-music.com.

Baby and You - Sing with Me with Gari Stein • Jan.-April: Wednesday afternoons • A special program of traditional music and movement for babies and the grown-ups who love them, with time to share resources and support. A research-based, warm, gentle, nurturing environment to learn methods and activities for everyday routines. Help nourish brain and total development, turn cranky to calm, and enhance the adult-child bond. $160 includes two cds. Financial assistance available. Call 741-1510; little-folks-music.com.

Dancing Babies with Gari Stein and Ann Arbor District Library • Jan. 14, 11 a.m. at Pittsfield Branch or April 28, 11 a.m. at Pittsfield Branch • Sing and Dance Along based on traditional folk music for infants to 5s and the grown-ups who love them. Nurture development and enjoy simple activities to do together at home. Share hugs, laughter, and more. Free. Call 741-1510; little-folks-music.com or aadl.org.

Kinder Concerts: Music and Motion with Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra and Guest Musicians Gari Stein • Feb. 17 Downtown and Feb. 20 Whittaker, 9:30 and 10:30 a.m.; Feb. 18 Dexter, 10 a.m. • This classical concert, featuring the Oboe, for 2-6 year olds to listen, watch, dance with snowflakes and scarves and participate in a 30 minute program, up close and personal, in a library setting: Ann Arbor Downtown, Dexter, and Whittaker libraries. Free. Call 741-1510; little-folks-music.com or a2so.com.

Play Again Film Screening sponsored by Progressive Education Consortium • March 1, 6-8:30 p.m. • Join us for the screening and discussion about, Play Again from Bullfrog Communities. Arrival/tours at 6pm, film begins promptly at 6:30pm followed by discussion. Screening will be held at Clonlara School. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or sites.google.com/site/progressiveedconsortium/.

F.A.S.T. Reading Program for Dyslexics of All Ages with Susan Major • every Tuesday evening Jan-April, 7:30-9 p.m. • Introduction to F.A.S.T. Reading Program, which incorporated the integration of the latest brain research and how it applies to jump-starting higher brain functioning for people who have difficulty reading. Free. Call Susan 996-0702; samajor@comcast.net.

Clonlara School Open House • Feb. 16, 6-7:30 p.m. • Join us to learn program details about home based education and our K-12 campus programs (everything from full time, to blended schedules, to independent study programs), tour our facility and meet with campus teachers and academic advisors. Plus...view the visual arts on display. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or clonlara.org.

Movement Matters: An Introduction to Brain Gym & Bal-A-Vis-X with Katy Held • Jan. 21, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m.; Jan. 25, 6-8 p.m.; Jan. 26, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; Feb. 9, 6-8 p.m.; Feb. 10, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; March 7, 6-8 p.m.; March 9, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. • Introduction to movement-based learning. Geared for parents, educators and other professionals who are interested in reducing stress and enhancing learning potential. $20/ 2 hrs; $30/ 3 hrs; $50/ 5 hrs. Call Katy 649-7457; ktheld@me.com or learningheart.com.
Bal-A-Vis-X: Levels 1, 2 & Adaptive Modifications with Bill Hubert • March 23-25, Friday 6-9 p.m., Saturday 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m., Sunday 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • Balance/Auditory/Vision exercises which are deeply rooted in rhythm which enables the whole mind-body system to experience the natural symmetrical flow of a pendulum. $245. Call Katy 649-7457; ktheld@me.com or learningheart.com.

Stroller Strides at Gallup Park • Mondays, 9-10 a.m. • A total body workout moms can do with their babies and toddlers, taught by certified instructors. First class free. Call 717-8744; strollerstrides.net.

Stroller Strides at Briarwood Mall • Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, 9-10 a.m. • A total body workout moms can do with their babies and toddlers, taught by certified instructors. First class free. Call 717-7844; strollerstrides.net.

Super Saturday Storytime at Ypsilanti Library • Saturdays, 10:30 a.m. • Stories, songs, and a simple craft for preschoolers and older children. Free. Call 482-4110; ypsilibrary.org.

Storytime at Nicola's Books • Saturdays, 11 a.m. • Stories for children ages seven and under. Free. Contact nicolas-books.com.

Performances with Wild Swan Theater • Ticket prices start at $6.40 for children. Call 995-0530; wildswantheater.org.

Jan. 26-28 • Under the African Sky
Feb. 7-8 • The Spirit of Harriet Tubman
March 14-18 • Shipwrecked!
March 22-24 • Strega Nona and the Magic Pasta Pot

Performances with Not Just For Kids: Family-Friendly Professional Theater • For tickets, call Michigan Theater at 668-8397; michtheater.org.
Feb. 12, 1:30 p.m. • Ramona Quimby
March 18, 1:30 p.m. • The House at Pooh Corner

Tai Chi for Ages 10-14 with Wasentha Young • Fridays Jan. 13 - March 2, 4:30-5:30 p.m. • Students will learn a modified section of the Tai Chi Sword, Tai Chi playful and safe interactive principles, create an animal form, learn meditation and self-acupressure points to maintain healthy joints and muscles. $80. Call 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Continued on page 74

C
r
a z
y
W i s d o
m
-
k
i d
s

The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal Events Calendar for Kids continued from page 73

Hip Hop for Kids (age 9-12) with Ziva Gibbs • Mondays Jan. 9 - March 12, 5-6 p.m. • Students will learn fundamental movements of East and West Coast Hip Hop, basic isolations, top rock, drops, downrock and freezes associated with breakdancing. Other movements will include the sharp isolations of popping and the gesture locking from the West coast. $12 drop-in/$100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Hand Drumming for Kids with Sundance DiDomenico • Tuesdays, Jan. 10 - March 13, 4-5 p.m. • Students will learn traditional world drum rhythms, as well as how to listen and improvise within the structure created. Drumming helps develop skills in teamwork, playing music, improvising with a structure, building a community and expressing oneself. The class will create "original arrangements." $12 drop-in/$100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Belly Dance for Kids (age 8-12) with Ziva Gibbs • Tuesdays Jan. 9 - March 13, 5-6 p.m. • Students will learn the history of Raks Sharqi and Raks Beledi. Fun was to stretch and strengthen the body will be taught to enable students to execute basic isolations of belly dance and then transfer those moves to fun contemporary choreography. $12 drop-in/$100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Jazz 2/3 (age 9-12) with Jenabah Giacomelli • Thursdays Jan. 12 - March 15, 5-6 p.m. • This class is intended for young dancers who have had previous training in jazz and/or ballet. Students will further their technique through more advanced combinations and across the floor movements while working with more difficult turns, higher leaps and fancy footwork. $12 drop-in/$100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Shamanism for Children with Kate Durda • Jan. 29, 11 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Ages 6-9. We will draw, sing songs and dance to become more familiar with our animal friends, and the wonderful plants on the earth, using rattles and drums. We will discover which animals may be our special helpers, using the drum to 'journey' in the ancient method of Shamanism. $15 one child/one parent. Call 517-667-0694; spiritweavers@gmail.com or spiritweavers.net.

Shamanism for Teens: Power Animals & Self with Kate Durda • Jan. 29, 1:30-3 p.m. • Ages 10-15. Class will introduce participants to Shamanism, an easily accessed ancient spiritual practice that addresses our connectedness to ALL life. Participants will experience the shamanic journey to meet their personal power animal. This will foster self-confidence, personal power, increased creativity, improved decision-making and helps us live a positive life. $20. Call 517-667-0694; spiritweavers@gmail.com or spiritweavers.net.

Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum • Monday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, Noon-5 p.m. • Your kids can create tornadoes, learn more about their bodies, and figure out how things work while going through the 250+ interactive exhibits. $9 ages two and up. Call 995-5437; aahom.org.

Exhibit Museum of Natural History • Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, Noon-5 p.m. • Kids can check out fossils from an allosaurus or spy a stegosaurus. Other finds your kids might enjoy: rocks, minerals, mammals, and many more natural history displays. Call 764-0478; lsa.umich.edu/exhibitmuseum.

Leslie Science and Nature Center • Open daily dawn to dusk • Spend a day venturing through this 50-acre property including grassy fields, forests, and ponds. Free. Call 997-1553; lesliesnc.org.

Matthaei Botanical Gardens and Nichols Arboretum • Open daily, sunrise to sunset • Enjoy looking at native Michigan plants along with varieties from around the world at this 123-acre arboretum, with indoor and outdoor sections. Indoor conservatory hours vary, and include an entrance fee. Call 647-7600; mbgna.umich.edu.

Plymouth Ice Festival • Jan. 20-22 • Over 100 ice sculptures are on display, live music and entertainment are here and the dueling chainsaws speed-carving show returns. Call 248-960-0700, ext. 103 or plymouthicefestival.org.

Chillin' at the Mills Winter Festival • Jan. 29, 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. • Enjoy a host of outdoor activities like cross-country skiing, snow shoeing and a winter-themed scavenger hunt. Call 426-8211 or metroparks.com.

University of Michigan Museum of Art • Industrial steel, documentary-style photographers and blurred lines between life and art. Call 764-0395; umma.umich.edu.

Cobblestone Farm Museum • 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. • Mid-nineteenth century living: 1840s farm house, homes and history aplenty. Spring on the farm in April. Call 794-6230; cobblestonefarm.org.

All Sewn Up? Sewing School • The place to go to learn to sew. Ages 6 - adult. Machines and equipment provided. Beginner & intermediate skills. Call 975-8717; allsewnupbyanne.com.

Festifools • April 1 begins at 4 p.m. • Features dozens of original university- and community-made giant "puppets," all dancing to the backbeat of drum impresarios in downtown Ann Arbor. Call 763-7550; festifools.org.

Storytelling Festival at the Ark • Feb. 19 at 1 p.m. • Geared toward the whole family. Call 761-1800; theark.org.

Lactation Consultation with Shin Ai Shyn • 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Available for advice, bra fitting and general information about breast and bottle feeding. By appointment. Free. Call 994-3628; myurbantoddler.com.

Mothering Arts - Toddler Group at the Center for the Childbearing Year • 10 - 11:30 a.m. • If your baby can crawl, toddle or run and jump, this group is for you. Discussion topics and play times each week. $2. center5cby.

Nursing Cafe at Indigo Forest • 2-3 p.m. • Join other breastfeeding moms and enjoy a pot of nursing tea, with professional support on hand for questions and help. visitindigo.com.

Parent Toddler Group • 9:15-10:45 a.m. • This is a unique opportunity for children (12-36 months) and their special adult to spend quality time together playing, working on simple art projects and having a snack. lamazefamilycenter.org.

Breastfeeding Cafe • 10-11:30 a.m. • A support group for breastfeeding mothers and their babies. Free. Call 663-1523; center4cby.com.

Dinosaur Tour • 2 p.m. • 30 minute docent-led tours of the dinosaur exhibits. Free. Call 764-0478; las.umich.edu/exhibitmuseum

Dance for Mother Earth Pow Wow in Saline • March/April (TBA) • Celebrate Native American heritage at this 40th annual event with dances, regalia and drum rituals, food and wares. umich.edu/~powwow.

Foolmoon • March 30-April 1 • Hundreds of community-made illuminated "lanterns" descend upon Washington Street for revelry, dancing, goodies and libations. Call 763-7550.

Children's Theatre Network • All performances are followed by a milk and cookies reception. Call 663-0681; performancenetwork.org.

March 17 • Jamie and Jordan

April 21 • Fabliscious

Jan. 21 and May 19 • Wolverine Will

Youth Dance Theatre of Michigan • Presents full-length timeless ballets, including Swan Lake April 28-29. Call 475-3070; youthdancetheatre.org.

THE CRAZY WISDOM CALENDAR

A Free Guide to Local Classes, Workshops and Events

JANUARY THROUGH APRIL 2012

Musician Laz Slomovits
on Page 48

Katy Held and her son, Oscar,
on Page 63

Karate Instructor Barb Christensen
on Page 66

Author Marc Lerner on Page 28

Pharmacist Sahar Swidan on Page 13

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Abundance & Prosperity

Abundance and Prosperity with Karen Greenberg • Feb. 27 and April 30, 6-10 p.m. • Define your relationship with money, including what you were taught by family, culture, race, religion and gender. Identify low vibrational emotions such as shame, guilt and fear that could be limiting your cash flow. Examine worthiness and sabotaging patterns, learn spiritual principles to enhance prosperity. $75. Call 417-9511; kmgrmbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Acupressure, Shiatsu & Reflexology

Ohashiatsu Beginning I with Frances Farmer • Sundays, Jan. 8, 15, 22, Feb. 5, 12 at 10 a.m.-5 p.m. • Ohashiatsu is a unique method of healing touch, meditation and self-improvement which takes shiatsu/acupressure to a different level. An energizing dance combines hands-on touch, limb rotation and stretches in a seamless flow of movement. This experiential learning was developed to improve health and well-being of the giver and receiver through lecture, exercises, meditation, and hands-on training. $450. Call 417-9038; ohashiatsuannarbor@gmail.com or shiatsuannarbor.com/.

Acupuncture

Acupressure's Lift for Your Face • March 1, 6-8:55 p.m. • Traditional Chinese Medicine's approach to health, well being and beauty. With the self-administered, gentle acupressure facelift you preserve and restore the muscle tone and circulation in the tissue of your face and neck. Complemented by ear acupressure which helps you relax. $29. Call LifeLong Learning 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Animals & Pets

Exploring Intuitive Communication with our Animal Friends with Elizabeth Adams • April 21, 1-3:55 p.m. • Did you ever wonder what your pet is really thinking or how to connect on a deeper level with your animal companion? Discover exercises to raise your intuition when communicating with animals...and bring a sense of the wonder of the animal psyche and your innate ability to connect with this psyche. $39. Call LifeLong Learning 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

PetMassage TM 4-Day Foundation Workshop with Distance Learning Courses in Canine Anatomy and Business Marketing with Jonathan Rudinger • Feb, 17-20, March 16-19, April 13-16, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. • You will understand the roadmap to creating and marketing your canine massage business; the theory, techniques, vocabulary, culture and vision of PetMassage; become aware of body mechanics; learn to understand and provide for diverse canine needs; learn various complementary bodywork techniques; and understand basic dog anatomy and physiology as it applies to canine massage. $1400. Call Anastasia 800-779-1001; workshops@petmassage.com or petmassage.com.

PetMassage TM 6-Day Advanced Workshop with Jonathan Rudinger • April 23-28, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. • This workshop will reinforce and expand on Foundation theory and applications; provide additional training in body mechanics, energy practices, TCM, canine anatomy, physiology and pathology; expand interspecies language; refine business plans; help student qualify and prepare for the NBCAAM test for National Certification; 100 hours toward your 200 contact hour requirement; and track toward you becoming a Licensed PetMassage Instructor at your own regional school. $1400. Call Anastasia 800-779-1001; workshops@petmassage.com or petmassage.com.

If you are interested in obtaining some biographical information about the teachers, lecturers, and workshop leaders whose classes, talks and events are listed in this Calendar, please look in the section which follows the Calendar, which is called "Background Information" and which starts on page 101.

illustration by Terri Myers

Aromatherapy & Essential Oils

Young Living Essential Oils Education Series with Nancy Harknett through Indigo Forest • Free. Call 649-7076; nanharknett@gmail.com.

NingXia Red: learn about the delicious fruit infusion with the highest antioxidant rating known • January 17, 7-9 p.m.

Ancient Oils of Scripture: learn the history & original uses of essential oils for anointing and healing, experience through inhalation • March 23, 7-9 p.m.

Intro to Raindrop Technique: learn the extraordinary benefits of receiving this treatment, one attendee will receive a full treatment • April 27, 7-9 p.m.

Art & Craft

Second Annual Spring Equinox Craft and Psychic Faire at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • March 24, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. • Come to Crazy Wisdom to help us celebrate the welcome arrival of Spring! Shop directly from local crafters in our Community Room Artisan Market upstairs, and receive a psychic/tarot reading from local intuitives set up throughout the store. Admission is free with readings for $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Snacks will be available. For more information, contact Sarah at sarah@crazywisdom.net or Carol at carol@crazywisdom.net, or phone 665-2757; crazywisdom.net.

Lampworking Glass Beads with Barb Yearce • Thursdays, Jan. 19 to Feb. 9, 6:30-8:25 p.m. • Learn the amazing properties of torch-worked beads. Explore bead shapes like barrel, bicone, and flat beads and learn techniques such as dots, wrap, twists, and millefiori. All supplies and tools included. $99. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Primitive Rug Hooking I • Saturdays, Jan. 21 and Feb. 11, 1-3:55 p.m. • Primitive rug hooking dates back many hundreds and perhaps even thousands of years. Learn key terms, materials, tools, history and finishing techniques and create a project to keep. $55. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Seed Beading Classes & Jewelry Making Assistance • Tuesday-Saturday, 11 a.m.-6 p.m. • Classes are on a drop in basis. No set schedule. Pick out your project and we will teach you at no cost for the lesson. Your cost is the supplies you will need. Call Marc or Marie 433-0595; shophemiddlebead@yahoo.com or shophemiddlebead.com.

Astrology

Drop-In Astrology Readings with Richard Weber in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Second and Fourth Sundays, 12-3 p.m. • Richard has studied astrology for over 20 years and given readings for more than six - this is a work of love for him and a tool he uses to help him understand himself, relationships and life events. His experience with astrology has given him the ability to give insightful advice about relationships and life changing events. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call Richard 434-0804; richardmweber@sbcglobal.net.

Intro to Astrology with Beverly Fish • Saturdays, March 24 and 31, 10-11:55 a.m. • Learn about the twelve signs of the zodiac and their planetary rulers. Students are welcome to bring their own charts to help them understand how astrology works for them. $39. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Lecture - The Year of Prophecy: An Astrological Perspective with Chrissie Blaze • Feb. 17, 7:30-9 p.m. • We are now in the year of prophecy; the end of the Mayan Calendar; the rare Venus transit, and some extremely powerful planetary configurations. People are questioning whether this is the end of the world, or the beginning of a new millennium. Learn the truth about this year from the perspective of Western astrologer, author and international speaker. $5. Call 248-588-0290; michigan.aetherius@gmail.com or aetheriusmi.org.

Pythagorean Astrology and Harmonics with Geoff Hoebbel and Phil Mead • Feb. 19, 2-4:30 p.m. • God geometrizes and beautiful number patterns unfold in the astrological framework we use today. Using symbols, diagrams and ancient stories, Geoff and Phil will explore the mysteries of Harmonics and Pythagorean history, along with the planetary signatures for plagues. $12 for member, $14 non-members. Call Pam Wenzel 788-0186; magnum1593@gmail.com.

Auras

Aura Photos and Class with Jack and Susan Lewis • Feb. 4, 3 p.m. class, 3:30 p.m. photos • Learn how the Aura affects the body, what the colors mean, what the position of the colors tell you and some things that affect the Aura and how to increase your vibration. The class is free. If you choose you can then receive an aura photo, a special color card and special interpretative reading of your aura. $30 for aura photo and interpretation, class is free. Call Pat Krajovic 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com

Author Events

Booksigning and Talk with Barbara Brodsky, Author of The Aaron/Q'uo Dialogues: An Extraordinary Conversation Between Two Spiritual Guides • April 17, 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Brodsky will tell us a little about how her newest book came to be, and will read from and discuss some of the contents. Who are we? Why are we here in these human forms? How do we do the work we came to the incarnation to do? If our intention is to be more loving, how do we handle negative emotions and thoughts? Aaron, channeled by Barbara, may also speak in response to questions. She will also sign books. Free. Call Rachel at 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

What If I'm Right? "Making the Connection" with Carla Wilson • April 21, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • What If I'm Right? is a gift of practical wisdom. Never before has a Correction Officer shared so much truth about herself, the inmates, and the system, all shaped by years of frontline experience. This seminar is sure to engage, equip, and empower audience members by providing the tools necessary for personal success. Free. Call Carla 660-4355; fisherdancer@yahoo.com or carlawilson.net.

Learning to Breathe: My Yearlong Quest to Bring Calm to My Life by Priscilla Warner • Feb. 9, 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Priscilla Warner will speak candidly about her experience healing from a panic disorder. She spent a year seeking out skilled therapists, Buddhist teachers and healers who helped her learn to meditate, self-regulate and thrive. Free. Call Rachel 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Sacred Marching Orders: Igniting the Solar Feminine at the Dawn of the New Age by Patricia Fero • March 27, 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Patricia will speak about the crucial role of the "solar feminine" at this time of transition on the planet. She will describe what the "solar feminine" is and why it is needed now. Men are welcome as the role of the "lunar masculine" is vital as well. Free. Call Rachel 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Dragonfly Dialogues: Memories of an Awakening Spirit by Lorna Brown • April 3, 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • In sharing her personal story, Lorna hopes to inspire others to recognize the unique part each of us plays on this journey called life. Join us for a time of sharing, inspiration, questions and a special meditation. Free. Call Rachel 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free by Lorri Coburn • April 24, 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Local author Lorri Coburn discusses the principles of A Course in Miracles as they relate to her newly published book, Breaking Free. The book contains numerous stories from Lorri's psychotherapy practice that simplify the deep, philosophical ideas of A Course in Miracles. Free. Call Rachel 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Children of the Greatest Generation with Fred Lauck • Jan. 28, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Book signing, reading and discussion. Free. Call Fred 248-535-0012; flauk@comcast.net or fredlauck.com.

The Sacred Work of Grandparents Raising Grandchildren with Elaine Williams • Sunday, January 8, at 2 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom • Book signing, reading and discussion. Free. The author can be reached at 248-396-5735 or at: elainekwilliams@aol.com.

Bodywork

MNRI Visual and Auditory Reflexes Integration with Dr. Svetlana Masgutova • Feb 1-3 in Brighton • Professionals, parents, and caregivers working with clients or children facing visual and auditory challenges are encouraged to attend. The course explores in great detail the physiology and psychology of the visual and auditory systems, the developmental effects of hyper- and hypo-sensitive challenges, and the important role the visual and auditory systems play in the integration of all motor reflex movements and patterns. $570, or $342 if you are a reviewer of the course. Call Jacquelin Kilburn 810-231-9042; info@jump-in-products.com or masgutovamethod.com.

Book Discussion Groups

Crazy Wisdom Monthly Book Discussion • Feb. 17, Mar. 23, April 13; 7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore • Come in and buy the featured month's title and receive 30% off! Discussion is free. No registration necessary. Feel welcome to just come! For more information, call Rachel at 665-2757; rachel@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.
Feb. 17 • The 22 Non-Negotiable Laws of Wellness: Feel, Think, and Live Better Than You Ever Thought Possible by Frank Anderson, hosted by Rachel Pastiva. Everything we think, say, feel, and do has a direct impact on our physical and emotional health. And yet we overlook this fundamental truth every day. A solution exists. This book advocates a holistic non-nonsense approach to health.
Mar. 23 • The Best Spiritual Writing 2012 edited by Philip Zaleski, hosted by Bill Zirinsky. Culled from a wide range of American journals, these spiritual perspectives are expressed in splendid pieces as diverse as the sources from which they come, offering all readers a unique opportunity to explore the world of faith and spirituality.
April 13 • The Holographic Universe by Michael Talbot hosted by Jerri Dodge. A classic in the field of science, reality, and spirituality, this book is one of the more easily read, understood, and discussed in the genre. The book draws connections from the varied range of subjects such as quantum-theory physics, paranormal and mystical experiences and neurophysiology in surprisingly readable and enjoyable format.

The Artist's Way by Julia Cameron Series* hosted by Heather Glidden • Eight Tuesdays, 6-8 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Calling anyone (not just artists) who is interest in leading a more creative or spiritual life? This workshop is a guided exploration of The Artist's Way and includes mediation, life coaching inquiry, and time to work through exercises in the book. Free/donations welcome. Call Heather 709-1464; heather.glidden@gmail.com.

Feb. 21 • The Artist's Way, week #1: Recovering a Sense of Safety
Feb. 28 • The Artist's Way, week #2: Recovering a Sense of Identity
March 6 • The Artist's Way, week #3: Recovering a Sense of Power
March 20 • The Artist's Way, week #4: Recovering a Sense of Integrity
March 27 • The Artist's Way, week #5: Recovering a Sense of Possibility April 3 • The Artist's Way, week #6: Recovering a Sense of Abundance
April 17 • The Artist's Way, week #7: Recovering a Sense of Connection
April 24 • The Artist's Way, week #8: Recovering a Sense of Strength

Alone Together, Why We Expect More from Technology and Less from Each Other* by Sherry Turkle hosted by Carole Kirby • March 4, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Digital technology is a blessing in so many ways, yet it has its upside and downside. Sherry Turkle's book explores the impact of technology of our relationships, privacy and community. Carole will share some insights and information from the book. Come participate in a discussion about her message and concerns. Free. Call Carole at 424-2797; carole777@aol.com or therapy4couples.com.

Jewel Heart Readers • Jan. 10, Feb. 14, March 13 & April 10; 7-8:30 p.m. • Enjoy lively discussion on monthly dharma-related book selections with fellow sangha. Free with donations welcome. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Lighthouse Book Club • Every Tuesday hosted by Nirmala Hanke; 7:30-9 p.m. • Exploring the lives of spiritual masters. All are welcome. $15 building fee per book. Call Prachi Patricia Thiel 449-4381; thielp17@yahoo.com or lighthousecenterinc.org.

Jan. 10-31 • Buddha by Deepak Chopra
Feb. 7-28 • Jesus by Deepak Chopra
March 6-27 • Mohammed by Deepak Chopra
April 3-24 • Mohavir by Shri Chandanaji

Book Study hosted by Marina Sionov • Monthly, every second Monday • 7-9 p.m. • The Divine Plan was written in the form of a commentary on H.P. Blavatsky's Secret Doctrine expressly for the purpose of those who wish to read and gain a deeper understanding of the Secret Doctrine --- presenting an exposition of the Doctrines of Esoteric Philosophy. Call Marina 248-545-8553; lotus711@yahoo.com or tsdetroit.org.

Secret Doctrine Study Group hosted by Mara Radzwickas • every Tuesday, 7-9 p.m. • A serious, in-depth study of the Secret Doctrine, drawing on various resources, including video and books of commentary (including Man the Measure of all Things). Free. Call Mara 248-545-1961; lotus711@yahoo.com or tsdetroit.org.

"Faces of Faith:...(library program) hosted by The Interfaith Round Table of Washtenaw County • Jan. 15; 2-4 p.m. • 20-25 people on different spiritual paths and from our own community will offer short summaries of their own beliefs and practices. Attendees will be able to sit one on one with up to three "books" and gain a deeper appreciation for our local religious diversity. Free. Call George 424-1535; gbrides@umich.edu or irtwc.org.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Breathwork

Ongoing Transformational Breathwork Class with Frank Levey • Tuesdays, 9:30-11 a.m. or 7-8:30 p.m. • Each class will offer an opportunity to unblock restricted breathing patterns, a brief instructions for beginners, and an hour-long facilitated breath session with integration. Re-teaching our bodies to breathe in the manner in which they were designed brings great ease and well-being to all of our levels of being. $15-$25. Call Frank 657-8742; frank@awakenedbreath.net or awakenedbreath.net.

Introduction to Better Breathing With Yoga with Jody Tull • Feb. 10, 6-7:30 p.m.
• Reduce the impact of breathing conditions such as asthma and allergies by learning techniques for shifting body chemistry to minimize reactivity and inflammation. $30. To register or for information call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Group Breath Session with Dave and Pat Krajovic • Jan. 11, Feb. 6, March 7, April 2, May 9, June 4, 6:30-8:00 p.m. • This class is for experienced breathers who want to deepen the benefits of conscious breathing by developing a consistent breath practice. The workshop will consist of intention setting, a facilitated breath session closing with sharing and integration. You must have previously attended at least three Transformational Breathing Introductory Workshops. $25. Call Pat 416-5200; inspire@globalbreathinstitute.com.

Prana of Breath - Intro with Dave and Pat Krajovic • Jan. 29, 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; March 19, 7-9:30 p.m.; May 12, 4:30-7 p.m. • Learn what the breath can do for you, not just to restore health but to bring a renewed sense of vitality, optimism and joy to your life. Sooth your Soul and free your Spirit with a powerful breath session. $50. Call Pat 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

The Prana of Forgiveness with Dave and Pat Krajovic • March 25, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. • Experience the joy of letting go of old wounds and burden of guilt. Learn to find strength within to break the pattern of victimhood. Gain the power and freedom that comes from understanding our power as creators. Includes the work of Transformational Breathing, Colin Tipping's Radical Forgiveness as well as elements of Pranic Healing. $139. Call Dave 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

The Presence Process Work Group with Pat and Dave Krajovic • every Tuesday April 17 thru June 19 • Let go of the drama in your life. Facilitation through Michael Brown's best seller, The Presence Process. Ten facilitated breath sessions. $222 via conference call (repeaters $111). Call 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Effective Stress Relieving Strategies for Modern Living with Dave and Pat Krajovic • April 25, 7-9 p.m.; June 3, 10 a.m. - 1 p.m. • Learn effective tools that you can use to clear away stress energies, help you sleep better and renew your energy level. We will teach you the master tool that Andrew Weil, MD, says is the most important thing you can do for optimum health. $33. Call Pat 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Buddhism

Introductory Zen Meditation Course at the Zen Buddhist Temple • Five Thursdays starting Jan. 12 and March 8; 6:15-8:30 p.m. • The viewpoint of Zen is that life lived fully in each moment is the end and purpose in itself, and not the means for something else. Held in the Temple's meditation hall, the course includes simple stretching exercises, work with the breath, meditation postures, concentration, and mindfulness practice. $160 or $120 unwaged. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Introduction to Buddhism Seminar at the Zen Buddhist Temple • Five Thursdays starting Jan. 12 and March 8; 6:30-8:30 p.m. • This five-session class is not a lecture, but a participatory seminar and group study. Participants should be able to dedicate two hours weekly to studying the assigned topic. $60 or $50 members. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

One-Day Zen Meditation Retreat at Zen Buddhist Temple • Feb. 11 and April 14, 9-5 p.m. • Sitting and walking meditation, simple manual work, vegetarian meals, and rest - an interval of deepening, of slowing down, silence, and mindfulness. $50 includes a vegetarian meal. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Overnight Introductory Meditation Course at the Zen Buddhist Temple • March 9, 7 p.m. to March 10, Noon • This format is primarily for out-of-towners, but local people who cannot attend the Thursday evening course or who prefer the overnight retreat are also welcome. $160 includes accommodation and vegetarian breakfast. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Two Ongoing Sunday Services at the Zen Buddhist Temple • 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. • Morning meditation service consists of two periods of meditation and a talk. Afternoon dharma service has two shorter periods of sitting meditation, sometimes walking meditation, reflection, chanting, a short talk, and a question and answer session. You can sit on a mat and cushion or on a chair. Everyone welcome. There is also a Children's Service on the second and fourth Sundays of each month. By donation. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Spring Yongmaeng Jeongjin at the Zen Buddhist Temple • March 29, 7 p.m. through April 1, 8 a.m. • Conducted by Ven. Haju Sunim, resident priest at the Temple in Ann Arbor. This retreat is an intensive period of zen practice geared toward the experienced student. $60 per day or $50 for members. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Odyssey to Freedom - section 5 (continued) and section 6 with Jewel Heart Instructors • Wednesdays, Jan. 4, 11, 25, Feb. 1, 8, 15, March 7 & 14, 7-8:30 p.m. • Gelek Rinpoche created Odyssey to Freedom as an accessible and concise Lam Rim, encompassing the stages on the spiritual path from our current situation, as it is, through to full enlightenment. $80 non-members. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

White Tara Meditation Sessions with Jewel Heart Instructors • Sundays, Jan. 8, 15, 22, 29, Feb. 5, 12, 19, March 11, 18, 25; 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. • Tara is the mother goddess of Tibetan Buddhism, known for her quick and compassionate activity. She is particularly associated with healing and long life. Join us for a guided meditation using visualization techniques to overcome physical, mental, and emotional suffering. Free with donations welcome. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

"To be nobody but yourself in a world which is doing its best, night and day, to make you everybody else, means to fight the hardest battle which any human being can fight; and never stop fighting."

~ e.e. cummings

Lama Chopa with Jewel Heart Instructors • Mondays, Jan. 9, 23, Feb. 6, 20, March 12, 26, April 9, 23; 7-8:30 p.m. • Lama Chopa is a complete guru yoga practice integrating aspects of sutra and tantra into a common framework, based on Gelek Rinpoche's commentary Guru Devotion: Integrating the Primordial Mind. Also available as an online offering. $80 non-members. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

The Four Noble Truths with Jewel Heart Instructors • Thursdays, Jan. 26, Feb. 9, 16, 23, March 8, 15, 22, 29; 7-8:30 p.m. • This course introduces Buddha's revolutionary message that suffering can come to an end through one's own efforts. Following Gelek Rinpoche's transcript Four Noble Truths, participants rely on readings, discussion and mediation. $80 non-members. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Creating Space: Clarity and Insight Through Meditation with Jewel Heart Instructors • Mondays, Jan. 23, 30, Feb. 6, 13, 30, March 5, 12, 19; 7-8:30 p.m. • Meditation provides us with a clear stable mind, necessary for a happy life and the foundation for deepening our spiritual journey. This course offers hands-on experience with the basic elements of meditation using breath, posture and techniques for coping with distraction and laxity of the mind. $80 non-members. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Synopsis of Guide to Bodhisattva's Way of Life with Jewel Heart Instructors • Wednesdays, March 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 6, 13, 20, 27; 7-8:30 p.m. • This course, a synopsis of the activities of a bodhisattva and based upon the writings of the Indian saint and scholar Shantideva, is offered in preparation for the 2012 Summer Retreat held from July 5-15. This course is open to all. $150 non-members. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

GOM Practice Weekend with Jewel Heart Instructors • March 23-25; Friday 7-9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. - 8:30 p.m., Sunday 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. • GOM, or concentrated meditation, is an essential tool that helps develop peace and joy as well as the power to deeply understand wisdom. This meditation weekend intensive, offered according to the Tibetan Buddhist tradition, will include practice sessions with light guidance. Silence will be maintained between sessions. Practice sessions will include sitting and walking meditations. Donations welcome. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Sunday Morning Talks with Gelek Rinpoche or Jewel Heart Instructors • Sundays, 10-11 a.m. Talk and 11-11:30 a.m. Tea and Cookies • Join us for a taste of Buddhism through introductory talks on contemporary issues followed by tea and cookies. January 1 thru March 31, except Feb. 26. Special event on March 4 - Je Tsong Khapa Longevity Empowerment. Open to all. Free with donations welcome. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Je Tsong Khapa Longevity Empowerment with Gelek Rinpoche • March 4, 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m. • Open to all. Free with donations welcome. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

A Conversation with Philip Glass • Jan. 17, 7-9 p.m. • In Ann Arbor for his world-renowned opera, Einstein on the Beach, Philip Glass will give a public talk at the Jewel Heart Center. $15-$30. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Tibetan Buddhism in the West: Enlightenment on Mainstreet with Glenn Mullin • Feb. 3, 7-9 p.m. • This talk looks at the unfolding of the enlightenment tradition as prophesied by Buddha himself and at how you can be part of the fulfillment of that prophecy. $10 donation. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Chakchen De-nga: The Five Sides of Mahamudra Training with Glenn Mullin • Feb. 4, 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. and 2-5 p.m. • Lama Tsongkhapa studied extensively in the Drikung Kargyu monastery. One of the lineages he received is that known as Chakchen De-nga, or The Five Sides of Mahamudra, referring to the simultaneous experience of bliss and void. It also refers to "ordinary enlightenment," the special lineage of cultivating awareness of emptiness and seemingness. $30-60, sliding scale. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Public Talk with Glenn Mullin • Feb. 5, 6:30-9 p.m., reception 6:30-7:30 p.m. followed by a talk • Glenn Mullin studied in Dharamsala for 12 years. Donation. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Ceremonies, Celebrations & Festivals

Second Annual Spring Equinox Craft and Psychic Faire at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • March 24, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. • Come to Crazy Wisdom to help us celebrate the welcome arrival of Spring! Shop directly from local crafters in our Community Room Artisan Market upstairs, and receive a psychic/tarot reading from local intuitives set up throughout the store. Admission is free with readings for $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Snacks will be available. For more information, contact Sarah at sarah@crazywisdom.net or Carol at carol@crazywisdom.net, or phone 665-2757; crazywisdom.net.

Candlelight Meditation & Healing at Lighthouse Center • Sundays, 5-6:15 p.m. until daylight savings begins then 6-7:15 p.m. • Begin the new week by renewing your spirit with chanting, meditation, prayer, visualization and a healing circle. Reiki healing available. By love donation. Call Prachi Patricia Thiel at 449-4381; thielp17@yahoo.co or lighthousecenterinc.org.

Easter Meditation Gathering with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • April 8, 10:15 a.m. • We warmly welcome you to join us; if possible, please let us know you are coming. We will share in song-chants, inspired thoughts, and a recorded message from Mata Yoganandaji, followed by silent prayer and pure meditation for as long as you wish. People of all faiths, meditation practices, and traditions welcome. Free Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Imbolc Ritual with Shining Lakes Grove, ADF • Feb. 5, 2-5 p.m. • Join us as we honor Brid, the Irish goddess of the hearth, inspiration and many other things. Ritual will be held at the ICC Ed Center. Free. Call Rev. Rob Henderson 277-1897; robh@shininglakes.org or shininglakes.org.

Spring Equinox Ritual with Shining Lakes Grove, ADF • March 18, 2-5 p.m. • Join us as we honor Ana, our Grove's goddess of the Huron River and celebrate the coming of spring. Ritual will be held at the ICC Ed Center. Free. Call Rev. Rob Henderson 277-1897; robh@shininglakes.org or shininglakes.org.

New Year's Day Service at Zen Buddhist Temple • Jan. 1, 11:30 a.m. • Come join us as we begin 2012 with contemplation. Free. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Earth Day Celebration for All Ages at Zen Buddhist Temple • April 15, 9:30-11:30 a.m. • Service 9:30-11:30, followed by celebration and garden planting. Free. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Full Moon Potluck & Bonfire at Strawbale Studio • Jan. 9, Feb. 7, March 8, April 6; 5 p.m. • Tour the Strawbale Studio & other natural buildings, share delicious food & hang out at the bonfire or woodstove. Learn about upcoming workshops & internships. Details on website calendar. Free and donations welcome. Call Deanne 248-628-1887; ecoartdb@gmail.com or strawbalestudio.org.

Channeling

Evenings with Aaron with Barbara Brodsky and Aaron • March 16, April 13 & May 25; 7-9:30 p.m. • An open session with Aaron and Barbara. Aaron's talks will cover spiritual practices including Vipassana and Pure Awareness Meditation, Working with Inner Guidance, and Supporting Changes in our physical/spiritual bodies through the work with body energy, the elements, sound and Open Heart. Talk is followed by Q&A. By donation. Call Deep Spring at 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Chant

Community Hu Chant • Every Friday, 6:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Singing Hu is a great way to tune into spiritual currents and initiate profound spiritual experiences. We sing Hu for 20 minutes, followed by silent contemplation. Free. Call John Zissis 320-2010; meetup.com/spiritual-growthmeetup.

Ann Arbor Kirtan • Jan. 20, Feb. 17, March 23, April 13; 7:30-9:30 p.m. • Come join us for an informal evening of yogic and Sanskrit chanting. Kirtan is a participatory call and response, cross-cultural music experience that incorporates the audience into the performance. $5 donation, if possible. Call Karen at 645-8904; krlevin@comcast.net or kirtanannarbor.org.

KEEPING THE SPIRIT OF SUNDANCE ALIVE ALL YEAR ROUND

ANN ARBOR'S DOWNTOWN CENTER FOR FINE FILM AND THE PERFORMING ARTS
603 E. LIBERTY ST. • (734) 668-TIME • MICHTHEATER.ORG

Where Do We Distribute The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal?

10,000 copies of The Crazy Wisdom Community Journal are distributed to more than 180 locations in the Ann Arbor area, including Crazy Wisdom Bookstore, Whole Foods, Plum Market, Castle Remedies at the Parkway Center, the Food Co-op, Kerrytown, Nicola's, the Zen Temple, Sweetwaters, Pharmacy Solutions, Michigan Union, the Better Health Store, the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy, North Campus Commons, Arbor Farms, the Center for Sacred Living, Complete Chiropractic, the Lotus Center, Organic Bliss, the Lighthouse Center, Jewel Heart, Tsogyelgar, the Aprill Wellness Center, Yoga Space, Michigan Theater, Deep Spring Center, and the Weber Center. We also distribute to the offices of dozens of doctors, holistic health care providers and therapists.

If you'd like us to bring copies of The CW Community Journal to your office, studio or center, please call us at 734-665-2757 or email: bill@crazywisdom.net.

Birth Story Nights: Honoring All Experiences from All Mothers

By Kate Stroud

The women sit in a circle. The lights are low. The energy in the room is that of calm, loving acceptance of all that will be shared within these four walls. Sometimes the room is filled with tears and sometimes there are fits of laughter. As the stories are shared throughout the evening, we all cannot help but be affected by them and see threads of other women's stories in our own experiences.

We honor all experiences from all mothers, young and old, single or partnered, lesbian or straight, of all classes and races, and all different ways of birthing.

Birth Story Nights are a place that mothers — all mothers — can come and share their journey through birth. We are open to listening to women recount all paths that they have had to walk to get where they are. Sometimes the stories are joyful and triumphant and sometimes the stories are filled with grief and disappointment. In this space we do not judge or try to solve; we listen and hold the space for a mother to speak and be heard.

Our default is to hear difficult stories without comment because too often women face a sort of inquisition when they tell the stories of difficult births. Often they are asked: Did you try this? Why did you go to the hospital so early? Why did you let them induce you so early? Why didn't you keep trying? Why didn't you pick a different provider?

Still other times, women come to the Birth Story Night hungry for feedback and validation and we will give it when asked. Often some of the greatest healing can come after telling a horrible story and hearing someone across the room speak quietly and say, "I remember when I felt like that" or "I am so sorry. Nobody deserves that."

We honor all experiences from all mothers, young and old, single or partnered, lesbian or straight, of all classes and races, and all different ways of birthing. The evenings are set up with guidelines shared at the beginning of the night, among them a request that the storyteller's privacy be respected and that the stories shared that night stay in the room and don't travel out into the greater community.

These evenings can be very helpful to women by creating a safe place for them to share as much or as little as they choose of their birth in a non-judgmental space. Women can also hear the journeys other women have had into motherhood, which is often beneficial to the listener in processing her own birth or planning future births.

We learn from these evenings of sharing that we should never make assumptions regarding how a mother emotionally processes her birth. A very straightforward, uncomplicated vaginal delivery, which the mother had wanted, still has the potential to be a traumatic experience. Maybe it didn't match her original expectations, was far more painful than she expected, or she felt lost, confused, or out of control. Conversely, a long labor with many interventions that ends in a caesarean section has the potential to be a positive experience for the mother, especially if she felt she was part of the decision making process and felt heard and respected through her birth. Each woman has her own way of experiencing and processing the events around her birth. It is important that others respect her experience and that she feels heard when speaking.

Often these words are spoken: "You and your baby are healthy and that is what is important." This empathetic comment is well intentioned but it can also make it seem as if simply coming out of the experience alive is a good outcome. Any mother who feels disappointed or traumatized by her birth or

Photo by Tyler Habrecht

Kate Stroud leads monthly Personal Renewal Groups for Mothers and hosts Birth Story Nights seasonally. The next one will be on March 15th. She has a massage therapy practice, teaches Birth Doula Trainings, and also offers private childbirth education classes.

upset about short-term or long-term impacts on her body can be made to feel like she is weak, whiny, or selfish. This is in part why we work on recognizing that a birth can have long lasting effects both negative and positive.

With the Birth Story Nights we create a safe space for a mother to express her feelings about her birth the way she experiences them. There are times that a mother just needs the space to be angry about her experience and is not looking for someone to help her feel better. The feelings that women have about their stories will sometimes evolve over time, too, and women might attend more than one Birth Story Night and share how time has changed her feelings about what has happened to her.

Birth Story Nights are not only for women who have a traumatic or negative story to tell. We also hold the space for mothers who want to tell their positive stories. Women who have an empowering, happy birth can feel bad about sharing their stories in a community where a lot of women have very different histories. Women with positive experiences also need space to share without feeling guilty; the Birth Story Nights allow for that, encouraging them to speak up and contribute to a rich and varied history. Together, our stories empower us, offering hope, healing, and community.

We learn from these evenings of sharing that we should never make assumptions regarding how a mother emotionally processes her birth.

Kate Stroud, C.D. (DONA), C.C.E., M.T., is a mother of two. Along with her massage therapy practice, she teaches DONA Birth Doula Trainings, private childbirth education classes, and facilitates a Personal Renewal Group for Mothers once a month at her office in Ypsilanti. The next Birth Story Night will be held on Thursday, March 15, from 7:00-9:00 p.m. at Trillium Collective, 300 N. Huron, Ypsilanti, Michigan 48197. For more information, call 734-395-6900 or email info@katestroud.com.

Chant (continued)

World Peace Chanting Service at Zen Buddhist Temple • Jan. 23 - 28, 6:30 a.m. every day, and 7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday • A week-long kido chanting and purification service for repentance, peace of the world and happiness for all beings. Open to all. Free. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Childbirth

Professional Education in Breastfeeding with Barbara Robertson through Center for Childbearing Year • Part I: March 10, 9 a.m.-2 p.m.; Part II: March 16 1:30-6 p.m. • This workshop provides a grounding in the fundamentals of breastfeeding and will educate professionals who work with women postpartum in the counseling skills necessary to assess and correct breastfeeding problems. $85 for Part I or $150 for both with early registration discount offered. Call 663-1523; patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

DONA International Birth Doula Workshop with Patty Brennan through Center for the Childbearing Year • Feb. 11-12 or April 20-21: 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. each day or every Wednesday April 25 - May 23: 6-9:30 p.m. • Are you interested in a career working with moms and babies? Become a professional birth doula! This training teaches you the skills necessary to provide emotional, physical, and informational support to expectant mothers and their families. You do not need to be a mother yourself nor have a medical background to become a doula - just a passion for birth and the desire to be a support role for other moms. Class leads to professional certification through DONA International. $385 with advanced discounts available. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

DONA International Postpartum Doula Workshop with Patty Brennan through Center for the Childbearing Year • March 15-18: Thursday, 1:30-7:15 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. and Sunday, 8:30 a.m.-3:15 p.m. • Turn your passion for helping moms, babies, and new families into a profitable career. Become a professional birth doula! This course prepares you to provide excellent in-home care to families in the postpartum period. Topics include the multifaceted role of the postpartum doula, significance of the birth experience and implications for postpartum recovery, normal physiologic recovery for the mother and holistic support measures, newborn care, baby calming techniques, baby wearing, support strategies for families with multiples, the latest breastfeeding information and how to troubleshoot common concerns, help for depressed moms, client contracts, and how to establish your business. Class leads to professional certification through DONA International. $435 with advanced discounts available. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Introduction to Childbirth for Doulas with Patty Brennan through Center for the Childbearing Year • Feb 10 or April 20, 10-6:30 p.m. • Want to become a doula and wondering where to start? Get grounded in the basics of childbirth education. Learn how to facilitate informed decision making for your clients with up-to-date information on the benefits, risks, and alternatives to medical interventions in the birth process and with the newborn. Topics include anatomy and physiology of pregnancy, labor, birth, nutrition, and more. $125 with early registration discount available. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Breastfeeding Basics with Barbara Robertson through Center for the Childbearing Year • March 13 and 20, 6:30-8:45 p.m.; Feb 4 or April 28, 12:30-5 p.m. • We want to help your breastfeeding experience be satisfying, joyful, and pain-free! This class prepares the mother-to-be for a successful breastfeeding experience. Topics include latching and positioning the baby, overcoming common obstacles, learning your baby's hunger cues, and more. $65 per couple. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Care for Your Newborn with Center for the Childbearing Year • Feb 18, 12:30-5 p.m. or March 27 & April 3, 6:30-8:45 p.m. • We share practical insights and identify supportive resources for new parents. What about diapering, bathing, and calming the baby? How much stuff do you really need? Learn how to read your baby's cues. $65 per couple. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Childbirth Preparation: Everything You Need to Know with Center for the Childbearing Year • Seven Tuesdays: Jan. 17 - Feb. 28 or Seven Wednesdays: March 7 - April 18; 6:30-8:45 p.m. • Birth is normal and you can do it! This series provides a community of expectant parents who come together to learn about childbirth and explore related topics in preparation for giving birth. Emphasis is placed on developing confidence in a woman's natural capacity to birth, comfort measures and labor support techniques, alternatives to drugs, cesarean prevention, and the baby's needs. $240 per couple. Call 663-1523; patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Childbirth Preparation: Focus on Labor and Birth - Condensed Series with Center for the Childbearing Year • Jan. 21 and 28, 9:30 a.m.-1 p.m. or March 24 and 31, 1-4:30 p.m. • The two-session condensed series is designed for folks with busy schedules who cannot accommodate a longer series, couples seeking a refresher class for a second (or more!) baby or couples planning a homebirth. We'll focus on just the basics: the process of labor and birth, coping with pain, support techniques and comfort measures, and the postpartum recovery period. $170 per couple. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Seven Top Questions about Becoming a Doula with Patty Brennan through the Center for Childbearing Year • Jan. 9, Feb. 6, March 5, April 2, 8-9 p.m. • Monthly live Teleseminar designed to explore the whether or not becoming a doula is right for you. Doula business expert and author of The Doula Business Guide: Creating a Successful MotherBaby Business will host a free seminar with a Q&A session. She will cover training, career paths, the "on-call" lifestyle, blending doula work and family life, the viability of doula business and more. Call 663-1523, patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Meet the Midwives with New Moon Midwifery • second Monday of each month at 6:30 p.m. • Considering homebirth? Join us to learn about New Moon Midwifery services, homebirth, waterbirth, doula services and options in childbirth. Free. Call Anna 424-0220; info@newmoonmidwifery.com or newmoonmidwifery.com.

Homebirth Circle • Second Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. • A social gathering and discussion group for families who are considering homebirth, planning a homebirth or have birthed at home. Free. Call Anna 424-0220; info@newmoonmidwifery.com or newmoonmidwifery.com.

Birth and the First Three Months with Deb Rhizal • Thursdays Jan. 5 - Feb. 9 or Feb. 16 - March 22; Mondays Jan. 30 - March 5 or March 19 - April 23 • Comprehensive childbirth and newborn class emphasizing attachment, personal wellbeing and strong families. $235. Call Deb 926-5566; contact@debrhizal.com or pregnancyarts.com.

Lamaze Childbirth Class with Lamaze Family Center Ann Arbor • Mondays: Jan. 23 - Feb.13 or Feb. 27 - March 19 or April 9 - April 30, Tuesdays: Jan. 17. - Feb. 7 or Feb. 28 - March 20 or April 3 - April 24, Thursdays: Jan. 5 - Jan. 26 or Feb. 16 - March 8 or March 22 - April 12 • Prepare for your baby's birth with a comprehensive, evidence-based 12-hour childbirth class with a free 2-hour breastfeeding class. $175. Call Meredith 973-1014; meredith@lamazefamilycenter.org or lamazefamilycenter.org.

Childbirth Related Classes with Indigo Forest • For more information on the following classes, call 994-8010; beth@visitindigo.com.

Understanding Your Newborn Baby with Rebecca Morris • One Saturday afternoon per month • $60 per couple.

Working and Breastfeeding Guidance with Keleigh Lee • One Sunday per month, 1-3 p.m. • $30.

Special Breastfeeding Topics with Keleigh Lee • Two Wednesdays per month, 6:30-8:30 • $20.

Beginning Breastfeeding Guidance with Keleigh Lee • Two Wednesdays per month, 6:30-8:30 • $60.

When Fertility is Challenging with Juliana Sanchez • April 28, 10-11 a.m. • $15.

Birthing Again with Krista Dragun • Four-week series • $200.

VBACs: Having a Vaginal Birth After a Cesarean with Beth Barbeau • Feb. 11 or April 21, 1-4 p.m. • $50/couple.

Birth Story Circle with Krista Dragun • Sundays • $60.

Strategies for Natural Birthing in the Hospital with Beth Barbeau • Jan. 21, 1-4:30 p.m.

Holistic Childbirth Education with Beth Barbeau • Seven Saturdays, Feb. 25-April 7; 9:30 a.m.-12:15 p.m. • $210/couple.

Children & Young Adults

Complete listings for children are found in the Children's Section of this Journal, devoted to events and classes for children, young adults, and families.

Fairy Teas at Crazy Wisdom • Feb. 23 with 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. seatings; May 13, 1 p.m. Mother's Day Fairy Tea • Children and their families are welcome for tea and petit fours served by real fairies! Celebrate with our magical fairies as they serve tea, treats, and magic. There will be story time with books available from Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. Fairy attire is encouraged. Be creative! $11 per person. Babies 18 months and younger free. Tickets are available by stopping in to Crazy Wisdom or by phoning prior to the event. For information call, 734-66-2757 or email jerri@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

A Course in Miracles

The Basic Principles of A Course in Miracles with Lorri Coburn at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • April 28, 10:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • You will gain an intellectual and experiential understanding of the basic principles of A Course in Miracles, as found in Lorri Coburn's book, Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free. $75. Call Lorri 646-6585; loricassie@sbcglobal.net or loricoburn.com.

A Course in Miracles Study Group with Interfaith Center • Mondays, 6:45-8:30 p.m. • Join us as we read aloud the popular Foundation for Inner Peace metaphysical book, A Course in Miracles. Donations welcome. Call Rev. Dave Bell 327-0270; dave@interfaithspirit.org or interfaithspirit.org.

A Course in Miracles Workbook Study Group with Interfaith Center • Thursdays, 12-1:30 p.m. • All welcome to study the workbook lessons of A Course in Miracles, focusing on a non-dualistic interpretation. Donations welcome. Call Rev. Dave Bell 327-0270; dave@interfaithspirit.org or interfaithspirit.org.

Crystals

Chakra Healing Class with Maret Johnson • first Thursday every month, 12-2 p.m., third Tuesday every month, 6-8 p.m. or by special arrangement • Create a unique bracelet using healing stones as we explore their healing properties. $35 includes supplies, early registration discount. Call 481-9981; gail@worldofrocks.com or worldofrocks.com.

Adult Star Crystal Group with Carol Clarke • third Thursday every month, 7-8:30 p.m. • This is a recurring monthly discussion group focusing on the use of different crystals/minerals each month. Includes meditation and worksheets. $20. Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Readers & Massage at Crazy Wisdom Tea Room

Tarot • Psychic • Intuitive • Numerology • Astrology • Cosmo • Palmistry • Seated Massage

No appointment needed; Readings & Massage $1 per minute

Thursdays

Seated Massage with Mary Ledvina, NCBTMB
4:00 - 7:00 p.m. A Healthy Happy Hour
734-646-9161; maryledvina@earthlink.net

Tarot Readings with Rebecca Williams
6:00 – 9:00 p.m.
734-660-9680; rebeccawilliams999@comcast.net

Fridays

Tarot Readings with Jenna Harbin
1st and 3rd Friday, 2:00 - 5:00 and 2nd and 4th Saturday, 10:30 - 1:30
503-267-6002; Jennaharbin@gmail.com

Intuitive Readings with Irena Nagler
2nd & 4th Fridays, 6:30 - 9:30 p.m.
734-996-1772; birena@umich.edu

Intuitive/Psychic Readings with Marcella Fox
1st & 3rd Fridays, 7:00 – 10:00 p.m.
734-717-8513

Saturdays

COSMO Readings with John Fredericks
1st & 3rd Saturdays, 10:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m.
734-368-1780; jfreder8@emich.edu

Intuitive/Psychic Readings with Diane Evans
1st & 3rd Saturdays, 2:00 - 5:00 p.m.
734-327-9568; in-genius@comcast.net

Intuitive/Psychic Readings with Amy Garber
2nd & 4th Saturdays, 2:00 - 5:00 p.m.
734-358-0218; metafizzy@gmail.com

Tarot Readings with Randy Weiser
7:00 - 10:00 p.m.
734-482-9874; randy_weiser@yahoo.com

Sundays

Intuitive Astrology Readings with Richard Weber
2nd & 4th Sundays, 12:00 - 3:00 p.m.
734-434-0804; richardmweber@sbcglobal.net

Palmistry Readings with Vijayalaxmi Shinde
3:00 - 6:00 p.m.
734-222-9160; vijaya_laxmi@comcast.net

Crazy Wisdom Bookstore and Tea Room
114 S. Main Street, Ann Arbor
734-665-2757 • www.crazywisdom.net

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Dance & Movement

Dances of Universal Peace with Judy Lee Trautman • Jan. 6, Feb. 3, March 2, & April 6 • Dances of Universal Peace were originated in the 60's in San Francisco by Sufi teacher Samuel Lewis to celebrate the world's religions through simple folk dance steps. The dances, a form of moving meditation, require no partner or experience. $5 donation. Call Judy Lee 419-475-6535; jltrautman@sbcglobal.net or peacedance.multifaithjourneys.org.

The Pilates Method of Body Conditioning with Michelle Millman • Wednesdays at noon • The Pilates Method is a system of restorative floor exercise that works the body within its natural limits without stressing joints/muscles. It strengthens the abdomen and torso. Students gain an understanding of how to move efficiently without pain gaining energy, grace and control. $60 for 5 classes. Call Collette 302-3502; owner@kenvillestudios.com or kenvillestudios.com.

Winter Session at Tree of Life • Jan. 9 thru March 17 • Check out the exciting variety of classes at treeoffifestudio.org. Costs vary, depending on class. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org.

Spring Session at Tree of Life • April 9 thru beginning of June • Check out the exciting variety of classes at treeoffifestudio.org. Costs vary, depending on class. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org.

Hip Hop with Ziva Gibbs • Mondays, Jan. 9 thru March 12, 6-7 p.m. • Learn fundamental movements of East and West Coast Hip Hop including basic isolation, top rock, drops, downrock, and freezes associated with breakdancing. Plus the West coast sharp isolation of popping and comical gesturing. Styles will be combined to perform complex cyphers with fun choreography. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

African Dance with Jenabah Giacomelli • Mondays, Jan. 9 thru March 12, 7-8:30 p.m. • Let the beat of the drums move your body and soul! This class offers a rich taste of African culture and provides an amazing, full body workout. Get ready to sweat and have fun! All levels welcome. $15 drop-in or $130 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudios.org.

Oula with Katie Capaldi • Wednesdays, Jan. 11 thru March 14, 6-7 p.m. • Oula offers balance between the hip and the hippy, with its structured but easy and fun choreography, while encouraging self-expression and freedom of movement. Easy to learn through repetitive sequences. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Zumba with Jane Helzer • Saturdays, Jan. 14 thru March 17, 10-11 a.m. • Zumba fuses Latin and world rhythms into easy to follow moves that create a dynamic fitness class. Using interval-training sessions where fast and slow rhythms and resistance training are combined to tone and sculpt the body while burning fat. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Tribal Style Belly: Basics, Concepts & Combos with Cheri Sing • Thursdays, Jan. 12 thru March 15, 6-7 p.m. • Class will begin with a warm up that includes stretches, strengthening and postural drills, followed by basic movements, combos and cues. Student will learn vocabulary and technique, and practice concepts of Tribal Style bellydance. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Tribal Style Belly: Conditioning & Choreography with Mylitta Benjamin • Thursdays, Jan. 12 thru March 15, 7-8 p.m. • Develop your strength, length and presence as you practice your tribal techniques. You will train, refine and embody the grace of this art form. Fun, energetic way to condition the body and practice the skills within tribal fusion choreography. Previous belly dancing class recommended. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Tribal Style Belly: Formations, Drills & Zills with Jenabah Giacomelli • Thursdays, Jan. 12 thru March 15, 8-9 p.m. • Broaden your existing knowledge through new combinations and formation, and build confidence while dancing with zills. Refining techniques, reviewing vocabulary and drilling our group improvisation will help prepare dancers for performing. One year of belly dancing experience or permission required. $12 drop in / $100 for 10 weeks. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Divorce Support

Cultivating Peace During and After Divorce with Melanie Fuscaldo • Jan. 17, Noon-1:30 • Cultivate your innate peace during and after divorce through a process that focuses on the gifts in any situation. Find the hidden blessings and move into joyful power. $30. Call Melanie 668-2733; mfulcaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar will be posted online starting January 1, 2012 at crazywisdom.net.

Dreamwork

Dreaming with the Archangels with Deb Foggio • Saturdays, Feb. 11 thru March 10, 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Journey with the four Archangels through the spiritual realm of your dream world. With their guidance you will discover eternal wisdom and truth, uncover your life's mission, tap into past lifetimes or dream of future events. You will learn specific techniques to perform and each evening of the journey you will review special dream topics to stimulate specific dream experiences. Using dream analysis you will decode messages delivered in your dreams. $185. Call Deb 248-702-7064; lightworkscen@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

The Power of Dreams: A Creative Approach to Dream Interpretation • Saturdays, Feb. 4 thru Feb. 18, 10-11:55 a.m. • Learn various creative methods for interpreting your dreams and about the multiple meanings and elements of dreams; how to improve recall and how to recognize dream feedback for problem solving and positive life change. $49. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Drumming

Drumunity Circles hosted by Lori Fithian • Jan. 17, Feb. 16, March 14, April 19; 7-9 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Get your hands on a drum and add your sound and spirit to the community groove. All are welcome to join in the circle. No experience necessary. Drums available. Free. Call 426-7818; lorifithian@mac.com or drumunity.com.

Drum 4 Wellness Circle with Interfaith Center • Jan. 7, Feb. 4, March 3, April 7; 7:30-9 p.m. • Facilitated community drum circle. Bring your own or use a drum provided. $5 suggested donation. Call Don 480-1219; don@drum4wellness.net or interfaithspirit.org.

Drum 4 Wellness Healing Circle with Don Allen • Jan. 20, Feb. 17, March 16, April 20; 7-8:30 p.m. • Experience creating HeartSong in a community circle and new levels of connection through drumming. Discovering our heart song as an individual and as a group expands the experience into receiving spiritual wisdom and healing. We will explore Shamanic ceremonial traditions to open channels for creativity in everyday living. No experience necessary. $15. Call Deb at 248-702-7064; lightworkscen@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Community Drum Jam • Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 23, April 27; 8-11 p.m. • A monthly drum circle for all! Feel the pulse at Tree of Life while we build community through rhythm, song, and dance. All ages welcome. Bring any rhythm instrument or use one of ours. Free. Call 433-0697; info@treeoffifestudio.org or treeoffifestudio.org.

Sacred Drumming for Beginners with Carol Clarke • Jan. 26, 7-9 p.m. • This class bring Native American drumming alive. Through sacred drumming techniques we will drive away negative feelings and bring your own rhythms to the surface. $25 (bring your own drum). Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Energy Healing

Healing With Meditation with Barry Lipscomb • Jan. 9 & 23, Feb. 6 & 20, March 5 & 19, April 2 & 16; 7:30-9 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Reduce stress, focus attention, keep you grounded, help maintain clarity of purpose, clear barriers to goals and connect you will a deeper awareness of your own being. Sessions include explanation before guiding you through an experience of your own energy body and followed by guided healing meditation. $10 per session. Pre-register at 917-587-3775; barry@barrylipscomb.com or barrylipscomb.com.

Introduction to Alternative Healing Methods with Susana Stoica • March 10, 10:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Experience several alternative healing methods and gain an understanding of the types of options alternative medicine has to offer, when and how are they best used. $80. Call Susana 248-615-1387; susanacw-pres@aol.com or stoica.com.

Learn the Emotional Freedom Technique with Melanie Fuscaldo • Jan. 19, Noon-1:30 • Learn a powerful tool you can use anytime to improve your health, career, abundance, relationships, retirement, and more. It has unlimited potential to release what is not life enhancing (fears, emotions, trauma, depression, negativity, disease) and increase whatever you choose to add joy to your life. As you experience reduced internal conflict, you can reduce your suffering and increase your peace. $30. Call Melanie 668-2733; mfulscaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Harmony of Energy I - Circling Energy with Wasentha Young • Jan. 28, 5:30-7:30 p.m. • We will connect with earth, universal and personal chi through circular movement. Harnessing these energies in a healing way, you being to understand how to cultivate raw chi for the health of your mind, body and spirit. $30. Call Wasentha 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Harmony of Energy II - Harmonizing Your Energy Centers with Wasentha Young • Feb. 11, 5:30-7:30 p.m. • Through visualization, touch and breath this session will introduce the fundamental qualities of your centers, and bring into harmony the essential energy flow that connects them. $30. Call Wasentha 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Fundamentals of Energy Work with Wasentha Young • Thursdays, Jan. 12 thru April 5, 6-7:15 p.m. • Explore the basic techniques used in mind/body practices including: meditation, stretching, overview of the body's energy system, and the Reeling of Silk. $180. Call Wasentha 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Healing Circles with Glenn Pailthorp • Jan. 29, Feb. 19, March 18 and April 15 • Using guided meditations, we will explore healing the body, aura and spirit. Topics include: chakras, kundalini, shamanic journeys, out-of-body practice, spirit communication, past life regression and other intuition building exercises. $10 per session. Call Glenn 417-8682; glenn@pailthorp.com or pailthorp.com.

Spiraling Into Infinity with Karen Greenberg • Jan. 30, 6-10 p.m. • Receive the training to be able to perform this energy work on clients. Spiraling Into Infinity assists clients in identifying with and expanding into their limitless, spiritual selves, where anything and everything is possible. $350. Call 417-9511; krngmbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Healer & Ascension Certification Course with Eve Wilson • alternate Wednesdays, starting Jan. 18 and running 13 months, 7-10 p.m. • Legal UCM Healer Practitioner Certification good in the USA and Canada. Accredited NCBTMB for Continuing Ed. Massage Therapists. Many techniques taught, 5 private healing sessions, and class materials included. $2750 paid in full or $2900 pay as you go. Call Eve 780-7635; evew@spiritualhealers.com or spiritualhealers.com.

"A man travels the world over in search of what he needs and returns home to find it."

~George Moore

The Healer Development 101 with Eve Wilson • six Tuesdays starting March 6, 7-9:30 p.m. 8 Intuition Development/Self Healing/Essential Foundations. Many topics covered. $280 paid in full or $300 pay as you go. Call Eve 780-7635; evew@spiritualhealers.com or spiritualhealers.com.

Advanced Healing Techniques with Karlta Zarley • May 19-20, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. • For those who are already doing energy healing, we will discuss repairing the energy field after trauma, removing foreign objects, vovlocks, booby-traps & curses, balancing the limbic system, plus much more. With time to practice. Bring a bag lunch. $250. Pre-register with a $100 deposit by calling Kaltra 433-9333; kzarley@att.net or karltazarley.com.

Energy Balancing Bodywork Workshop through Naturopathic School of the Healing Arts • April 12-15, 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • The essential aspects of our being expressed as Earth, Water, Fire, Air and Ether - participants in this continuing education energy medicine training will experience, practice and integrate specific bodywork sessions designed to entrain the subtle energy and nervous system pathways with vitality for all body systems. $600 for 4 day, $450 for 2 days. Call 769-7794; naturopathicschool@gmail.com or naturopathicschoolofannarbor.net.

Energy Body Hygiene: Preventing Illness Before It Appears In Your Physical Body with Dave and Pat Krajovic • March 14, 6:30-8:30 p.m. • Everything is energy and our mind influences how matter behaves. Esoteric teachings reveal that all illness and pain resides first in the energy body then manifests later in the physical body. Learn how to keep your energy body clean of dirty and diseased energy. Restore your health, gain energy, relax and feel renewed. $37. Call Dave 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Enneagram

Michigan Enneagram Study Group with Ronda Diegel and JoAnn Weber • Jan. 10 and 24, Feb. 21, March 27, April 24, 7-9 p.m. • "Befriending Your Type" is this year's theme. Each meeting we will explore a different Enneagram type through meditation, panel interview, and community sharing. $10. Call Ronda 248-730-0597; drondadiegel@comcast.net or drondadiegel.com.

Michigan Enneagram Sangha with Ronda Pretzlaff Diegel • Jan. 17, Feb. 7, April 10, May 1 • Working through the 4 Foundations of Mindfulness, this group integrates the mindfulness meditation with an exploration of Enneagram personality types. $10. Call Ronda 248-730-0597; drondadiegel@comcast.net or drondadiegel.com.

Exercise & Fitness

Finding Relief from Chronic Pain with Ann-Margaret Giovino • Jan. 7, Feb. 4, March 3, April 7; 10:45 a.m. - 12:45 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • You will learn where and how the pain cycle begins and leave with a personal home program to reduce or eliminate pain. Most repetitive injury and chronic pain being with postural misalignments. Through the class and workbook, "Painfree: A Revolutionary Method for Stopping Chronic Pain" by Pete Egoscue, you will have a better understanding of your body and what contributes to your pain. $30 plus the workbook. Call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiovino.com or gymgiovino.com.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Exercise & Fitness (continued)

Resolve Carpel Tunnel Syndrome with Ann-Margaret Giovino • Jan. 19, 7-8 p.m. • Repetitive movements aren't the cause. Come find out what causes the injury and how to resolve the root cause using postural analysis and a crazy-simple exercise program that can be easily added to your day. Free. Call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Restoring Your Feet's Function and Flexibility with Ann-Margaret Giovino • Jan. 25, 10:30 - 11:30 a.m. or 7-8 p.m. • Sore feet, fallen arches, toes problems? Where do we begin to find relief? We have the power to change our circumstances and, if we take responsibility, can do it ourselves through exercise. Free. To reserve a spot call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Sciatica and Vertebral Disk Issues with Ann-Margaret Giovino • Feb. 16, 7-8 p.m. • Bulging, herniated discs, sciatica, scoliosis, kyphosis, lordosis.....come find out the root cause of these and other back/spine issues. Resolve them by using postural analysis and a personalized exercise program that can be easily added to your day. Free. Call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Weak Ankles? Learn Why & How to Make Them Strong with Ann-Margaret Giovino • Feb. 22, 10:30 - 11:30 a.m. or 7-8 p.m. • Sports and accidents don't weaken or damage ankles, but misalignment does. Unravel the problem and find the key to understanding this perfectly evolved mechanism for bipedal motion. Free. To reserve a spot call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Resolve Arthritis, Tendonitis, Bursitis with Ann-Margaret Giovino • March 15, 7-8 p.m. • These are all symptoms of a greater problem. Come find out what that root cause is and how to resolve it using postural analysis and a personalized exercise program that can be easily added to your day. Free. Call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Reversing the Cycle of Knee Pain/Injury with Ann-Margaret Giovino • March 28, 10:30-11:30 a.m. or 7-8 p.m. • Get the real deal on patellofemoral disease, meniscitis, prepatellar bursitis, knee osteoarthritis, chondromalacia patellae, and locked knees. Find out how what is happening in other joints are relating directly to your knees. Free. To reserve a spot call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Athletes: Take It To the Next Level with Ann-Margaret Giovino • April 19, 7-8 p.m. • You're good, but you want to be better. You work drills, put in extra time on cardio, and are faithful to visualization. But do you know that bad posture affects body balance? This talk will cover the body's design, how we deviate from it, and what we can do to fix it using postural analysis and a simple exercise program that can be easily added to your workout. Free. Call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

Hips! Those Magnificent Joints! with Ann-Margaret Giovino • April 25, 10:30-11:30 a.m. or 7-8 p.m. • A change of course could reduce hip pain and/or replacement. Learn what has happened to your hips and why - either to avoid hip surgery or make sure you never have it done again. Free. To reserve a spot call 276-7769; ann-margaret@gymgiiovino.com or gymgiiovino.com.

"It's a New Day" Intelligent Exercise, LLC Open House with Melissa Francis • Jan. 28, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. • Learn about Pilates for Osteoporosis, Thai Massage, Naturopathy, Nutrition and Muscle Activation Technique during our open house presentations. Dance and musical artists will also perform. Free. Call Melissa 994-9970; melissa@intelligentexercise.net or intelligentexercise.net.

Anatomy for Movers with Lindy Royer • Feb. 11-12, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. • Experientially based so that anatomical theory can be applied to movement and movement analysis. Great for any person interested in learning more about their own anatomy and relationships of anatomy to movement. Appropriate for all levels and is a Balanced Body approved course for ACE and PMA CECs. $450 includes manual. Call Melissa 994-9970; melissa@intelligentexercise.net or intelligentexercise.net.

Exercise & Fitness (continued)

Rites of Rejuvenation - The Fountain of Youth with Dave and Pat Krajovic • Feb. 9, 6:30-8 p.m. • From the monks of Tibet, these five ancient but simple exercises will help build strength and flexibility. The 5 Tibetan Rites of Rejuvenation will help balance your endocrine system, restore energy levels, expel negative energy, balance your chakras, improve your attitude, ease sleep, instill harmony, and more. $37. Call Pat 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Qigong with Erin Reas • every Tuesday, 10 a.m. • Qigong is one of the pillars of Chinese medicine and has a long history with many who practice. Qigong cultivates and refines life force, triggers natural healing resources and balances the body. Experience Qigong through the core practices of gentle movement, breathing techniques, self-massage and meditation. $15 drop in or $40 for 4 classes. Call Deb 248-702-7064; lightworkscen-ter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Film

Free Films and Discussion at Jewel Heart • Fridays, 7 p.m. • Bring your friends and enjoy a free film and discussion about dharma and the film. Concessions are available. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Jan. 27 • Enlightenment Guaranteed (2001) German

Feb. 17 • Buck (2011) hosted by Janis Paul

March 30 • Why Has Bodhi-Dharma Left for the East (1989) Korean with English subtitles

April 27 • Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter and Spring (2004) Korean with English subtitles

Play Again Film Screening sponsored by Progressive Education Consortium • March 1, 6-8:30 p.m. • Join us for the screening and discussion about, Play Again from Bullfrog Communities. Arrival/tours at 6pm, film begins promptly at 6:30pm followed by discussion. Screening will be held at Clonlara School. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or sites.google.com/site/progressiveedconsortium/.

Great Freedom Balanced View Community Video Meeting at Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth • Mondays, 7-9 p.m. • Balanced View Video meeting 7 p.m., immediately followed by a Clarity Call at 8 p.m. For more info visit greatfreedom.org. Donation. Call Rob 255-0163; michalowski529@comcast.net or interfaithspirit.org.

Spiritual Cinema at Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth • Jan. 21, Feb. 18, March 17, April 21; 8-10 p.m.. • Join us for a monthly screening of spiritually-themed cinema. Check our website for upcoming showings. $5 donation. Call Rev. Dave Bell 327-0270; dave@interfaithspirit.org or interfaithspirit.org.

Fundraisers

PEC Garage Sale • Feb. 11, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. • Our members have gathered all types of items to sell at our garage sale. This event is a fundraiser to help the student members of the Progressive Education Consortium attend a field trip together or travel to the NCACS conference. Sale will be held at Clonlara School. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or sites.google.com/site/progressiveedconsortium/.

Healing

Introduction to Alternative Healing with Susana Stoica • March 10, 10:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • If you ever wondered which of the many alternative approaches to healing is best for you and how to combine alternatives and traditional medicine treatments, this class is for you. Each attendee receives a copy of "Healing with the Loving Heart." $60. Call Susana 248-895-5784; susanacwpres@aol.com or stoica.com.

Healthy Living Series at Crazy Wisdom Community Room, sponsored by People's Food Co-op • 7-8:30 p.m. • Free. Call Caitlin Joseph at 994-4589; outreach@peoples-food.coop or peoplesfood.coop.

Feb. 9 • Tools for Healing Depression and Anxiety with Rev. Lela Iduna • Discover the root cause of depression and anxiety and learn practical and inspirational ways to overcome them.

Transformational Healing Retreat at Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 27-29, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on the 29th • This retreat includes a private appointment to receive natural spiritual healing and learn a healing breath, a group transformation hatha yoga class for all levels and abilities, time for meditation together or on your own, and plenty of free time to rest, read, contemplate, walk in nature or whatever else your heart calls you to do. $240 includes shared lodging and home-cooked meals. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Healing Circle with Deep Spring Center • Tuesdays, Noon-1 • All are welcome! No experience necessary. We circle together to join our energies to support each other and to request support for others. We take turns sharing and receiving the healing energies of love through touch and intentional presence. By donation. Call 477-5848; om@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Pranic Healing Clinic with Dave and Pat Krajovic • third Wednesday every month, 7-8 p.m. • Dissolve and disintegrate dirty energy and blocked energy. Pranic Healing is effective with many illnesses and diseases. Other Pranic Healing Practitioners welcome. Love donation. Call Pat 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Drawing, Dreaming and Healing with Glenn Pailthorp • Jan. 24, Feb. 7, March 6, April 10, 6:30-8:30 p.m. • Bring paper, crayons and colored pencils to record experiences during the guided meditations, shamanic journeys and lucid dreams. Explore the archetypes, images and themes to our inner lives. $10. Call Glenn 417-8682; glenn@pailthorp.com or pailthorp.com.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar will be posted online starting January 1, 2012 at crazywisdom.net.

Remote Healing Practices with Glenn Pailthorp • Jan. 8, Feb. 5, March 4, April 1, 9:05 p.m. • We practice guided meditation and healing practices for ourselves and those around us. The purpose is to encourage each other and develop the daily spiritual practice of meditation and distance healing work. Free. Call Glenn 417-8682; glenn@pailthorp.com or pailthorp.com.

One-Day Spiritual Healing Workshop with Bonnie Watson • Jan. 14, 9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. • The powerful healing King Technique was devised by Yoga Master, Dr. George King over 40 years ago and has been taught to thousands. Learn to heal using this safe, effective and power technique. Ideal for complete novices, as well as experienced. $95. Call Chrissie 248-588-0290; michigan.aetherius@gmail.com or aetheriusmi.org.

Herbs, Plants & the Garden

Healthy Living Series at Crazy Wisdom Community Room, sponsored by People's Food Co-op • 7-8:30 p.m. • Free. Call Caitlin Joseph at 994-4589; outreach@peoples-food.coop or peoplesfood.coop.

Jan. 26 • Herbal Wisdom - The Myth of Fasting: Using Herbs for Nourishment, Not Punishment with Linda Diane Feldt • Learn about how wonderfully the body works, what it needs to work well, and the use of herbs for nourishment.

Feb. 23 • Herbal Wisdom - At the Beginning of Life with Linda Diane Feldt • Learn about herbs for fertility, pregnancy, labor, delivery and post-partum. Find out what is safe, what is common and what to avoid.

March 22 • Herbal Wisdom - Herbal Allies for Men with Linda Diane Feldt • Inspire and inform men of simple ways to be healthier and happier. Topics include prostate health, heart and cancer health, nutrition and special herb allies for men.

April 26 • Herbal Wisdom - Herbal First Aid with Linda Diane Feldt • Learn to assemble and use a simple "holistic" first aid kit. Suggestion on what to collect, how to preserve, and how to use.

Medicinal Herbal Studies Program through Naturopathic School of the Healing Arts • begins April 28 • Gaia Center offers the ideal foundation and introduction to medicinal herbal use, study, practice and education, integrated with Naturopathic School as the first segment of the country's first MASTER HERBALIST diploma program. $2400 (due by April 10). Call Dorothy 769-7794; naturopathicschool@gmail.com or gaiaherbalstudies.net.

All About Lavender with Madolyn Kaminski • April 2, 7 p.m. • Presentation concerning the best Lavenders to grow in Zone 5, the uses of Lavender and recipes. Free (metered parking). Call Madolyn 647-7600; m.kaminski@comcast.net or mbgna.umich.edu.

Starting Herbs From Seeds with Madolyn Kaminski • March 5, 7 p.m. • This meeting provides small packets of seeds given free and how to grow herbs from seeds. Free (metered parking). Call Madolyn 647-7600; m.kaminski@comcast.net or mbgna.umich.edu.

Composting: The Ultimate Recycling with Monica Milla • April 19, 6:30-8:55 p.m. • Discover the simple yet intensive methods, look at techniques for maximizing quality, identify remedies for common problems, and learn about compost's role in soil and plant improvement. $35. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Introduction to Organic Gardening with Erica Kempter • Jan 24, 3-5:25 p.m. or 6:30-8:55 p.m. • Understand the fundamentals of organic gardening from an ecological perspective, beginning with its environmental benefits. Review key principals of biology, botany and ecology and how they apply to gardening. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Organic Gardening: Soils, Compost & Fertility with Erica Kempter • Thursdays and Tuesday, Jan. 26 thru Feb. 2, 3-4:55 p.m. or 6:30-8:25 p.m. • Explore important physical and biological properties of the soil, learn soil evaluation and site assessment skills, discover the benefits of compost and various compost making techniques, gain practical soil improvement techniques. $69. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Organic Gardening: Organic Vegetable Gardening with Erica Kempter • Tuesdays and Thursday, Feb. 7 thru Feb. 14, 3-4:55 p.m. or 6:30-8:25 p.m. • Learn organic vegetable garden design and planning, including site selection, bed layout, crop rotation and plant spacing. Get detailed information on local planting dates, seed starting, recommended varieties, cultural requirements and harvesting tips. $69. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Organic Gardening: Organic Lawn Care with Erica Kempter • March 8, 3-4:55 p.m. or 6:30-8:25 p.m. • Look at turf grass from an ecological perspective, learning how to cultivate a lawn "ecosystem" that supports strong and healthy grass that resists pests, diseases and weeds. Topics include: grass biology, selecting species, maintenance, and organic weed, pest and disease management. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Organic Gardening: Easy Organic Fruit Growing with Erica Kempter • Tuesdays and Thursday March 13 thru March 20, 3-4:55 p.m. or 6:30-8:25 p.m. • An overview of how to incorporate easy-to-grow fruiting plants such as berries, vines, shrubs, fruit trees and lesser known fruiting plants into your home landscape. $69. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Making Peace With Food

Abbe J Grossman, M.A.

Eating Disorder Coach

Offering classes & individual sessions

With 20 years of expertise in helping clients change their compulsive eating, Abbe's non-diet approach focuses on the body's energy and provides grounding techniques to help you through your transformation.

— FREE INTRODUCTORY WORKSHOPS —

Saturdays, once a month, 10 am - 12 pm

28592 Orchard Lake Road, Suite 301
Farmington Hills, Michigan 48331

For more information:

grossmanabbejma@att.net (248) 470-5738

www.MakingPeaceWithFood.net

Holistic Health

Healthy Living Series at Crazy Wisdom Community Room, sponsored by People's Food Co-op • 7-8:30 p.m. • Free. Call Caitlin Joseph at 994-4589; outreach@peoples-food.coop or peoplesfood.coop.

March 15 • Heal Your Digestive System, Heal Your Life with Gary Merel • Find out why "you are what you absorb." Explore strategies for healing our digestive and immune systems to deal with a host of issues.

Holistic Strategies for High Blood Pressure with Sandy Baumann • March 14, 6-8:25 p.m. • Uncontrolled, high blood pressure can lead to many serious health problems. Why not combine easy lifestyle approaches with healthy food choices and low-cost vitamins, minerals, and supplements? Stir in everyday soothing strategies and simple support systems. The results? A scientifically proven, all-natural recipe for healthy blood pressure. $23. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Waking Your Vital Energy • April 19 & 26, 6-7:55 p.m. • Explore and practice the ancient energy techniques of Chi Gung, Lotus meditation, Do-In self massage and Guasha. Practice stimulating acupoints to experience optimal personal energy and restoration of stamina. $45. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Feed Your Face: Natural Skincare from the Kitchen with Esther Morton-McCormick • March 22, 6-8:55 p.m. • Learn how to replace your chemical based facial care products with natural ones you make yourself. The knowledge you take home from this class can make a difference in your wallet and on your face. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Life Skills and Relaxation Class with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Feb. 11, 3-4 p.m. • Learning more about the Mind-Body connection and how to apply the practical energy care tools in your everyday life at school, work, home and play will help with the problems and challenges you face - no matter how difficult. $30 If you cannot afford the fee, please contact us. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Holistic Health (continued)

Fundamentals of Muscle Testing with Marc Terebello • Jan. 19 and 26, Feb. 9 and 16, March 1, 8 and 15, 7-10 p.m. • A hands on course to learn how to determine the source of common ailments and conditions by determining what the body needs to be well through the holistic tool of muscle testing. $299. Call Marc 248-645-6070; drterebeo@birminghamwellness.com or birminghamwellness.com.

Radiant Health Lecture with Dr. Diane Babalas • Jan. 14 and March 10 • Interactive talk explaining and demonstrating Bio-Geometric Integration, a chiropractic approach utilizing sacred geometry. Participants receive a gift certificate towards initial evaluation. Free. Call Diane 239-6060; babalasd@yahoo.com or gatewaychiropracticbgi.com.

Healing in 3D with Greg Knollmeyer • Jan. 24, 6 p.m. or March 10, 2 p.m. • Discover a unique way of simultaneously working with physical, emotional and energetic aspects of your being. Harness your whole being's potential to heal. Free. Call Greg 678-9508; gregspir@icloud.com or healing.gregknollmeyer.com.

Wellness Orientation Workshop with Dr. Jonathan Lazar & Dr. Joshua Stockwell • Jan. 11, Jan. 25, Feb. 8, Feb. 22, March 7, March 21, April 4, April 18; 6:15-7:30 p.m. • Forget what you thought you knew about "health care." Dr. Lazar and Dr. Stockwell will W.O.W. you. They are going to spill the beans about how you can easily keep yourself and your family healthy. Refreshments. Free. Call Jen 274-5107; care@lazarspinalcare.com or lazarspinalcare.com.

Indigo Forest's Health Club Series with Juliana Sanchez • Jan. 28 and Mar. 31 • For more information, call 994-8010; beth@visitindigo.com.

Jan. 28, 10-11:30 a.m. • Our Emotional Health: Nurturing Joy and Lessening Anxiety/Depression Naturopathically! • $15 pre-registered or $20 at the door.

Mar. 31, 10-11 a.m. • Ever Hear "It Might Be Your Thyroid"? • $10 pre-registered or $15 at the door.

Homeopathy

Castle Remedies Homeopathic Kit: What It Is and How to Use It with Mary Tillinghast • Jan. 4, 21 & 31, Feb. 11, 14 & 29, March 10, 12 & 28, April 14, 17 & 25; weekday classes 7:30-9:30 p.m. and Saturday classes 2-4 p.m. • The Kit is a practical class that covers choosing homeopathic remedies for home care. Our main focus will be putting our knowledge of homeopathy into practice for loved ones. We will learn the process of choosing remedies and how to administer them. $55 for one session. Call 973-8990; castleremedies@gmail.com or castleremedies.com.

Hypnosis

Tools for Change: An Intro to Hypnosis with Christine Allyson • Feb. 6, March 5 and April 2 • You will learn how to replace the fear of change with the love of growth using a series of specific tools and principles to successfully facilitate your growth and enhance your life. Each class will feature a specific, experiential tool/technique. $20. Call Deb 248-702-7064; lightworkcenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Intuitive & Psychic Development

Drop-In Intuitive/Psychic Readings with Diane Evans in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • First and Third Saturdays, 2-5 p.m. • Diane believes we all have the answers to the questions and concerns within us. Sometimes we just need a little help finding them. Diane's intention is to help you find the oracle that resides within you as she shares impressions, metaphors, and messages to be utilized as tools for self-insight. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 327-9568, in-genius@comcast.net.

Drop-In Intuitive/Psychic Readings with Marcella Fox in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • First and Third Fridays of each month, 7-10 p.m. • Marcella offers guidance and healing using a variety of techniques ranging from intuitive readings to Tarot to Mana Card readings. Readings may include channeling on special issues, Reiki, past life readings, chakra balancing, and journeying. She also offers readings on pets involving remote viewing (your pet need not be present). $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 717-8513 or mpfox@umich.edu.

Drop-In Intuitive Readings with Irena Nagler in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Second and Fourth Fridays of each month, 6:30-9:30 p.m. • Participate in a shared, interactive dream, allowing the soul to release energy, flow, and insight. Irena can use card decks or other objects to focus or simply tune in with the intention to help activate the client's own powers of discernment, creativity, and confidence in choosing the adventures that call to them. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 996-1772; birena@umich.edu.

Drop-In Intuitive Readings with Amy Garber in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Second and Fourth Saturdays, 2-5 p.m. • Amy is a medium, psychic, and channel who aids you on your path by consulting with your spirit guides, illuminating past lives, and connecting with loved ones who have passed on, as appropriate. Clients may receive exercises to aid them with life lessons and to practice accessing their own guidance. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. For more information, call 358-0218; metafizzy@gmail.com.

"Intuitives Interactive" Group with Amy Garber • first Thursday of the month, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • For Intuitives, Indigos and others wishing to explore and share their experiences with like-minded individuals. Listen and share, discuss/learn and practice. $5 donation. Call Amy 358-0218; metafizzy@gmail.com.

Intro to Psychic Meditation and Clairvoyant Reading with Glenn Pailthorp & Tiffany Mazurek • March 15, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Learn the basics of a meditative system that clears and balances your aura for grounded living. $10. Call Glenn 417-8682; glenn@pailthorp.com or pailthorp.com.

Everyday Intuition with Robin Brophy • Feb. 24, 7-8 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Intuition is a natural gift and this class offers tools on how to recognize and move with our own intuitive wisdom through deepening our relationship to life. $10. Call Robin 303-525-6478; lollylolipop@yahoo.com.

Living With the Dead with Michelle Belanger & Jackie Williams • March 10, 4 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Meet these two spirit mediums to learn how to successfully live with spirits, how to help your children deal with spirits, and how to protect yourself and defend your family from dangerous and unwanted guests. Free. Call Rachel 665-2757; spiralingfire@gmail.com or spiralfirestudio.com or michellebelanger.com.

The Watcher Angel Tarot: Myth, Meaning and Creation with Michelle Belanger & Jackie Williams • March 11, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Join the creators of the Watcher Angel Tarot for a discussion of the concept and design of this new deck. Learn about how the myth of the Watcher angels is wedded to the symbolism of the Tarot in this deck and discover how to use the Tarot as a tool for exploring your own personal narrative. $10. Call Jackie 218-3069; spiralingfire@gmail.com or spiralfirestudio.com or michellebelanger.com.

Ghosthunting 101 with Beverly Fish • March 31, 1-3:55 p.m. • Explore the paranormal with this one-day course that teaches you how to set up an investigation and use of equipment to help give evidence of energy fields and EVPs, learn what to be aware of, when to call in an expert, and what to avoid when "hunting" ghosts. $25. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Heart Based Intuitive Development with Melanie Fuscaldo • Jan. 24, Noon-1:30 • Develop your intuition with heart based techniques to discover information about relationship, health, and spiritual goals. Explore inner purpose and career path. $30. Call 668-2733; mfulscaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Psychic Development 1 with Deb Foggio • Four Thursdays: Jan. 12-Feb. 2, 7-9:30 p.m. • Students are guided through the process of connecting with and developing their psychic ability. The class helps awaken your awareness, then stimulates psychic development by teaching the fundamentals required to develop and use this skill in everyday life and more. No experience necessary. $130. Call Deb Foggio at 248-702-7064; lightworkcenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Psychic Development 2 with Deb Foggio • Four Thursdays: Feb. 9-March 1, 7-9:30 p.m. • Students are guided through the study and history of different modalities used to connect with and express psychic energies and talents. More hands-on experiential work is emphasized to help expand and understand unique gifts and expression as well as to learn the technical aspects of the work. Students will experience a deeper understanding of how the physical and spiritual are integrated. $130. For times, call Deb Foggio at 248-702-7064; lightworkcenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Psychic Development Work Circle with Deb Foggio • every Wednesday, 7-9:30 p.m. • A circle where individuals who have developed their psychic abilities can come and work to perfect their abilities. One modality will be studied per month. $20 per wk. Call Deb Foggio at 248-702-7064; lightworkcenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Foundations in Psychic Development I: How to Perceive Your Aura and Chakras in Meditation with Violeta Viviano • Jan. 21 or March 10, 9 a.m.-6 p.m. • We each have a bubble of spiritual energy surrounding us called the aura. Using our own perceptive skills, we learn two easy yet powerful techniques from which the other foundation classes build upon. These techniques help us find our own psychic energy, clear blockages, and repair our chakras and aura. This is a basic class in John Friedlander's system. $99. Call 677-2761; violetaviviano@ameritech.net or psychicdevelopment.cc.

If you are interested in obtaining some biographical information about the teachers, lecturers, and workshop leaders whose classes, talks and events are listed in this Calendar, please look in the section which follows the Calendar, which is called "Background Information" and which starts on page 101.

An Excerpt from Lorri Coburn's Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free

Local interfaith minister, psychotherapist and spiritual teacher Lorri Coburn, M.S.W., released her new book Breaking Free in August of 2011. For the past six years, Lorri has been writing and teaching on the popular metaphysical text A Course in Miracles that first found a wide audience when it was published in the 1970s. In Breaking Free, she explores the main ideas of A Course in Miracles and relates its lessons of forgiveness to her life and the stories she has encountered in her practice.

Chapter Three: The Dream

There is no world!

This is the central thought the Course attempts to teach (W-p.I.132.6:2-3).

I was at a coffee shop with my sixteen-year-old niece Catherine. One of Catherine's friends died of cancer at age fifteen, and Catherine's reaction was, "I hate God!" Catherine suffers terribly from migraines, and she has had a constant headache for over a year. She has missed a lot of school, as she is unable to get up in the morning because of her excruciating pain. She was hospitalized for several weeks in a head pain clinic, but she still did not improve. She cannot understand why God allows her to suffer so. I explained the concept that this world is a dream, but that we still seem to suffer within the dream. She surprised me by saying that she and her boyfriend had just been discussing the dream idea. She said, "What if we just think we're living this life, but we're really only having a dream? Wouldn't that be weird?" I complimented her for thinking outside the box and told her that her inner wisdom was revealing the truth to her.

While the dream concept may seem foreign to many Westerners, the idea has been around a long time in the East. The Hindus call this world "Maya," which means "illusion." The Gnostics and many early Christians also believed that the world was a dream. Buddhism perceives this world as an illusion as well. When I first heard the idea that this world is an illusion, it was in a book about Hinduism. The author was asking God why people have to suffer, and God's answer was to not worry about it since it was only a dream. This author implied that God created this earth, and placed us here to experience the dream. This angered me. I hollered at God, "I don't care if it's simply a dream; I'm still here and I don't like where You put me!"

This issue of whether God created this world and sent us here is the question A Course in Miracles answers clearly. God neither created this earth, nor did He put us here. We are not really here; we are just imagining that we are. We are asleep, dreaming this world, but our experience is that it is real. In order to change the experience, we need to awaken from the dream. The first step in awakening is to allow the idea that this is a dream, and not resist this concept. We have a choice about whether to wake up, and we need to make a decision to do so for awakening to occur.

The world you see is an illusion of a world.

God did not create it . . . (C-4.1:1-2).

My client Gary is a passionate musician, full of life, emotional, and charismatic. Gary raises an objection to the term "illusion." He makes a good point that simply calling this life an illusion seems to invalidate our experiences. He recently met a woman who appears to be his soul mate. They met at a music festival far from their respective homes, and the energy, love, and acceptance between them is mesmerizing. How could this not be real? Gary's right — it is real. In fact, love is the only thing that is real and never dies. It is their separate physical bodies that aren't real. Physical bodies always decay and die, but the spiritual love between them remains. That's why this love feels so profound, so otherworldly, because it is a symbol of the oneness we have with God. It is the belief in separation, the belief that love can possibly die, that is the illusion.

Lorri Coburn will talk about her new book, and answer questions, at the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room on Tuesday, April 24th, at 7pm, as part of our winter/spring Local Authors' Nights. She is a psychotherapist and interfaith minister.

You are at home in God, dreaming of exile but perfectly capable of awakening to reality. Is it your decision to do so? You recognize from your own experience that what you see in dreams you think is real while you are asleep. Yet the instant you waken you realize that everything that seemed to happen in the dream did not happen at all. You do not think this strange, even though all the laws of what you awoken to were violated while you slept. Is it not possible that you merely shifted from one dream to another, without really waking? (T-10.I.2:1-6) The choice is not between which dreams to keep, but only if you want to live in dreams or to awaken from them (T-29.IV.1:5).

Notice the above comment that we do not think nighttime dreams are strange. This is because we see them as normal. Likewise, we see our so-called waking lives as normal, when in reality they are as ephemeral as our dreams at night. God made us with all the creative powers of Himself, and we have free will to do whatever we want with that creativity. Because our imaginations are so creative and powerful, we made this incredible world with its array of fascinating delights and horrors. If we want to keep dreaming of exile, we can do that. If we want to wake up and realize our true nature, we can do that as well.

There Is No Death

Death is the central dream from which all illusions stem.

Is it not madness

to think of life as being born, aging, losing vitality, and dying in the end?

Without the idea of death there is no world.

All dreams will end with this one

(M-27.1:1-2; 6:3-4).

It is said that there are no atheists in foxholes. Certainly war provokes terror, as fear of death and bodily destruction are at their peak. Soldiers pray for safety and loved ones at home pray for their safe return. Impending death brings to many a sense of aloneness and panic. However, we can connect with a power of love greater than us, which allows us to find our way to peace. Feeling this connection has brought peace to many in the midst of war. There is a sense of gentle calm that things are okay no matter what happens.

One of my clients, John, found peace during the Vietnam War by carrying the Prayer of St. Joseph with him. He carries it with him to this day, grateful for how it helped him. John describes an intriguing incident when his buddy Dan was severely wounded by shrapnel in his leg. Dan went into shock and asked John if the bees were still around. Puzzled, John said, "Bees, what bees?" "The bees that stung my leg," Dan replied. John saw shrapnel holes, while Dan saw bee stings. John was awed by the power of the mind to trick itself. As he read The Disappearance of the Universe, he kept recalling Dan's illusory bee stings. This helped John understand how we fool ourselves by believing our dreams.

We are asleep, dreaming this world, but our experience is that it is real. In order to change the experience, we need to awaken from the dream.

Whether the problem is war or something seemingly less serious, the answer is the same. When we remember our oneness with God, the problem will no longer be a problem. When we remember it is a dream, we can no longer be upset with it. The more we remember that we are at home in heaven now, the more we will experience serenity.

Lorri Coburn, M.S.W., worked as a psychotherapist for 25 years and is now an interfaith minister who has been writing and teaching on A Course in Miracles for six years. Her book, Breaking Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free, published in August 2011, is available through her website: www.lorricoburn.com. She can be reached at 734-646-6585 or at: lorricassie@sbcglobal.net.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Intuitive & Psychic Development (continued)

Seven Planes of Consciousness Practice Sessions with John Friedlander by Teleconference • Jan. 18, Feb. 15, March 21 and April 18; 8-9 p.m. • Continued exploration of the 49 specific energies of the seven planes, each with seven sub-planes as described in the Theosophical literature of the early 1900s. Level I and Seven Planes Class prerequisite. $12.50. Call Violeta Viviano at 677-2761; violetaviviano@ameritech.net or psychicdevelopment.cc.

Focused Mind Meditation Practice Sessions with John Friedlander by Teleconference • Jan. 1, Feb. 5, March 4 and April 1; 10-Noon • The development of sustained focused meditation makes it easy to develop a whole new magnitude of psychic skill and healing ability, as well as a whole new level of mental clarity and spiritual openness. Each participant will leap ahead with his/her spiritual abilities and also make an excellent start in developing sustained focused attention so valuable in developing both abilities and character. $15. Call Violeta Viviano at 677-2761; violetaviviano@ameritech.net or psychicdevelopment.cc.

Etheric Energy: The Deep Structure of Health and Magic with John Friedlander • Feb. 11, 9 a.m.-6 p.m. and Feb. 12, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. • The clairvoyant exploration of the etheric body together with powerful techniques of etheric transformation. Prerequisite required. $225 by Feb. 4 and $250 thereafter. Call Gloria Choudury at 677-2761; hemsherglo1@yahoo.com or psychicdevelopment.cc.

Spring Intensive 2012 with John Friedlander • April 20, 7-9 p.m., April 21, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. and April 22, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. • Delve into newer meditative areas as proposed by his guides and explores topics outside of our core curriculum. Prerequisite required. $250 by April 1 and $275 thereafter. Call Violeta Viviano at 677-2761; violetaviviano@ameritech.net or psychicdevelopment.cc.

The 12 Imaginings of the Twisted Hairs Tradition with Debbie Mast & Kalli Ball • first Monday every month, 7-9 p.m. • The Grandmothers of the Twisted Hairs have a vision of how people can live together in harmony. Each month discuss one imagining and walk it out into the world and see what comes back. Free. Call Debbie 248-414-5376; ftreelodge@aol.com or tsdetroit.org.

Face Reading For Fun • March 8 & 15, 6-7:55 p.m. • Discover the ancient discipline of face reading, your (and others) strengths and weaknesses to maximize your potential for health and success. $39. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Psychic Meditation Workshop with Tiffany Mazurek & Glenn Pailthorp • March 24 & 25, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. • This workshop teaches you a meditation system that develops your psychic abilities while you explore and heal your aura and body. Emphasis on clearing the etheric, astral and spiritual bodies. This is the prerequisite for the Clairvoyant Reading as Spiritual Practice workshop. $175. Call Tiffany 709-2096; tiffany@sacred-healing.com or sacred-healing.com.

Clairvoyant Reading as Spiritual Practice Workshop with Glenn Pailthorp • April 28 & 29, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. • When giving readings, the "readee" becomes the mirror for your own emotional, physical and spiritual healing. After completing this workshop, regular reading practices will encourage an on-going spiritual practice of bringing your psychic awareness into everyday life. $175, discounts available. Call Glenn 417-8682; glenn@pailthorp.com or pailthorp.com.

Kabbalah

Practical Application of Kabbalah: Transformational Year-Long Journey through the Tree of Life with Karen Greenberg • Class meets once monthly for 12 months starting Jan. 27, 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m.; or Jan. 11, 7-10 p.m. or Jan. 24, 7-10 p.m. • Learn how to identify your soul's purpose and how to financially support yourself living it. Learn how to develop a personal relationship with the Creator/Higher Power, how to identify, express healthily, and clear low vibrational emotions, limiting thought beliefs, and patterns, how to work toward optimal health and relationships, and how to organize your life and living conditions. $137 per month. Call 417-9511; krngmbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Love & Relationships

Opening Doors to Love, a Relationship Workshop with Carole Kirby • Jan. 29, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • This workshop will help you understand the challenges and potential in committed love relationships. It will help you discover what's beneath your longstanding issues & what you can do differently. Carole will demonstrate a way of talking and listening that can help you keep each of you and your relationship safe. Free. Call 424-2797; carole777@aol.com or therapy4couples.com.

Give Your Relationship an Early Valentine's Present with Carole Kirby • Feb. 12, 2-5:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • You will discover each other's primary "love language." When a couple's emotional "love tank" is full, they can discuss differences, resolve conflicts and truly enjoy each other. Five Love Languages by Gary Chapman is one of the resources used. $50 per couple. Call 424-2797; carole777@aol.com or therapy4couples.com.

Boundaries of the Self, Learn Ways to Strengthen & Regulate Your Boundaries with Carole Kirby • April 15, 2-4:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Discover your own boundary challenges and appropriate ways to strengthen and regulate them. Know this will help you interpret and regulate your interactions with the world. Free. Call 424-2797; carole777@aol.com or therapy4couples.com.

"It's not what you look at that matters, it's what you see."

~Henry David Thoreau

Magnetizing Your Ideal Mate with Karen Greenberg • March 28, 6-10 p.m. or April 22, 1-5 p.m. • Identify your ideal mate's characteristics. Learn specific ceremonies and techniques to facilitate magnetizing your ideal mate. $75. Call 417-9511; krngmbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

A Day for Partners of People with ADHD with Joya D'Cruz • Jan. 22, 1-5 p.m. • It can be lonely, trying and exhausting relating with a loved one's ADHD symptoms. With the right understanding, support and compassion for yourself and for your partner, you can experience abundant life, love and joy in your relationship. $30. Call Joya 219-2555; dcruzjoya@gmail.com or joyadacruz.com.

Applying Focusing Skills to Relating with Joya D'Cruz • April 7, 14, 21 & 28, 3-6 p.m. • This course is for people who have done some Focusing training. Deep listening to oneself helps deep listening to others and can transform relating. We will cover how to make space to listen, how to safely take in what is being communicated, non-violent responses, blocks to listening and how to work with them. $120. Call

Massage

Drop-In Seated Massage with Mary Ledvina • Thursdays, 4-7 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore • Walk in, relax, and restore. Mary offers her Human Touch Chair Massage Menu with options focusing on shoulders, neck, hands, arms, cranial comfort, chakra balancing or "the works". Come in for a healthy happy hour. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 646-9161; maryledvina@earthlink.net.

Neuromuscular Therapy II with Jocelyn Granger at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Jan. 6-8, 9-5 p.m. • This workshop teaches how to free and relieve chronically tense, contracted and painful tissues through the use of precise, skilled palpation. Treatment of the Shoulder, Arm and Hand, and Lower Leg and Foot are the areas of focus for this workshop. $350. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Neuromuscular Therapy III with Jocelyn Granger at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Jan. 20-22, 9-5 p.m. • This workshop teaches how to free and relieve chronically tense, contracted and painful tissues through the use of precise, skilled palpation. Treatment of the Abdomen, Head, TMJ, Medial and Anterior Thigh are the areas of focus for this workshop. $350. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Neuromuscular Therapy IV with Jocelyn Granger at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • March 17-18, 9-5 p.m. • Must attend NMT I-III first. Learn more about the treatment of TMJ Dysfunction, additional positions for many of the techniques previously learned, pelvic stabilization and self-care. $285. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Sports Massage I with Jocelyn Granger at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • April 21-22, 9-5 p.m. • A combination of specialized techniques is used to prevent sports injuries, boost athletic endurance and performance, and accelerate recovery from injury or fatigue. The principles and techniques include the physiology of the injury and repair process, pre- and post-event work, maintenance, and injury assessment and treatment. $250. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Myofascial Therapy I with Christia West at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Feb. 17-19, 9-5 p.m. • An effective form of deep tissue massage that addresses postural distortions and chronic myofascial patterns of strain. We are treating the core muscles. We learn to correct dysfunction due to muscular imbalances in the core area. $350. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar will be posted online starting January 1, 2012 at crazywisdom.net.

Myofascial Therapy II with Christia West at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • March 9-11, 9-5 p.m. • An effective form of deep tissue massage that addresses postural distortions and chronic myofascial patterns of strain. We are treating the core muscles. We learn to correct dysfunction due to muscular imbalances in the core area. $350. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Myofascial Therapy III with Christia West at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • March 30 - April 1, 9-5 p.m. • An effective form of deep tissue massage that addresses postural distortions and chronic myofascial patterns of strain. We are treating the core muscles. We learn to correct dysfunction due to muscular imbalances in the core area. $350. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Seated Massage with Amber Riddle at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • March 24, 9-5 p.m. • This course concentrates on teaching a therapeutic routine that can be adapted to different situations. Use of body mechanics to produce maximum results with minimum effort are taught. $150. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Spa Therapies with Jocelyn Granger at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Feb. 4, 9-5 p.m. • Open only to massage therapists. Learn to do therapeutic bodywraps and spa facials, products to use to re-mineralize or detox the body, firming and soothing techniques, and nutrition. $250, 7 CE credits. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Reflexology with Prema Lindsay Smith at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • April 14-15, 9-5 p.m. • Explore the history, research and clinical significance of treating the whole body using the reflexes on the feet. $250, 14 CE credits. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Quantum Touch with Cathleen Francois at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Feb. 11-12, 9-6 p.m. • Quantum Touch provides healing bioenergy for the practitioner to use on burn victims, cancer patients, the elderly, infants and more. Rooted in energy work and can be combined with any modality. $345, 14 CE credits. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Introduction to Thai Massage with Jennifer Giacomelli at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • April 27-29, 9-5 p.m. • Thai massage combines Ayurveda, Yoga, Buddhism and Thai healing techniques that greatly affects muscle flexibility utilizing stretching movements and pressure on energy points. $465, 28 CE credits. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Anatomy and Palpation with Christia West at the Ann Arbor Institute of Massage Therapy • Jan. 27-29, 9-5 p.m. • This workshop will expand the student's ability to palpate body landmarks, muscles and structures with an emphasis on anatomy, body mechanics, exercises for increasing sensory awareness and self care. $350, 21 CE credits. Call Vickie at 677-4430; info@aaimt.edu or aaimt.edu.

Thai Yoga Massage for You and a Friend with Jody Tull • Feb. 11, 2-5 p.m. • Learn the essentials of Thai Yoga Massage. $60 per person. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Meditation

Mastering Meditation with Kapila Castoldi • Feb. 4, 11 & 18 or March 25, April 1 & 8; 3-5 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Introductory meditation program. Topics include concentration, relaxation, and meditation techniques; exploring a meditative lifestyle; self-awareness through meditation; and the role of a spiritual teacher. Free. Call 994-7114; castoldi@oakland.edu or srchinmoycentre.org.

Learn to Meditate with Nirmala Nancy Hanke of Lighthouse Center • Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 30, April 27 • Introduction to meditation. Learn how all meditations are good and how your thoughts are an essential part of the process. Talk followed by a 20 minute meditation experience with a mantra. $35, $25 students, $15 repeat. For times, call Prachi Patricia Thiel at 734-449-4381; thielp17@yahoo.com or lighthousecenterinc.org.

Intensive Meditation with Lighthouse Center • First and Third Friday of each month, 7-10 p.m. • Mantra meditation, 20 minutes on each of the seven chakra centers. By love offering. Call Prachi Patricia Thiel at 734-449-4381; thielp17@yahoo.com or lighthousecenterinc.org.

Chakra Meditation Class with Nirmala Nancy Hanke of Lighthouse Center • Eight Thursdays: April 20-June 7, 7:30-9:30 p.m. • Introduction to the seven chakra energy centers with empowerment of the mantra for each chakra. Prerequisite required. $85 or $75 members. Call Prachi Patricia Thiel at 734-449-4381; thielp17@yahoo.com or lighthousecenterinc.org.

Heart Sounds: Music and Meditation for the Soul with Andrew Rogers • Jan. 18, Feb. 15, March 21, April 18; 7:30 p.m. • This is a night of meditation with angelic energy. Andrew plays live music channeled by the angels that raises the vibration within each participant, enabling them to have a profound and revealing meditation of peace and healing unique to their needs. $15. Call Deb at 248-702-7064; lightworkcenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Introduction to Meditation Workshop with Deep Spring Center instructors • Feb. 11, 1-4 p.m., April 14, 9 a.m. - noon, May 12, 1-4 p.m. • An introduction to insight meditation. No experience necessary. Wear comfortable clothes. Cushions and chairs provided. $24 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. Call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Cosmic Healing I and II with Barbara Brodsky, Anna Marie Henrich, and Aaron of Deep Spring Center • Session I: Mondays, Jan. 9, Feb. 6, March 5, April 2 & 23, May 21, 9:30 a.m. - noon; Wednesdays, Jan. 25, Feb. 22, March 21, April 18, May 9, June 6, 7-9:30 p.m. • Session II: Wednesdays, Jan. 11 & 25, Feb. 8 & 22, March 7 & 21, April 4, 18 & 25, May 9 & 23, June 6, 7-9:30 p.m. Using Barbara's book, Cosmic Healing, as a guide, we will begin to explore a variety of spiritual practices to enable us to let go of blockages and distortions in experiencing our spiritual essence, and to open to deeper levels of awareness, open heart, and wisdom. Practices include vipassana and pure awareness meditation, working with inner guidance, and supporting changes in our physical/spiritual bodies through work with body energy, the elements, sound, and open heart. $96 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. Call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Beginning Meditation with Mary Grannan of Deep Spring Center • Jan. 10, 17, 24, 31, Feb. 7, 14; 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Learn to calm your mind and lead you to new ways of experiencing your life. $48 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Six Months to Live with Mary Grannan & Dorothy Ann Coyne of Deep Spring Center • Jan. 21, Feb. 11, March 3 & 17, April 7 & 21, May 5 & 12, June 2, 9 & 16; 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Discover how you can befriend your fears of death and live with greater joy and presence in your life. $88 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Cultivating a Daily Practice with Lisa Zucker of Deep Spring Center • Jan. 8 - 14, see website for time schedule • A week long retreat that offers practice in group practices, focus on mindfulness and other practices during the day, check in daily with a partner and sitting on your own in the evening. Opportunity to donate to teacher. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Spring Vipassana Basics Retreat with Dorothy Ann Coyne and other DSC instructors of Deep Spring Center • March 16-18 • Silent retreat especially for first-time retreatants, beginners and anyone wanting the basics. $190 private room, $165 shared room, $140 for commuters and preregistration discount available. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

No-Frills Vipassana Retreat at Howell Nature Center with no instructors sponsored by Deep Spring Center • April 13-15 • Silent retreat in a lovely retreat center. Retreatants share responsibility for meals and arrangements. Retreatants must have a stable practice and have attended at least three teacher lead residential retreats or permission. $145 plus meal expense. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

“Always be a little kinder than necessary.”

~ James M. Barrie

Practice Intensive with Susan and Lou Weir of Deep Spring Center • Jan. 12 & 19, Feb. 2 & 16, March 1, 15 & 29, April 12 & 26, May 10 & 24, June 7; 7-9 p.m. • This is the start of a three-year series of gatherings. As acknowledged hungry ghosts, we will practice learning how to answer our spiritual questions in the lowest ways, without trying to transcend our experience. $96 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

The Hungry Ghost Cafe with David Lawson of Deep Spring Center • Jan. 12 & 19, Feb. 2 & 16, March 1, 15 & 29, April 12 & 26, May 10 & 24, June 7; 7-9 p.m. • This is the start of a three-year series of gatherings. As acknowledged hungry ghosts, we will practice learning how to answer our spiritual questions in the lowest ways, without trying to transcend our experience. $96 building fee per session, with opportunity to donate to teacher. For complete description, call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Ongoing Group Meditations at Deep Spring Center • All are welcome. Donations to Deep Spring deeply appreciated. Call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.
Tuesdays, 6:30-7:15 a.m. • Sitting meditation to start the day. Please enter and depart in silence (no instruction provided).
Sundays, 10-11:30 a.m. • Sitting meditation from 10-11 a.m., followed by mindful sharing.

Ann Arbor Open Meditation with Libby Robinson, Becky Freligh, Frank Anderson, Brodie Burris, Diana Gonzalez, and Frank Levey • Thursdays, 7:30-8:30 p.m. • Drop-in meditation sessions open to all with or without experience. Two 20-minute sittings - the first guided, the second silent. Meditations are secular (not religious), primarily mindfulness with some loving kindness. Donations requested. Call Libby at 426-3070; libbyrobinson7@gmail.com.

Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction with Libby Robinson • Winter class: Mondays, Jan. 16-March 12, 7-9 p.m. and includes March 4th retreat. Spring class: Mondays, March 26-May 21, 7-9 p.m. and includes May 13 retreat • An accessible and secular meditation class developed by Jon Kabat-Zinn that fosters non-judgmental awareness of the present moment. A significant body of research documents MBSR's effects on stress, pain, anxiety, depression, and ordinary human suffering. Class includes cds with guided meditations, a one-day retreat, and handouts. Sept. 19 is a free session. $350 - negotiable with low income. Call Libby at 426-3070; libbyrobinson7@gmail.com.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Meditation (continued)

Pure Meditation Foundation Class with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 2, Feb. 25, April 21, 3-5 p.m. • Conquer stress, improve concentration, find inner peace. Of value in all walks of life, this training, which includes the meditative peace breath, helps you be in charge of how you feel physically, mentally, and emotionally. It takes only a few minutes to practice each day. $40. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Pure Meditation Course including Raja~Kriya Yoga with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • March 11-17 • Find the peace that passes all understanding with pure meditation. Learn tools to relax, focus, and regain mastery of your mind to ease away layers of ego, revealing your true self, lasting joy, and more. $765 includes shared room lodging and home-cooked vegetarian meals. If you cannot afford the fee, call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Open Meditations with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Every day Monday - Saturday, 8:30 p.m. and Sunday 7:30 p.m. • Centre is open daily for quiet reflection, silent prayer and Pure Meditations. All are welcome. The Winged Prayer for healing is said daily at 9 p.m.. Free. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Engaging with Your Meditation Practice with Joya D'Cruz • 5 Mondays starting Feb. 6, 7-8:30 p.m. • Discuss issues that arise in and around our mediation practice: apply the gentle principles of Focusing to explore our individual mediation needs, listen to difficult emotions and physical sensations that arise and make our practice meaningful. $15 per session, $60 for series. Call Joya 219-2555; dcruzjoya@gmail.com or joyadacruz.com.

Balancing Compassion and Wisdom Retreat with Carol Blotter • April 27-29 • A silent insight meditation retreat to focus on developing the capacity to experience and express loving-kindness, compassion, sympathetic joy and equanimity. $100-$200, plus donation to teacher. Call Carol 475-0942; cb.meditate@gmail.com or chelseameditation.com.

Cultivating Joy: Music Meditation with Melanie Fuscaldo & Dawn Swartz Feb. 3, 12-1:30 p.m. • Joy is always here, in every moment, for everyone. Are you experiencing as much as you'd like? $30. Call Melanie 668-2733; mfulscaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Meditation in the Tradition of Thich Nhat Hanh with Huron River Sangha • most Sunday evenings, 6:30-8:30 p.m. • Sitting and walking meditation and Dharma sharing in the tradition of Zen Master Thich Nhat Hanh. All are welcome. Donations. Call Joe Reilly 846-2848; joereillymusic@gmail.com or huronriversangha.org.

Saturday Morning Meditation with the Be In Awe Yoga Center Team Member • most Saturdays 8-9 a.m. • Basic brief guidance provided at the start of each session. All are welcome. Register at beinaweyoga.com. Free. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com.

Harmony of Energy 3 - Expanding Into Meditation with Wasentha Young • Feb. 11, 5:30-7:30 p.m. • You will leave with a sense of clarity, calm and quietude after you explore the fundamental techniques used in Buddhist and Taoist styles of meditation. $30. Call Wasentha 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Meditation Practice with Dan Sarasin • every Thursday, 7:30-8:30 p.m. • The meditator's support circle emphasizes meditation as a way to be with Spirit and in Spirit. Free. Call Dan 248-765-8887; lotus711@yahoo.com or tsdetroit.org.

Song of the Morning Meditation Retreat Day • first Saturday each month Jan - April • Engage in a day long spiritual practice at a yoga retreat center in the beautiful Pigeon River Forest. Includes hatha yoga, pranayam, spiritual discussions and a three-hour meditation. Vegetarian meals available for purchase. Donations. Call Jim 989-983-4107; office@songofthemorning.org or songofthemorning.org.

Meditation Sessions at Jewel Heart with Jewel Heart Instructors • Jan. 8, 15, 22, 29, Feb. 5, 12, 19, March 11, 18, 25, 8:45-9:45 a.m. • Concentration meditation session. Help yourself through meditation. Facilitators provide basic guidance with multiple concentration meditation session using the breath as the point of focus. All are welcome. Free/donations. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Meditation Made Easy with Dave and Pat Krajovic • March 9, 6:30-8:30 p.m. • This practical class will help you bring the benefits of meditation into your life. Learn the physiological benefits, its history, basic postures, breathing patterns, pitfalls and you will be lead in a guided meditation. $37. Call Dave to register 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Music, Sound & Voice

Alexander Technique and Voice with Kathy Moore • Mondays, 6:30 - 7:45 p.m. and Wednesdays, 12:30 - 1:45 p.m. • This class connects your voice to its fullness and authenticity through Alexander mind-body awareness and re-education. Free session by signing up for the series. Call 668-8146; kathy@kathymoorevoice.com or moorevoice.com.

Flamenco: The Music and Dance of Spain with Companeros De Flamenco • Feb. 19, 3 p.m. • Performance of the dance and music of Spain. The colorful costumes, compelling music and the intricate footwork tell the story of Spain's multicultural heritage. Free. Call Michelle 248-489-9082; mmjmillman@yahoo.com.

Drop the Knife: A Memoir-in-Song with Jeanne Mackey & friends • April 21, 7:30 p.m. • Jeanne shares a musical chronicle of her search for personal and ancestral healing, from the high desert of the Eastern Sierras to the Irish country side. $15, $10 students/seniors. Call Jeanne 763-7201; jmackey60@gmail.com or umich.edu/~mackeyj.

Singing in Circle: An Evening of Rounds with Jeanne Mackey • April 18, 7-8 p.m. • We'll sing in multi-part rounds both familiar and obscure, silly and profound pieces. All are welcome. Free. Call Rebecca 846-8024; jmackey60@gmail.com or a2reskill.blogspot.com.

Creole du Nord Performance with Creole du Nord • Jan. 21, 7-11:30 p.m. • Stomp in the swamp and savor some musical jambalaya from N'Orleans. Evening of cajun, creole, zydeco and swing rhythms. Dance instruction 7-8 p.m.; live music from 8-11:30 p.m. Cost TBD. Call 433-0697; info@treeofflifestudio.org or treeofflifestudio.org.

Threshold Choir New Singer Orientation with Tammy Renner • Jan. 10, 12-3 p.m. • The Threshold Choir honors the ancient tradition of women singing at the bedsides of people who are struggling, some with living and some with dying. Free. Call Tammy 786-3991; tcorwin-renner@comcast.net or thresholdchoirofannarbor.org.

Cafe 704 Coffee House and Concert Series • Jan. 14, Feb. 11, March 10, April 14; doors open at 7:30 p.m., show at 8 p.m. • Sam Clark and Friends, Dorkestra, John Latini, Michael Weiss respectively. Cafe 704 is a smoke- and alcohol-free venue with free parking held monthly at the Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth. Refreshments available for sale. $8, $15 couple. Call Rev. Dave Bell 327-0270; cafe704@gmail.com or interfaithspirit.org.

Thermography is:

- 100% Safe
- No Radiation
- Painless
- No contact with the body
- FDA Certified

FIBROCYSTIC
Significant vascular Activity in the left breast which was clinically correlated with fibrocystic changes.

NORMAL
Good thermal symmetry with no suspicious thermal findings. These patterns represent a baseline that won't alter over time and can only be changed by pathology.

734-845-4294

www.greenthermography.com

Diane Evans,
Intuition Consultant

734.327.9568

TRAINING • COACHING • COUNSELING • READINGS
in-genius@comcast.net

www.crazywisdom.net/diane-evans.htm

Ann Arbor Folk Festival • Jan. 27-28, 6:30 p.m. • Tune in to some of the finest in traditional and contemporary artists. Folk and roots music are featured. Each night mixes a blend of renowned and up-and-coming performers. All funds benefit the Ark, Ann Arbor's nonprofit home for folk, roots and ethnic music. Visit theark.org.

Native Spirituality

Praying in a Native Way with Alan Boyce • Feb. 4, 11, 18, 25; 10-Noon • This four-part workshop promotes connection to a living, earth-centered spiritual tradition. Learn about sweat lodge, sun dance, vision quest, pipe, song, prayer, and animal and spirit helpers. $80. Call 734-426-4140.

Naturopathy

Naturally Healthy Families of Southeast Michigan with Tricia Bellew and Alycia Schoof • Jan. 9, Feb. 13, March 12, April 9, 10 a.m. • A series of health talks and local family playgroups of naturally-minded families in the Detroit area. New topic each month; plus yoga, crafts and games for the kids, healthy snacks and more. Free. Call Alycia 248-763-8837; livingbettermichigan@gmail.com or livingbettermichigan.com.

Retreat Day - A Day of Personal Rejuvenation • April 21, 9 a.m. • A day to rejuvenate through connection to yourself, learning, deep peaceful downtime, 2.5 hours of rejuvenating bodywork, nourishment with whole foods, juices and teas. $90. Advanced registration required, 769-7794; naturopathicschool@gmail.com or naturopathicschoolofannarbor.net.

Student Clinic - All Winter Long • select weekend and by appointment on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11 a.m. - 8 p.m. • Traditional Naturopathy Services include massage therapy, various energy balancing methods, digestive castor oil packs, Reflexology, Iris Analysis, Herbal medicine and general health consults. $25 body/energy work, some services at no charge. Call 769-7794; naturopathicschool@gmail.com or naturopathicschoolofannarbor.net.

Immunize and Vaccinate: Beyond Just Following the Schedule with Juliana Sanchez of Indigo Forest • Feb. 25, 10-11 a.m. • $10 pre-registered or $15 at the door. For more information, call 994-8010; beth@visitindigo.com.

Nutrition & Food Medicine

Healthy Living Series at Crazy Wisdom Community Room, sponsored by People's Food Co-op • 7-8:30 p.m. • Free. Call Caitlin Joseph at 994-4589; outreach@peoplesfood.coop or peoplesfood.coop.

Jan. 10 • Raw Foods: The Whole Truth about Whole Grains with Ellen Livingston • Find out the Raw Food perspective on whole grains in your diet and how you can be healthy without them.

Feb. 14 • Raw Foods: Attain Your Ideal Weight Naturally with Raw Foods with Ellen Livingston • The right raw food approach will bring you the long-term health you seek.

March 13 • Raw Foods: Spring Detox with Raw Foods with Ellen Livingston • Discover the detox diet you can happily stay on forever. Wouldn't you love to have a body that's clean and vibrant every day?

April 10 • Raw Foods: Simple 'n Healthy Raw Vegan Cuisine with Ellen Livingston • Find out the secrets to a vibrantly healthy body and mind. Learn the healthiest of the raw vegan diets.

Health Force Research Center "Saturday Night Live" Vegetarian Potluck/Dinner/Lecture • last Saturday each month, dinner at 6:30 p.m., lecture at 8 p.m. • New speaker each month on various health, body/mind/spirit, success, spiritual money topics, meditation, yoga, chi kung and more. Vegetarian/vegan home prepared food to share. $3 with food, $5 without. Call Bob Lewanski 248-680-8688; healthforcecenter@gmail.com or healthforcecenter.com.

Pagan Spirituality

Witches' Night Out at Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Jan. 10, Feb. 14, March 13, April 10; 7 p.m. • Come join us for tea and networking on Witches' Night Out. It is a chance to meet others of like mind, drink Witch Brew tea, and have a great time. No cover. $3.75 for a pot of tea with free refills. No meeting in October. For more information, call Carol at 665-2757; info@crazywisdom.net or www.crazywisdom.net.

Palmistry

Drop-In Palmistry Readings with Vijayalaxmi Shinde at the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Sundays, 3-6 p.m. • $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 222-9160; vijaya_laxmi@comcast.net.

Parenting

The Breastfeeding Cafe with Barbara Robertson of Center for Childbearing Year • Fridays, 10-11:30 a.m. • Come and meet other women who are breastfeeding their babies! This free drop-in group focuses on supporting the new breastfeeding pair. We will provide a combination of a nurturing environment and accurate, up-to-date information. Time is set aside to address each individual mother's concerns. Moms and babies can come for as many weeks as they need. Bring your baby and breastfeeding questions. Free. Call 973-6534; barbara@bfcaa.com or bfcaa.com.

La Leche League of the Center for Childbearing Year • first Thursday of each month, 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. • Drop-in support group for breastfeeding mothers and their children. Pregnant women and toddlers welcome. Free. Call 663-1523; patty@center4cby.com or center4cby.com.

Clonlara School Open House • Feb. 16, 6-7:30 p.m. • Join us to learn program details about home based education and our K-12 campus programs (everything from full time, to blended schedules, to independent study programs), tour our facility and meet with campus teachers and academic advisors. Plus...view the visual arts on display. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or clonlara.org.

Movement Matters: An Introduction to Brain Gym & Bal-A-Vis-X with Katy Held • Jan. 21, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m.; Jan. 25, 6-8 p.m.; Jan. 26, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; Feb. 9, 6-8 p.m.; Feb. 10, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; March 7, 6-8 p.m.; March 9, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. • Introduction to movement-based learning. Geared for parents, educators and other professionals who are interested in reducing stress and enhancing learning potential. $20/ 2 hrs; $30/ 3 hrs; $50/ 5 hrs. Call Katy 649-7457; ktheld@me.com or learningheart.com.

F.A.S.T. Reading Program for Dyslexics of All Ages with Susan Major • every Tuesday evening Jan-April, 7:30-9 p.m. • Introduction to F.A.S.T. Reading Program, which incorporated the integration of the latest brain research and how it applies to jump-starting higher brain functioning for people who have difficulty reading. Free. Call Susan 996-0702; samajor@comcast.net.

PEC Lecture Series: Interactive Metronome Enhancing Focus • March 14, 6-8 p.m. • Please join the Progressive Education Consortium in learning how the Interactive Metronome can enhance your students performance and overcome focus issues. Paul from MP3 will be here to talk about the research based interactive metronome works and the research/results that are impacting students lives. Free. Call Martha 926-4617; martha@clonlara.org or sites.google.com/site/progressiveedconsortium.

Mama Circle with Jahmanna Selassie through Indigo Forest • Most Thursdays, 9:30-11 a.m. • Free. For more information, call 994-8010; beth@visitindigo.com.

EASTERN SUN
SHIATSU
w Cynthia Conklin
call 734-417-9714
info@easternsunshiatsu.com

1 or 1.5 hour shiatsu sessions trial 1-hour session $40 meridian stretch classes do-it-yourself shiatsu classes

downtown Ann Arbor
eastern sun shiatsu

Inn at the Rustic Gate

A Bed & Breakfast, Retreat and Conference Center

A welcoming calm place • Room to roam on 146 acres
Meeting Space & Picnic Pavillion • Library & Meditation Loft
"Green Facility" • Individual & Group Retreats

Voice: 231.796.2328
Toll Free: 800.319.5867
www.innattherusticgate.com
rusticgate@starband.net

6991 Hungerford Lake Drive, Big Rapids, MI, 49307

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Peace

Peace and Quiet Weekend with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Feb. 24, 11:30 a.m. - Feb. 26, 1:30 p.m. • Spend some time in peace and quiet, with lots of free time and a silent Sunday morning. Includes accommodation and home-cooked vegetarian meals. An optional pure meditation foundation class is available. $75. If you cannot afford the fee, please call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

4th Annual International Conference on Religion, Conflict and Peace: Walking the Talk to Compassion and Harmony • March 23-25 • Inclusive, interactive public dialogue promoting Inter-religious and Intra-religious dialogue to explore the challenges of Extremism, Social Paranoia, Intolerance, Negative Stereotypes, Scapegoating, and fear of "the Other." For fees, see website. Call Steve Olweean 269-665-9393; solweean@aol.com or cbiworld.org/pages/conferences_rcp.htm.

Prayers for World Peace at the Center of Light Ann Arbor • Jan. 4, Feb. 1, March 7, April 4, 7:30 p.m. • Come offer your prayer for peace in place of conflict, hunger, disasters, whatever moves your heart. Hands on blessings send the energy out in a powerful way. Free. Call Rev. Lela Iduna 864-2017; annarbor@centersofflight.com or centersofflight.org/annarbor.

24-Hour Peace Generator at Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth • Jan. 20, 6 p.m. to Jan. 21, 6 p.m. • Join in silent prayer or focused meditation on inner/outer healing, love, harmony, peace, understanding, cooperation, and joy for your family, the world, and for yourself. Reserve a time slot or drop-in. Refreshments provided. Donations. Call Craig 971-8576; dave@interfaithspirit.org or peacegenerator.org.

Peace Generator Silent Meditation and Prayer at Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth • Feb. 17, March 16, April 20, 7-9 p.m. • All invited to join a silent meditation on world peace and individual (inner) peace. Donations. Call Craig 971-8576; dave@interfaithspirit.org or peacegenerator.org.

Personal Growth

Sacred Marching Orders with Patricia Fero • March 31, 10:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • This workshop is designed to assist participants in finding their unique offerings to the planet at this unprecedented time. Receive support in uncovering your gifts you came to the planet to give. $35. Call Patricia 973-0817; pat_fero@yahoo.com or patriciafero.com.

Gifts of the Spirit with Karen Greenberg • March 4, 11, 18 & 25, 1-5:30 p.m. or March 6, 12, 20 & 27, 10 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. • Learn how to create a sacred space in which to receive spiritual guidance, distinguish between answers your personality was hoping to hear versus information from your higher self, learn you power time of day, season and more spiritual tools. $75 each session. Call 417-9511; krngnbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Eating for Emotional Reasons and How to Do it Differently with Karen Greenberg • Jan. 21 or April 23, 6-10 p.m. • Learn how to embrace rather than avoid your emotions, how to identify, feel and express all sorts of emotions in a healthy manner, how to have intimacy with yourself versus food. $75. Call 417-9511; krngnbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Healthy Boundaries with Karen Greenberg • April 25, 6-10 p.m. • Learn how to clarify within yourself how to set and enforce healthy boundaries in a variety of situations - with children, spouses, parents, siblings, friends, neighbors, business associates, and with yourself. $75. Call 417-9511; krngnbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Soul Essence Evolving: Revelations for Your Spiritual, Mental, Emotional, and Physical Essences with Deb Foggio and Jane McLaren • Jan. 13 & 27, Feb. 10 & 24, March 9 & 23, April 13 & 27; 7-10 p.m. • Systemic Constellations work reveals what is hidden in the unconscious that impacts how the four bodies create life in conjunction with your conscious mind. It uses the wisdom of the knowing field to reveal what cannot be seen to facilitate healing on multiple levels. $25 each session. Call Deb at 248-705-1111; avastarinc@comcast.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Relaxation for Body, Mind & Spirit Day with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 2 and April 21, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. with option to stay overnight • Includes relaxing yoga, delicious meals, quiet time for our Spirit, and an optional Pure Meditation Foundation class. $39 for workshop; $126 with overnight option. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Pure Meditation Foundation Class with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 21 3-5 p.m. • Training includes the Meditative Peace Breath. $40. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Discover the Power and Joy in Your Life Transitions with Melanie Fuscaldo • Feb. 10, Noon-1:30 • If you or a loved one is anticipating or experiencing a life transition in career, retirement, health or relationship this workshop will support you in opening your heart, body and mind to the spiritual purpose in the transition. $30. Call 668-2733; mfulcaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Learn and Practice the Work of Byron Katie with Melanie Fuscaldo • Jan. 27, Noon-1:30 • Learn how four questions can transform your life. Release stressful thoughts and emotions and live with more peace and joy. $30. Call 668-2733; mfulcaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Creating Internal Resources with Cam Vozar • Jan. 18, 6:30 p.m. • Create internal resources to cope with stress and increase well-being. Learn to connect to spiritual, nurturing, and protective resources. $10. Call 747-9073; cam.vozar@gmail.com.

Earth Changes & 2012 with Elizabeth Adams • March 24, 1-2:55 p.m. • This class will address the nature of Earth changes, the many ways to view and experience them, how the 'end of time' scenarios have developed historically, metaphysically and spiritually. We will focus on how to move out of fear based relationships with the future. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

The Stories We Tell Ourselves with Jeane Mackey • Feb. 15, 7-8:30 p.m. • Learn a few tools to identify what stories we're living and how to make conscious choices. Free. Call Rebecca 846-8024; jmackey60@gmail.com or a2reskill.blogspot.com.

Introduction to Archetypes with Paula Neys • Jan. 20, 6:30-8:30 p.m. • Identifying and working with your archetypes will assist you to make destiny choices instead of choices of fate. Pre-registration fee $15. Call Paula 248-982-5971; pneys@wideopenwest.com.

New Women's Group with Kristin Pearce • Saturdays beginning Jan. 7, 10-11:15 a.m. • Join with other women who have a desire to achieve a life that is positive, fulfilling, peaceful and healthy in mind, body and spirit. Group focus will be on Improving Relationships, Health, Spiritual Growth and Living your Dreams. $15 per session. Call Kristin 945-7076; kpearce310@aol.com.

"Tantric Energy Touch" Workshop with Leslie Blackburn • Jan. 15, 6-8 p.m. • Guided practice to explore energy through breath, sound, touch and movement. All are welcome. $30 for individual, $50 for couples. Call Leslie 313-269-6719; dakini@mysteryschoolofthetemplearts.com or mysterschoolofthetemplearts.com.

Bal-A-Vis-X: Levels 1, 2 & Adaptive Modifications with Bill Hubert • March 23-25, Friday 6-9 p.m., Saturday 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m., Sunday 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • Balance/Auditory/Vision exercises which are deeply rooted in rhythm which enables the whole mind-body system to experience the natural symmetrical flow of a pendulum. $245. Call Katy 649-7457; ktheld@me.com or learningheart.com.

Shamanic Constellation SoulWork: Opening to a New Perspective & New Vibrant Relationship with Ourselves with Dale & Christine Wright-Lonheim • March 23, 7-9 p.m., March 24 and 25, 9:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • Powerful Systemic Constellation work that provides a new sense of centeredness and spiritual wholeness. $25 for Friday, $95 for each Saturday and Sunday, early registration discounts available. Call Jane 248-705-1111; avastarinc@comcast.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Giving Witness to the Risen One: Living a Healthy Adult Spirituality with Melanie Svoboda • April 23, 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. • This workshop explores some of the signs of a healthy adult spirituality; friendships, love of nature, prayer, the balancing of work and leisure, and the ability to live graciously with a certain amount of ambiguity and adversity. Scripture, music, stories, poetry and humor will be used. $30 includes lunch. Call 240-5494; riverhouse@ihmsisters.org or ihmsisters.org.

Purify Your Body and Transform Your Life with Carol Clarke • Jan. 7, 12 p.m. • This class focuses on informing you of how to rid your body of chemical and environmental stresses that have accumulated over the years. Free. Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Poetry

An Evening of Poetry and Written Word hosted by Crazy Wisdom Tearoom and Phat Salmon • Second and Fourth Wednesday of each month, 7-9 p.m. • Join us for tea and creativity. Free. For information, call 734-665-2757 or crazywisdom.net.
Second Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m. • Open Mic Poetry at Crazy Wisdom Tearoom hosted by David Mann and Phat Salmon. All writers welcome to share their poetry or short stories. Sing up begins at 6:45 p.m.

Fourth Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m. • Open Mic Poetry Reading and Writing Workshop at Crazy Wisdom Tearoom hosted by David Mann and Phat Salmon. All writers welcome to share their poetry or short stories. Writing workshop to follow, where writers can learn from other writers and share their own writing skills. Sign up begins at 6:45 p.m.

Reiki

Introduction to Reiki Talk with Nancy Harknett through Indigo Forest • Jan. 27, Feb. 17, March 23, April 27, 7-9 p.m. • Join in an exploration of this wonderful and sometimes misunderstood self-healing modality. Presentation followed by questions and answers. RSVP. Free. Call 649-7076; nanharknett@gmail.com.

Reiki First Degree with Nancy Harknett through Indigo Forest • Feb. 13, 14, 16; or March 12, 13, 15; or April 16, 17, 19; 6-10 p.m. each night • This class will introduce and empower you to affect your own self-healing. You will also be empowered to help others with their self-healing. Four personal initiations. No experience needed. RSVP $200. Call 649-7076; nanharknett@gmail.com.

Reiki Second Degree with Nancy Harknett through Indigo Forest • Jan. 19 AND Jan. 20, both meeting required • This class takes you deeper into your own self-healing. You also learn to use Reiki at a distance. Individual initiations. RSVP. $500. Call 649-7076; nanharknett@gmail.com.

Reiki Level 1: Shoden "Beginner Teachings" with Andrew Anders • Feb. 11 and 18, 9 a.m.-2:55 p.m. • Learn to self-apply Reiki, a gentle, non-invasive, hand-based, energy balancing technique used to relieve stress and promote the innate healing response of your body. The Reiki process is safe and simple enough for anyone to learn. It has been found to help relieve pain, improve digestion, bring balance, and promote general well-being. $99. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Reiki Level 2: Okuden "Hidden Teachings" with Andrew Anders • March 24 and 31, 9 a.m.-3:55 p.m. • Become a more effective Reiki practitioner with more focused, purposeful treatments. Learn how to focus Reiki treatments for the mind and emotions as well as over great distances. You'll learn additional Reiki techniques, non-physical applications, practitioner symbols, and how to utilize Reiki via crystals. $135. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Reiki I Certification Course with Eve Wilson • Jan. 21, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. • Learn to do hands-on healing for yourself and others. Gentle, safe, and easy to do, Reiki brings relief from pain, relaxation, and helps the body to heal. $115. Call 780-7635; evew@spiritualhealers.com or spiritualhealers.com.

Reiki II Certification Course with Eve Wilson • Feb. 11, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. • Learn to use Reiki symbols to direct Reiki to heal burns and bruises instantly, help people sleep, start your car battery, protect your energy and aura, send healing anywhere in almost no time, and heal emotional and mental issues. The Reiki II attunement increases Reiki healing energy exponentially. $120. Call 780-7635; evew@spiritualhealers.com or spiritualhealers.com.

Reiki III Master Teacher Certification Course with Eve Wilson • March 10 and 17, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. • Learn to pass Reiki attunements and teach classes as a certified Reiki Master. $450. Call 780-7635; evew@spiritualhealers.com or spiritualhealers.com.

Reiki Share with Sally Pinchock, Ruth Owen, and Jane McLaren • Jan. 11, Feb. 8, March 14, April 11; 9:30-11:30 a.m. or Jan. 23, Feb. 27, March 26, April 23; 7-9 p.m. in Plymouth • Open to the public. Experience the energy of Reiki available from various practitioners. Other Reiki practitioners welcome to share and experience. By loving donation. Call Jane at 248-705-1111; avastarinc@comcast.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Reiki with Carol Clarke • Jan. 13, 6-9 p.m. • "Essential Reiki" method focusing on the history, ethics, hand placement, and attunement to unfold the path of working with Reiki energy. $100. Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Reiki II with Carol Clarke • Feb. 4, 5-10 p.m. • "Essential Reiki" method focusing on review of hand placement, distance healing for self and others, information on symbols and attunement to unfold the path of working with Reiki energy. Must have taken Reiki I. $150. Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Reiki Clinic with Jennifer Flowers Gutman • Jan. 26, Feb. 23, March 22, April 26, 7-9 p.m. • This is a unique opportunity to experience the powerful healing affects of Reiki. Sessions are by appointment only. Love donation. Call Jennifer 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Reiki Share with Jennifer Flowers Gutman • Jan. 12, Feb. 9, March 8 • This is a unique opportunity for anyone who has taken Reiki to come and practice their skills by working on others and experience Reiki shared by other practitioners. It is also a chance to ask questions and enhance your skills. Donation. Call Jennifer 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Reiki III with Jennifer Flowers Gutman • Feb. 3 and Feb. 4, 3-9 p.m. • Advanced class shows you how to increase your energy flow with breathing exercises as well as how to clear blockages in the aura. $154. Call Jennifer 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshealingcenter.com or bodyworkshealingcenter.com.

Illustration by Sara Van Zandt

Curious About Reiki? Free Introductory Talk with Suzy Wienckowski • April 18, 7-9 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Suzy Wienckowski speaks on the Usui System of Reiki Healing. In this gentle, hands-on healing art Universal Life Energy is transmitted through the hands of a practitioner to facilitate healing and promote balance of the whole person. Reiki is deeply relaxing and soothing. Free mini-treatments will be offered. Free. Call Suzy 665-8665; suzyreiki@aol.com.

First Degree Reiki Class with Suzy Wienckowski • Jan. 27-29 or April 27-29, Friday 7-9:30 p.m., Sat. 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. and Sun. 9:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. • Reiki is a gentle, hands-on healing art. It is easily learned by all and after initiation by a Reiki Master healing energy flows effortlessly through your hands.

Reiki reduces stress, eases pain and restores balance and harmony on all levels: Body, Mind and Spirit. Class includes history, hands-on treatment form for yourself and other and 4 individual initiations. Certificate awarded. $150. Call Suzy 665-8665; suzyreiki@aol.com.

Second Degree Reiki Class with Suzy Wienckowski • March 30-31, Friday 7-9 p.m., Sat. 9:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. • Students learn and are empowered to use the three sacred Reiki symbols. The symbols focus and intensify the Reiki energy enabling the practitioner to heal on a deeper level and to send Reiki at a distance. (First Degree training is a pre-req). $500. Call Suzy 665-8665; suzyreiki@aol.com.

Retreats

Costa Rica - A Transformational Journey with Leslie Blackburn and Dixon's Violin • April 9-14 • In collaboration with Sacred Sites Journeys you will enjoy an empowering daily session including yoga, meditation, transformational music experiences and sacred sexuality techniques, journaling and dream guidance. Plus explore the land and elements of Costa Rica. $1695, $1787 credit card (airfare not included). Call Lesile 313-269-6719; dakini@mysteryschoolofthetemplearts.com or mysteryschoolofthetemplearts.com

Yoga Retreat Center: Various Programs at Song of the Morning in Vanderbilt • Jan.-April • Year-round each weekend, we offer programs of various topics or you can stay without attending a program. Yoga and meditation offered daily as well as a meditation service on Sundays. Cost varies. Call Jim Pero at 989-983-4107; office@songofthemorning.org or songofthemorning.org.

On the Way to Jerusalem with Paula d'Arcy at Weber Center • April 1, 3 p.m. - April 4, 1 p.m. • One gift of Holy Week is the challenge to look at the world not only from our own eyes, but from all eyes, letting our hearts be transformed by love. What do you see? $375 single occupancy or $275 double. Call 517-266-4000; webercenter@adriandominicans.org or webercenter.org.

Inner Spring Cleaning Yoga Retreat with Jody Tull • April 21-22, 12-5 p.m. • Days spent mostly in silence with asana class, meditation and contemplative practices. $60. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinawayoga.com or beinawayoga.com.

Transformational Healing Retreat at Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 27, 11:30 a.m. to Jan. 29, 1:30 p.m. • Includes: private appointment to receive Natural Spiritual Healing and learn a healing breath, a group Transformational Hatha Yoga class, time for meditation, free time for rest, read, contemplate, and walk in nature. $65.50. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@CS.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Gentle Yoga Weekend at Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 21, 11 a.m. to Jan. 22, 1:30 p.m. • Relax with gentle Transformation Hatha Yoga classes and an optional Pure Meditation Foundation class. $115, includes meals and accommodations. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@CS.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Easter Celebration Silent Retreat at Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • April 6, before dinner to April 8, after dinner • A truly spiritual way to celebrate the inner beauty of Easter. Retreat held in silence, giving ample time to meditate, contemplate, relax and get in touch with the inner self. $140, includes shared room and meals. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@CS.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Rest & Relaxation Retreat at Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Feb. 11, morning to Feb. 12 afternoon • This retreat gives you plenty of time to rest, relax, read, contemplate, and walk in nature. $75, includes shared room and meals. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@CS.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Shamanism

Shamanism: Path of Empowerment and Healing with Kate Durda • Feb. 11, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. or March 3 (in Lansing) • Shamanism is an ancient, powerful spiritual practice utilized throughout history and still today to restore spiritual and physical health and obtain self-knowledge. Groundbreaking work in fields such as “new biology”, quantum physics, and alternative medicine are validating what shamans and other wise spiritual healers knew about mind/body/spirit connection and practiced thousands of years ago. This experiential workshop is pre-requisite for all our advanced work. $70 with pre-registration discount available. Call Kate 517-667-0694; SpiritWeavers@gmail.com or SpiritWeavers.net.

Shamanism Basic: Working with Your Power Animals with Kate Durda • March 31, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. • Part of Basic Apprenticeship Series, for beginners or a refresher (pre-req: Know How to do Shamanic Journey). Work with your Power Animal(s) for direct revelation, guidance, and protection. Includes power songs, “Restoration of Lost Power/Power Animal Retrieval and classic shapeshifting in the Power Animal Dance. $65 with pre-registration discount available. Call Kate 517-667-0694; SpiritWeavers@gmail.com or SpiritWeavers.net.

4th Annual Shamans’ Mid-Winter Ceremonies: Residential Retreat with Kata Durda and Stephanie Tighe • Feb. 4 - 5 • Focus spiritually on stepping into Who We Are Becoming. Experience Shamanic journeywork, ceremony and a powerful initiation (pre-req is shamanic training/experience). Cost TBD. Call Kate 517-667-0694; SpiritWeavers@gmail.com or SpiritWeavers.net.

Shamanism: Advanced Healing Methods with Stephanie Tighe • March 31-April 1, meets 10 days over 6 months in Lansing area • Experiential shamanic training including Soul Retrieval: Plant Spirit Medicine; Extraction; Restoration of lost Power; and Psychopomp. We will cover other spirit directed techniques, ethics, established healing practice, sensing energy, shifting energy and how to help your clients to receive healing. $900. Call Stephanie 517-667-8448; stephanietighe@gmail.com or SpiritWeavers.net.

Reawaken Your Innate Sources of Guidance & Healing With Shamanic Journey with Karlin Danielsen • Part I, Jan. 16 and Part II, Jan. 23, 6:30-9 p.m. • Learn the process of shamanic journey to meet your inner teachers and begin developing a life long relationship with them. They share guidance, healing and surround you with infinite love and inspire you to live fully. Knowing your inner teachers are always there for you gives you a sense that you are never truly alone. $60 with pre-registration discount available. Call Karlin 476-4732; serenityportal@gmail.com or portalstoserenity.webs.com/.

Shamanic Journey with Carol Jacobs • Jan. 4, 11, 18, 25, Feb. 1, 8, 15, 22, 28, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25; 7-9 p.m. • Connect with Spirit Guides to the beat of a shaman’s drum. Free. Call Carol 476-6256; supercatmom@sbcglobal.net.

Shamanism with Carol Clarke • Feb. 10, 7-9 p.m. • This class focuses on the healing techniques you can use to clear etheric clutter or chaotic energy from the space using incense, crystals and more. $25. Call Carol 416-5200; cclarke2005@hotmail.com or body-workshealingcenter.com.

Spiritual Development

Seals of Solomon Activation Part 1 with Karlta Zarley • Feb. 25, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. • The Seals of Solomon contain all the wisdom we gained in previous lifetimes in various ancient cultures, stored within each of us. This activation begins the Unichakra process, clearing the DNA of trauma and opens the first 5 Seals, covering Egyptian, Mayan, Mu, Atlantean, and Druid lifetimes. $225 includes light refreshments. Call 433-9333; kzarley@att.net or karltazarley.com.

Prosperity Training Camp with Deb Foggio • Tuesdays, 7-9 p.m. • Are you tired of being afraid in your life about this, that or everything? Have you been trying to bring more prosperity, money, love or happiness into your life and, somehow, it never quite happens? Join a group of like-minded seekers willing to expand their wisdom to acquire tools they know will lead them to the life they want. Come work together in a study/accountability group that will not be denied the desires of their hearts. The class will be studying how to use the power of the subconscious mind to create an enriched life. $20 per week. Call 248-702-7064; lightworkscenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Praying with Body, Mind, and Spirit: Into the Light with Janene Ternes • Jan. 28, 9:30 a.m.-3:00 p.m. • Bring light and peace into the darkness of these short days, gain clarity and feel refreshed and energized with holistic prayer that uses simple body movement with music, Scripture, guided meditation and journaling. $45. Call 734-429-7754; prayerinmotionjt@aol.com or prayer-in-motion.com.

Spiritual Discovery Group based on the works of Eckhart Tolle with Melanie Fuscaldo • Feb. 7, Noon-1:30 • Practice releasing the ego and pain body. Experience silence, spacious and the “joy body.” Begin to awaken to your true self. $30. Call 668-2733; mfulscaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Adept Initiations into the Golden Brotherhood and Sisterhood with Karen Greenberg • Feb. 19 or April 29, 1-8 p.m. • Join together with people of all races, religions, nationalities, ages, and genders who wish to unify and make this world a better place. Allow the spiritual realms to embrace you, support you, and to provide networking opportunities to assist you in fulfilling your soul’s purpose. $495. Call 417-9511; krngnrbg@gmail.com; clair-ascension.com.

Developing a Personal Relationship with Your Creator/Higher Power/G-d with Karen Greenberg • Feb. 29, 6-10 p.m. • Learn how to create a still, quiet, sacred, meditative space in which to ask questions and receive answers from your Creator. Learn how to ascertain whether you are in your head thinking the answers, in your body feeling the answers or in your soul receiving the answers from spirit. $75. Call 417-9511; krngnrbg@gmail.com; clair-ascension.com.

The 12 Imaginings of the Twisted Hairs with Debbie Mast & Kalli Ball • first Monday every month, 7-9 p.m. • The Grandmothers of the Twisted Hairs have a vision of how people can live together in harmony, known as the 12 Imaginings. Each month we will discuss one imagining and then walk it out into the world, as we work toward a shared code of conduct as responsible humans. Free. Call Debbie 248-414-5376; freelodge@aol.com.

Mysticism and the Mystical Life at Center of Light Ann Arbor • March 1, 7:30 p.m. • Master Teacher and Christian Mystic Father Peter Bowers illuminates what the experience and meaning of mysticism can be in your life. $25, bring a friend free. Call Rev. Lela Iduna 864-2017; revlela@centersofflight.org or centersofflight.org/annarbor.

Fitting Spirituality into a Hectic Schedule at Center of Light Ann Arbor • March 2, 7:30 p.m. • We know the benefits of holding a meditative or devotional practice, but how can one live in the world and maintain our spiritual lives? Father Peter gives practical solutions and personal insight. $25, bring a friend free. Call Rev. Lela Iduna 864-2017; revlela@centersofflight.org or centersofflight.org/annarbor.

“Optimism is the faith that leads to achievement. Nothing can be done without hope and confidence.”
~ Helen Keller

True Love: The Eye in the Heart at Center of Light Ann Arbor • March 3, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. • Learn how to see others, yourself, and the world through the lens of your heart, the only clear vision that we have. Father Peter give guidance and an experiential exercise to help you find this peace. $40 includes lunch, bring a friend free. Call Rev. Lela Iduna 864-2017; revlela@centersofflight.org or centersofflight.org/annarbor.

Shamanic Constellations SoulWork Owing, Deepening & Embracing The Birth of the New Vibration with Dale and Christina Wright-Lonheim • Jan. 27, 7-9 p.m., Jan. 28 or Jan. 29, 9:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. • Powerful & incredibly insightful systemic constellation work that guides us to receive gifts of strength and love from our ancestral and spiritual lineages, recovering lost souls and splits, finding security in how Mother Earth sustains us. Friday $25, Saturday or Sunday, $95 with pre-registration discounts. Call Jane 248-705-1111; avastarinc@comcast.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

One Step Forward: Moving Beyond Our Everyday Resistances with Robin Brophy • Jan. 6, 7-8:30 p.m. • Recognizing and moving through our resistance and fear is an important aspect of spiritual growth. Learn how to embrace change, life and moving beyond our comfort zone. $20. Call Robin 303-525-6478; lollylolipop@yahoo.com.

Oneness Chakra Meditation and Blessing with Lee Schaberg • Wednesday and Friday, 7:30-9 p.m. • Meditation for connecting to your Divine presence and chakra clearing for clear energy transfer to Deeksha/Oneness Blessing. Love offering. Call Lee 358-5529; lee.k.s@comcast.net.

Facilitators Training for Systemic Constellations and Shamanic Healing with Deb Foggio & Jane McLaren • Jan. 27-29, March 23-24, 2 other Saturday dates • How to use earth places and elements in constellations: using birthplace of a person, their parents, ancestral homelands to find lost soul. How to use elements to clear and balance soul energy, how to see soul loss, unquiet dead, split selves and bring back soul parts. Inquire about fees when registering. Call Deb 248-702-7064; lightworkscenter@att.net or integrativewellbeing.com.

Shamanic Study Group with Lynette Staffeld • second Tuesday every month, 7-9:30 p.m. • Shamanic principles of the Sweet Medicine Sundance Path. This course of study covers basic shamanic information combined with integrative personal ceremonies and sacred craft projects. Focus is on personal self growth through connections with nature. $10 or donation. Call Lynette 475-6030; lmbmstaffeld@gmail.com.

Sunday Service at Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth • Sundays 10:45 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. • A gathering of spiritual seekers that meet in a beautiful building every Sunday to celebrate oneness with all beings, experience the power of group meditation, benefit from enlightening readings, enjoy guest musicians, and listen to talks that inspire and stimulate spiritual growth and understanding. There is a children's program during the service each week and monthly potlucks. Donation. Call Rev. Dave Bell 327-0270; dave@interfaithspirit.org or interfaithspirit.org.

Stress Management

Life Skills and Relaxation Class with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 7, 10 - 11:15 a.m. • No matter what problems or challenges you face, or how difficult it has been in the past, these fast, easy-to-use tools can help you! Learn more about the mind-body connection and how to apply the practical energy care tools in your everyday life at school, work, home, and play. $30. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Pure Meditation Foundation Class with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • April 6, 3-5 p.m. • Conquer stress, improve concentration, find inner peace. Of value in all walks of life, Pure Meditation Foundation training, which includes the meditative peace breath, helps you to be in charge of how you feel physically, mentally, and emotionally. It takes only a few minutes to practice each day. $40. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Time for You Getaway with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • April 28, morning to April 29, afternoon • Gives you time for you to de-stress, rest, relax, read, contemplate and walk in nature. $65.50, includes meals and shared lodging. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Stress Management: Embracing the Peace Within You with Melanie Fuscaldo • Feb. 17, Noon-1:30 • Tune into messages from your body, mind, emotions, and spirit and learn effective strategies to enhance your well-being. Identify your unique stressors. Experience guided imagery for relaxation and to gain information from your inner wisdom. Leave with coping strategies to increase your effectiveness. $30. Call 668-2733; mfuscaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Peaceful Happy Hour with Ellen Porter • Jan. 13, Feb. 10, March 9, April 13 • Relaxing ear acupuncture to melt stress away; brings balance and harmony to allow the body to let go of toxins and stress. Experience deep relaxation. $15. Call Ellen 845-2166; ellen@acu thrive.org or AcuThrive.org.

Sustainability

Ann Arbor Winter ReSkilling Festival • Feb. 4, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., registration begins at 9:30 a.m. • Learn skills for resilient, low-energy living. Focus is on winter skills including sock darning, bread-making, cold-weather commuting, indoor play, planning and preparing for spring gardens. Free. Call Blanche 669-9394; bprice@steinerschool.org or a2reskill.blogspot.com.

Introduction to Council Circles with Jeanne Mackey • March 14, 7-8:30 p.m. • Learn and experience the ancient pan-cultural practice of sharing insight and experience in a council circle. Free. Call Rebecca 846-8024; jmackey60@gmail.com or a2reskill.blogspot.com.

Strawbale Studios Natural Building & Sustainable Skill Programs • The Strawbale Studio is an enchanting thatched-roof strawbale structure on rural wooded land about an hour north of Detroit. It is also an education program for natural building & sustainable living skills. The following activities are at the Strawbale Studio land outside Oxford, MI. Call Deanne 248-628-1887; ecoartdb@gmail.com or strawbalestudio.org.

New Internship Program with Deanne Bednar & invited guest teachers • Jan. 8 thru Feb. 8 • Immerse yourself in a one month intensive, hands-on learning experience and participate in all workshops. Skills taught: thatching, earth plasters, round pole framing, rocket-stove design and more. April & May • "Education & Community Outreach" includes Earthday festival, Green events and community projects, relocalization, earth oven, plasters, thatching, foraging and a permaculture class with Jared Bogdonov-Hanna. Hands on construction of the Kids Cottage. $625 per month or $500 if prepaid 1 month in advance.

Fermenting & Cheesemaking with Deanne Bednar and Ruth Hoyt • Jan. 9, 2-5 p.m. • Learn the mysteries of allowing nature to transform food, preserve it, increasing food value and making it tasty. Create goat cheese, kim-chi, buttermilk and more. $40 or $25 prepaid. RSVP.

The Basics of Thatching & Reed Collecting with Deanne Bednar • Jan. 14, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. • An all natural roof can be created using our local Phragmite reed grass. Tour thatched buildings onsite, see a demo and do some hands-on thatching, see a video and harvest reeds. $90 or $75 prepaid.

Round Pole Framing with Deanne Bednar • Jan. 21, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. • Learn the basics of this practical skill. Tour natural buildings on site, forage timbers, use a draw knife to peel the bark, practice notching & joining and learn design principles. $70 or $55 prepaid.

Earth Plaster & Sculpting Class with Deanne Bednar • Jan. 28, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. • Learn the basics of locating, mixing and applying earth to retrofit/beautify our existing home. Adhesion coat, plastering, sculpting, strawbale bench. $80 or $65 prepaid.

The Joy of Foraging with Deanne Bednar • April 6, 1-5 p.m. • Learn about 20 plants that grow commonly in this region that can be used for such purposes as soap-making, salt substitute, cording, nutritional food & medicine. Free plants to take home. $40 or $25 prepaid. RSVP

Earth Oven Workshop with Deanne Bednar • April 28, 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. • Hands-on construction: learn how to locate materials, mix/apply oven mud, insulation, finish layer and sculpting details. Visit ovens on site, take a model home and make a pizza. $70 or $55 prepaid.

2012 Soul Essence Expanding Constellation Series

Soul Essence Evolving

2nd and 4th Fridays 7-10pm
Deb Foggio & Jane McLaren Facilitators

Shamanic Constellation SoulWork

Dale & Christina Wright-Lonheim, MA, M.F.T.
From Seattle, WA

January 27-29 and March 23-25

Constellation Training Workshops

Honor the Past

Live in the Present

Build the Future

Center For Integrative Well Being

42839 Five Mile Rd, Plymouth, MI 48170 *(248)702-7064 *(248)705-1111

www.integrativewellbeing.com

*Register now for Retreats held on Lake Huron
July & Oct. 2012*

If you would like to hold an event,
teach a class,

bring an author to town,
give a lecture,

demonstrate your bodywork skills,
give massages,

lead a seasonal ceremony,

or,
organize a lunchtime group meditation in downtown Ann Arbor...

perhaps,
Crazy Wisdom
Bookstore
& Tea Room is the place to do it!

Call Rachel Pastiva or Bill Zirinsky at Crazy Wisdom
734-665-2757

EXPRESS YOURSELF THROUGH ART

Painter and educator in art and art therapy offers private lessons in drawing and visual journal creation

Individual and private group lessons available!

Contact Nancy Wolfe at nancy@nancywolfe.com
or 734-358-5857
to learn more!

Shamanic Counseling

*Spiritual Direction &
Journeying for Women*

Trained by Dr. Michael Harner, Author, The Way of the Shaman
30 Years Experience

Liza Bancel

ANN ARBOR MICHIGAN 734.761.1819

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Sustainability (continued)

Permaculture: An Introduction with Nathan Ayers • March 14, 6-8:55 p.m. • Learn the fundamental concepts of permaculture design. Examine energy, food, water and waste strategies and how these relate to the larger community. Gain hands-on tools you need to begin considering the concepts of permaculture. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Permaculture Intensive: Homesteading for the 21st Century with Nathan Ayers • April 28 & 29, 9 a.m. - 5:55 p.m. • Learn life changing skills in self-sufficiency and community resilience in this specially designed two day, hands-on course. $149. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Cottage Food Industry: Make Money Selling Your Home Made Foods with Nathan Ayers • Feb. 15 or April 11, 6-8:55 p.m. • Learn how to set up your own cottage based industry and how the concept relates to Permaculture. Examine what foods are allowable for sale, the requirements for labels and listing, sales records and learn how to plug into the network of existing cottage food operations. $29. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Tai Chi, Martial Arts & Self Defense

Wu Style Tai Chi with Marilyn Feingold at Jewel Heart • Jan. 8, 15, 22, 29, Feb. 5, 12, 19, March 11, 18, 25; 4-5:30 p.m. • Learn the ancient art of meditation in motion with this soft style martial art emphasizing relaxation and balance. $5 suggested donation. Call 994-3387; programs@jewelheart.org or jewelheart.org.

Tai Chi Chuan I with Stephen Harrigan • Wednesdays, Jan. 25 to March 14; 6-7:15 p.m. • In this eight-session course, you'll learn techniques to promote relaxation of the mind and body, centering, better balance, concentration, and improved health. Tai Chi may also facilitate academic, intellectual, and conceptual learning. $79. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Tai Chi Chuan II with Stephen Harrigan • Wednesdays, Jan. 25 to March 14; 7:30-8:45 p.m. • Ready for more challenge? This class offers a higher level of instruction in Yang-style Tai Chi. You can work on the form at your own pace and practice some elementary pushing hands and applications. $79. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Wu Style Tai Chi Chuan with Sifu Genie Parker • Beginners: Wednesdays and Thursday, 6 - 7:30 p.m. at the Ann Arbor Academy; 4-5:30 p.m. at Jewel Heart • Wu style Tai Chi is a soft style martial art emphasizing balance and relaxation. All are welcome to learn this ancient art of meditation in motion. $45 monthly for one class per week; $70 monthly for two classes per week. Senior, family, and student rates available. Call Sifu Genie Parker 248-229-1060; info@wustyle-annarbor.com or wustyle-annarbor.com.

Beginner Tai Chi Classes with Wasantha Young at Peaceful Dragon School • Mondays, Jan 9-April 2; 10-11 a.m. or Tuesdays, Jan. 10-April 2; 7:15 - 8:30 p.m. or Thursdays, Jan. 12-April 5; 7:15 - 8:30 p.m. • The Tai Chi form is a series of postures linked together in a continuous, fluid manner. As an internal Chinese martial art, the form integrates both physical and energetic mechanics that promote relaxation and presence of mind. Tai Chi is often characterized as a moving meditation. $180. For dates and times, call director Wasantha Young at 741-0695; peacefuldragonschool.com.

Qigong Class - Ongoing with Joel Robbins • weekday evenings, 6-9 p.m. • Qigong, literally "Energy Skill," consists of meditative exercises designed to circulate the body's Qi-energy through the meridians of Chinese medicine. Regular practice of Qigong can improve balance and circulation and promotes tranquility, vitality and longevity. All levels welcome. $10 per 1.5 hour class. Call Joel 315-0573; A2CommunityAcupuncture@gmail.com or A2CommunityAcupuncture.com.

Tai Chi Chuan Classes at Peaceful Dragon School • The Tai Chi form is a series of postures linked together in a continuous, fluid manner. As an internal Chinese martial art, the form integrates both physical and energetic mechanics that promote relaxation and presence of mind. Tai Chi is often characterized as a moving meditation. $180. For dates and time, call director Wasantha Young at 741-0695; peacefuldragonschool.com.

Martial Arts Classes with Huron Valley Aikikai • Classes offered Monday-Saturday in mornings and evenings • Huron Valley Aikikai is a community of martial arts practitioners with the goal of providing an authentic, supportive, and high-quality environment for the study of Aikido. Classes include Aikido, Zen Meditation, Mixed Martial Arts, Batto-ho, Weapons, and Children's Aikido. For complete schedule and costs, call 761-6012 or hv-aikido.com.

Martial Arts Advantage • Morning and evening classes offered daily • Offering an extensive collection of fitness and martial arts courses, Martial Arts Advantage offers classes for young children to adults in their 60s. Classes include yoga, pilates, cardio kickboxing, bootcamp, and specialized martial arts training. First class is free. Memberships available. For complete schedule and costs, call 996-9699; themartialartsadvantage.com.

Aikido Yoshokai Association of North America • Evening classes offered four days per week • Aikido is a form of Japanese Budo, a way of study including both physical and mental training. The word Aikido can be loosely translated at "the Way of harmony with nature or universal energy". Aikido is a way of studying harmony through physical movements. We study moving in harmony with others to eventually strive to create harmony with nature. Children's classes offered Saturday mornings. First class is free for adults; $50 for five classes. $60 per month for beginning children or $70 for advanced. For complete schedule, call 662-4686; aikidoyoshokai.org.

Asian Martial Arts Classes with Ryan Wilson and Barbara Marynowski through White Crane • Ongoing evening classes offered • Traditional, fully asian-recognized martial arts training methods sponsored through Juko Kai International and the International Okinawan Martial Arts Union. Classes include Juko Ryu Hakutsuru White Crane Kempo (Hard Fist) and Kin-da (Locking and Throwing), Juko Ryu Aiki Inyo Tai Ki (similar to Tai Chi), and Juko Ryu Aiki Inyo Goshin Jutsu (self-defense art). For complete schedule and costs, call 417-7161; whitecranemichigan.com.

Classes with Asian Martial Arts Studio • Ongoing classes offered • Martial arts classes include Aikido, Kung-Fu, Karate-do, Tai Chi, Wing Chun, and Lion Dance, with the goals of developing a truthful knowledge of the fundamental elements of our martial arts traditions and their roots in asian culture, providing the opportunity for improved health and self-cultivation while accurately representing and transmitting the technical, cultural, and spiritual aspects of our martial arts traditions, and contributing to the progressive evolution of the living art form and its propagation. Children's program offered Mondays and Saturdays includes Karate-do, Judo, and Aikido. For complete schedule and costs, call 994-3620; a2amas.com.

Tai Chi Classes with Richard Miller of Ann Arbor Tai Chi • Monday and Thursday evenings, Saturday mornings • Classes include Chen style tai chi ch'uan basic practices, a unique movement art emphasizing inner stillness and relaxation developed through disciplined whole body integration and refined awareness, with an emphasis on balance, relaxation, and whole body unity. $85 per month. Call 973-0226; ribumi@sbcglobal.net or annarbortaiichi.com.

B.C. Yu Martial Arts Center Classes • Ongoing classes offered • Forty classes per week include Tae Kwon Do, Brazilian Jiu Jitsu, Modern Arnis, Mixed Martial Arts, and Fitness Kickboxing. If you're ready to increase your focus, stamina, confidence, and coordination, come and learn valuable and practical self-defense. Children's program teaches life skills that provide the knowledge kids need growing up today, including the five tenets of Tae Kwon Do: courtesy, integrity, perseverance, self-control, and indomitable spirit. For complete schedule and costs, call 994-9595; questions@bcyu.com or bcyu.com.

Okinawan Karate Club of Ann Arbor with Barb Christensen • Various classes held weekly • This club is a group dedicated to the teachings of Grandmaster Eizo Shimabukuro's karate, kobudo, and jujitsu. Classes available for women, teens, and children. For more information, call 678-3882; senseibarb@karateannarbor.com or annarborokinawan-karate.com.

Ann Arbor College of Martial Arts • Various classes held weekly • This school offers a comprehensive self-defense system. It is also a fitness, health, and personal defense center with classes in martial arts, cardio kickboxing, Pilates, zumba, children's fitness, women's self defense, and shaolin martial conditioning. For more information, call 913-6000; A2CoMA@gmail.com or A2CMA.com.

Martial Arts at Quest Center • Classes held Monday-Saturday • Offering karate for kids program, family martial arts program, and a self defense program. For more information, call 332-1800; questcenter@sbcglobal.net.

Tarot & Divination

Drop-In Tarot/Psychic Readings with Rebecca Williams in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Thursdays, 6-9 p.m. • $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 660-9680; rebeccawilliams999@comcast.net.

Drop-In COSMO Readings with John Fredericks in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • First and Third Saturday of each month, 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. • Take a moment to explore your inner psyche and cosmic connections with COSMO, a delightfully rational divination system. The board is our mental map. The cards, similar to Tarot, represent fate and the forces, events, and people in our lives. The combination presents us with a psychologically sound, yet energetically and spiritually connected tool to explore the complexities of our lives. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 368-1780; jfreder8@emich.edu.

"If you want others to be happy, practice compassion. If you want to be happy, practice compassion."

~ Dalai Lama

Drop-In Tarot Readings with Jenna Harbin in Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Second and Fourth Fridays, 2-5 p.m. • Jenna uses tarot as a transformational tool that locates personal challenges in the broader context of natural cycles. Jenna's in-depth understanding of archetypal symbolism, cross cultural spirituality and nature's metaphorical language brings a unique perspective to tarot that facilitates individual access to transpersonal knowledge. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 503-267-6002; jennaharbin@gmail.com.

Drop-In Tarot Readings with Randy Weiser in the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room • Saturdays, 7-10 p.m. • Randy has been offering tarot readings, teachings, and parties for over a decade. One of Crazy Wisdom's longstanding Art Fair readers, Randy's dynamic energy draws mysteries of the past, present, and future from the cards. $1 per minute. No appointment necessary. Call 482-9874; randy_weiser@yahoo.com.

Throwing the Stick - Consulting the I Ching with Wasantha Young • Jan. 28, 5:30-7:30 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • The I ching is one of the first writings on the understanding on life's dualistic illusion and triad relationships. Explore the ancient Chinese technique using the 50 stalk method to calculate a personal reading. Pre-registration and materials required. $30. Call Wasantha 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Beginning Tarot with Randy Weiser • 13 Wednesdays, starting Jan. 25, 6:30-9 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Tarot is a useful tool for enlightenment and knowledge. Join Edge of the Circle's Randy Weiser as we learn the symbolism and methods for basic readings. $10 per class. Call Randy 482-9874; randy_weiser@yahoo.com.

Psychic Sunday with multiple readers • Feb. 5, 12-5 p.m. at Crazy Wisdom Community Room • Experience and talk with many readers specializing in different areas, Astrology, Palm, Tarot and Crystal Ball, etc. Enjoy refreshments as you gain insight and clarity into your life. By appointment. Cost varies. Cal Pat 416-5200; relax@bodyworkshalingcenter.com or bodyworkshalingcenter.com.

Tea Events

Fairy Teas at Crazy Wisdom • Feb. 23 with 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. seatings; May 13, 1 p.m. Mother's Day Fairy Tea • Children and their families are welcome for tea and petit fours served by real fairies! Celebrate with our magical fairies as they serve tea, treats, and magic. There will be story time with books available from Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. Fairy attire is encouraged. Be creative! $11 per person. Babies 18 months and younger free. Tickets are available by stopping in to Crazy Wisdom or by phoning prior to the event. For information call, 734-665-2757 or email jerri@crazywisdom.net or crazywisdom.net.

Theater

'Bernhardt on Broadway' with Carol Dunitz • Jan. 14, 2 p.m. & 7:30 p.m. • Musical play about Sarah Bernhardt, the world's first Superstar. Bernhardt was the first person to star in a full length silent film and the first celebrity to endorse products. She performed close to 150 roles during her lifetime to sold out crowds around the globe. $25. Call Carol 864-3244; cdunitz@bernhardtonbroadway.com or bernhardtonbroadway.com.

Theosophy

Theosophical Open Forum with Don Elwert • Wednesdays, 7-9 p.m. • Meetings involve a wide range exploration of theosophical writings and ideas, Christian to light and lively, and discussions range from serious to informative. Mysticism, astrology and Rosicrucian thought. All welcome. Free. Call Don 248-545-1961; lotus711@yahoo.com or tsdetroit.org.

Theosophical Society Public Programs • Fridays, 7-9 p.m., doors open at 6:30 p.m. • Movies or lectures centered on theosophical subjects will be presented, followed by thoughtful, open discussions. Free. Call 248-545-1961; lotus711@yahoo.com or http://tsdetroit.org.

Therapy and Support Groups

Falling Awake: Mindfulness for Depression and Anxiety with Lynn Sipher • 8 Thursdays, March 1-April 26, 1-3 p.m. • Mindfulness-based practices are proving to be an effective approach to addressing depression and/or anxiety. Learn new skills to help you change your relationship conditions. Discover an ability to live more fully in the present moment without letting depression/anxiety interfere with your life. $340. Call Lynn 332-3365; lynnsipher@gmail.com or lynnsipher.com.

An Introduction to Gendlin's Focusing Skill as They Apply in Daily Life with Joya D'Cruz • Jan. 5, 12; 7-9 p.m. and Jan. 7, 21; 1-6 p.m. or March 2, 9; 7-9 p.m. and March 3, 17, 1-6 p.m. • In a small group you will learn how to listen deeply and engage with what's really going on in your life and your relationships using your own body's unique guidance. Use these skills for handling strong emotions, challenging situations and relationships. $280. Call Joya 219-2555; dcruzjoya@gmail.com or joyadacruz.com.

Transpersonal Psychology

Passionate Spiritual Intimacy with Lynn Vaughn • Jan. 21, Feb. 18, April 21; 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., March 15 6:30-9:30 p.m. • This practical, experiential workshop focuses on the deep exploration and honest expression of emotions. Offering spiritual techniques for healing the gap between the initial closeness in relationship and later disillusionment. $75 per couple, discount for early registration. Call Lynn 248-921-7922; lynnvaughn-phd@att.net.

Womenspirit

Mother Night and Seeing in the Dark with Esther Kennedy • March 9, 7:30 p.m. to March 11, 1 p.m. • The creative life force is urging us to move into the realm of mystery, dreams, darkness and the unexpected. We draw upon Mother Night, our wild, loving companion as we kneel to dig down to mine the raw gems of spirit, soul and creative life, bringing diamonds from the darkness into the light of loving service. $325 single, $225 each double, $150 commuter. Call Weber Center at 517-266-4000; webercenter@adriandominicans.org or webercenter.org.

Work & Right Livelihood

Building Your Business by Infusing Spirituality with Karen Greenberg • March 26, 6-10 p.m. • Uncover and remove your hidden, sabotaging beliefs, emotions, behaviors, and patterns that prevent you from creating, receiving, and sustaining the prosperity that is your birthright. Replace them with universal spiritual principles, laws, and practices. $75. Call 417-9511; krngnbg@gmail.com or clair-ascension.com.

Live Your Career Dream with Melanie Fuscaldo • Feb. 21 and 24, Noon-1:30 • Begin to identify your unique career dream and gifts to share with the world. Release blockages and step into a flow state. Create an action plan to manifest it in your life. $60 per session. Call 668-2733; mfulcaldo@gmail.com or melaniefuscaldo.com.

Preventing Burnout Course & Retreat at the Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • Jan. 14, 9:30 a.m. to Jan. 15, 5 p.m. • Enhance both your work and personal life. This course is for everyone who wishes to deepen their understanding and care for their own energy. $272 includes meals and lodging. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Worship

Eucharistic Celebration with Rev. Thomas Lumpkin and Rev. Charles Morris • first Wednesday of Feb, March and April, 7 p.m. • Come and share fellowship and spiritual nourishment in these monthly celebrations of Eucharist. Free. Call 240-5494; riverhouse@ihmsisters.org or ihmsisters.org.

Writing

Writing with Style with Frances Wang • April 14 and 21, 10-11:55 a.m. • If you have been scribbling poetry in secret or you now want to begin a memoir, it can take some time to find your voice or to have enough trust to show your writing to the world. Rather than waiting until all is perfect, begin in this course, one word at a time. With many tips, tricks, exercises you can overcome those barriers to writing. $39. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

The Visual Journal with Nancy Wolfe • Saturdays, Jan. 28 to Feb. 25, 10-11:55 a.m. • Designed to open new paths to communicate experiences and encourage self-expression in imagery and narration. Students work with sound, color, memory, poetry, music and mythology in focused exercises and projects that help expand creative thinking. $99. Call 677-5060; lifelong-learning@wccnet.edu or wccnet.edu/lifelong-learning/.

Yoga-Poetry Celebration with David Trombley • Jan. 15, 4-6 p.m. • We will start with a light, energizing Hatha Yoga routine designed to relax and open us to new possibilities, followed by a short meditation, and then poetry writing exercises designed to bring your inspired reflections up and onto the page. All are welcome. $15. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Womens Writing Workshop with Rae Bird • third Wednesday every month Jan. - April, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., with potluck lunch • Discover and express your personal creative genius. Take personal writing time and practice cutting edge creative writing skills. Sacred space for women. $80 for 4 classes paid in advance, $25 per class drop-in. Call Robin Mallor 810-793-2511; rmallor@gmail.com or mspace.com/thewomenswritingproject.

Build Your Book with the Writer's Architect with Jeannie Ballew • Jan. 6-8, Feb. 3-5, March 2-4, April 6-8 • Upon completion of the workshop you will have fully developed an outline of your manuscript, targeted your readership, determined the appropriate tone, style, and structure of your book, and clarified your personal and/or professional goals. $475. Call Jeannie 994-6663; editprose@provide.net or knowledgecrush.com.

What Makes an Oil Essential?

By Nancy Harknett

Essential oils. We hear about them and see them in health food stores all over. Many of us have had a massage or aromatherapy treatment and can recall experiencing their pleasant smells, but we may not know what essential oils are, how they work, or why it is important that we use only therapeutic grade oils.

So what does it mean for an oil to be essential? According to the Oxford English Dictionary, the word essential means “in the absolute or highest sense; thorough, complete; of or pertaining to a thing’s essence.” In Essential Oils Desk Reference, 5th ed., modern day master oil blender Gary Young, N.D., defines it this way: “An essential oil is that aromatic, volatile liquid that is in many shrubs, flowers, trees, roots, bushes and seeds and that is usually extracted by steam distillation.” Because of this steam distillation process, these oils are very concentrated and thus more potent than dried herbs. He adds, “It requires a large amount of plant material to produce small amounts of a distilled essential oil.” I have heard this same researcher say that, in a very real sense, the plants give up their lives for us so we can have the medicine we need.

My olfactory senses were developing in such a way that I could tell when an oil was “missing” something. I also grew to depend on them for my own health.

It has long been understood that essential oils contain many healing properties (vibrational energies) that invigorate the mind, soul, and physical bodies. Most of us have read about these oils in various ancient writings, including the Judeo-Christian Bible. Words like “anointing” or “the anointed one” are often found, as well as actual names of oils used in daily life. Some of these are: cistus, cinnamon, cedar, clove, hyssop, spikenard, frankincense and myrrh.

These ancient oils are being distilled again today for their medicinal qualities. There were early pharmacists that dealt directly with essential oils and used them to treat illness. When these oils were steam distilled with great care, they became very potent — more powerful even than the excellent herbs that these same early scientists had used medicinally.

Today, alternative healing practitioners commonly use essential oils as complementary medical treatments that help the body to help itself and heal on a cellular level. Essential oil benefits are many. Depending on the essential oil, these may include properties that are anti-septic, anti-inflammatory, anti-bacterial and anti-viral. They are also great detoxifiers, and can help in clearing emotions and restoring hormonal balance. These oil vibrations stimulate glandular function as well as generally oxygenating all cells and systems. Many of these oils have the unique advantage of being able to cross the blood brain barrier. This allows treatment to be given to areas not available using pharmaceuticals. Some essential oils, like frankincense, have anti-tumoral properties and have been known to eliminate aggressive tumors.

With so many potential benefits, thousands of people consult the Essential Oils Desk Reference and use the oils at home to treat themselves, their families and their pets. Still, not all essential oils are created equally. Recently, questions have arisen about the quality of “essential” oils and their actual therapeutic benefits. Some smell so good, no matter who makes them or how they are made, that one might ask, “Who cares? If it smells this good, it’s good enough for me!” Lavender is a common scent that frequently meets with this kind of questioning. For centuries, lavender has been known for its skin healing properties. Many of us keep it in the kitchen for first aid. I have experienced immediate relief from the pain of a burn and complete healing of it within 24 hours when using real, therapeutic grade lavender. Some well meaning people experience the disappointment of reaching for their lavender, using it, and discovering that not only does it not help, but it can turn a 1st degree burn into a 2nd degree burn! How is this possible? The oil that harms can hardly be called therapeutic. It has to be an essential, or therapeutic grade, lavender oil to heal the burn.

Why is it that not all oils on the market today can be considered “essential”? Going back to the process of steam distillation, it has been discovered that each plant/bark/seed needs a special temperature, pressure and time for optimal production of a truly essential (therapeutic grade) oil. If we are interested in perfume grade oil, this careful process need not be followed. When the same plant material is used two or three times for distillation, the resulting oils do not have all the properties of a therapeutic grade oil. In fact, often when a distilled oil is not up to the highest standards, it is sold to the perfume industry or to an “essential oil” distributor with lower standards. There is also a growing practice of using chemical solvents to engineer or “extend” the oils. The resulting product is an adulterated oil. These oils are not medicinal in quality and will not give healing results when used.

In a very real sense, the plants give up their lives for us.

Photo by Beth Barbeau

Nancy Harknett is the proprietor of Hand in Hand Healing, LLC, in Ann Arbor. She offers essential oil treatments, and also teaches Reiki. Her Aromatherapy class is listed on page 76 of the Calendar.

The chemistry of essential oils is complex. It takes years of study to understand all of the parts in the oils. There can be from 80-300 different constituents in one oil alone. We can use complete, therapeutic oils without extensive study; however, the more practitioners educate themselves, the better we serve others and the safer they are in our hands.

So, to understand the term “therapeutic grade” when applied to oils, I decided to study. I learned about the skills involved in carefully studied and practiced steam distillation. I found a source of oils from people who did just that. I learned some chemistry of essential oils. I learned techniques of applying the oils therapeutically and safely. After using these highest quality oils available, I began to experience that my olfactory senses were developing in such a way that I could tell when an oil was “missing” something. I also grew to depend on them for my own health.

Years ago a young pioneer in the field of essential oils coined the term “therapeutic grade.” This was the result of his studies of steam distillation with the European masters in Turkey and France, Egypt and Oman. He understood there was a difference in distillation practices and in the resulting oil quality. Others dismissed the term “therapeutic” as foreign and unnecessary.

Gradually, though, everyone began to use this term, hoping to make themselves credible in the field of essential oils. They did not change their process or practice, just adopted the term. This has caused much confusion. To avoid continued confusion, one company has trademarked a new label. Whenever we see the trademark Y.L.T.G. (Young Living Therapeutic Grade) on a bottle of oil, we know that the most careful, consistent and up-to-date distillation processes are being used. We also know that the plants, preparation, purity and potency of the oils are guaranteed.

All of this knowledge has led me to understand the true meaning of an essential, therapeutic grade oil. I have made a conscious choice to use only the Y.L.T.G. oils to give my clients the best treatments available. If I am paying more money for this privilege, then I am doing it willingly. I deserve it and so do my clients. As my father said, “You get what you pay for.” This has never been truer than now, with the opportunity to use Y.L.T.G. essential oils.

Nancy Harknett is the proprietor of Hand In Hand Healing, LLC, in Ann Arbor. She gives various essential oil treatments using Y.L.T.G. oils, and is a student in the Certified Clinical Aromatherapy Program through the Institute for Spiritual Healing and Aromatherapy. She is also a Reiki Master and practices and teaches Reiki. Nancy is a member of the Associated Bodywork & Massage Professionals, and the Healing Touch Professional Association. She can be reached at nanharknett@gmail.com and 734-649-7076.

Yoga

Slow Flow Vinyasa Yoga with Ellen Livingston • Wednesdays, 9:30-11 a.m. and 5:30-7 p.m. • The movements are slow in vinyasa yoga, and the student learns to deepen the breath and slow the breathing rate. By keeping the mind focused on the controlled breath, the student progresses safely and without injury. Small class size includes philosophy. Open to all levels. $15 drop-in with multiple class discounts offered. Call 222-3634; ellen@livingyoganow.com or livingyoganow.com.

Relaxing Yoga for Home Practice: Half-Day Retreat with Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre • March 31, 10 a.m.-1:30 p.m. • Open to all levels of experience and ability, this morning of relaxing transformation hatha yoga instruction and practice provides individual attention, and time to make notes if you wish. Stay the night before or after and make it a retreat! $35 includes home-cooked vegetarian lunch and refreshments. Call 517-641-6201; SRMHCMichigan@cs.com or selfrealizationcentremichigan.org.

Open Drop-in Hatha Yoga with Jody Tull • Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays: 9:15-10:45 a.m. or Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays: 5:30-7 p.m. • The Be In Awe Sivananda Yoga Open Class is vigorous, yet relaxing with an emphasis on deep breathing, relaxation, and concentration. This traditional, classical training starts with initial relaxation, followed by breathing exercises, six sets of sun salutations, the standard program of 12 basic postures, and final relaxation. Not suitable for complete beginners. $15 drop-in with discounted rates offered. Call 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Introduction to Chair Yoga with Jody Tull • Jan. 13, 6-7:30 p.m. • Ideal for those with physical challenges or preference for extra-gentle approach to yoga. Learn to adapt the traditional yoga asanas and breathing exercises to suit your abilities and needs. $30. Call 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Headstand - Yes You Can! with Jody Tull • March 18, 4-5:30 p.m. • The headstand is regarded as the most powerful “king” of the asanas. By inverting the body and keeping it in a straight line, the pull of gravity is counteracted and enhances deep breathing, bringing an increased oxygen supply to the brain and nervous system. There are eight basic steps you can learn to enjoy a safe, steady headstand! $15. Call 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Beginning Yoga Afternoon Intensive with Jody Tull • March 31, 12-5 p.m. • Learn or review all the basic elements, from pranayama to asanas to start, re-start or re-inspire your yoga practice. $60. Call 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Advanced Beginners Yoga Course with Jody Tull • March 1, 8, 15, 22; 6-7:30 p.m. • Expand, reinforce and deepen your yoga practice with this course designed to help you fully realize the benefits of your practice. $60 for the series. Call 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Yoga Postures with Optional Lunch with Diana Kimball and Dorothy Ann Coyne of Deep Spring • Wednesdays: 10:30-Noon with optional lunch, Noon-1:30 • All are welcome! No experience necessary. Followed by an optional lunch after class. Bring your own or buy nearby and we'll spread a blanket and have a picnic. Donation opportunity to teachers and Deep Spring. Call 477-5848; info@deepspring.org or deepspring.org.

Yoga Classes at Zen Buddhist Temple • Beginning and experienced students in the classes learn traditional (hatha) yoga postures with an emphasis on relaxation, concentration, and working with the breath. The instructors were trained by the Sivananda Yoga Organization and combine that experience with meditation training. Classes fill early. $12 drop-in. Call 761-6520; annarbor@zenbuddhisttemple.org.

Yoga I • Six Tuesdays beginning Jan. 10 or March 6, 6-7:30 p.m. • $60.

Yoga II • Six Tuesdays beginning Jan. 10 or March 6, or Six Thursdays beginning Jan. 12 or March 8; 6:30-8 p.m. • $60 for six sessions.

Yoga Classes with Karen Ufer at Yoga Focus • Seven week winter session starts Jan. 9 thru March 4 • This system of yoga stretches, strengthens, and enhances well being through the effort of muscles, organs, nerves, and circulation. Many classes available for all levels, including prenatal and gentle, based on the work of B.K.S. Iyengar. $15 drop-in or $91 for session. Call Karen at 668-7730; info@yogafocusannarbor.com or yogafocusannarbor.com.

Bikram Yoga Classes • Morning, afternoon, and evening classes offered daily • Bikram Yoga is practiced in a 105 degree room. Be prepared to sweat! All class times are good for beginners. Try honesty and you will receive 100% benefits even as a beginner. New student special: ten days for $20. Call Lora Rosenbaum at 975-0505; bikramyogaa2@gmail.com or bikramyogaannarbor.com.

Ann Arbor School of Yoga Classes with Laurie Blakeney • Ongoing • Classes for all levels and all times of the day. Iyengar yoga is an instruction and technique-based method. Students learn proper, safe alignment, and practice strategy to deepen their posture abilities, mental concentration, and poise. Drop-in and session rates. For cost, call 663-7612; info@annarborschoolofyoga.com or annarborschoolofyoga.com.

Yoga Classes through University of Michigan • Various classes offered in Fall • Classes include yoga flow and restore, yoga for back care, yogilates, power yoga, laughter yoga, and chair yoga. All levels welcome. Pre-registration required. For cost and times, call 647-7888 or mhealthy@umich.edu or mhealthy.umich.edu/exercise.

Yoga Classes at The Yoga Room with Christy DeBurton • The Yoga Room offers a relaxed and intimate atmosphere, an alternative to commercial studios and gyms. Classes are small, a maximum of 12 people, to allow individual attention. For description and fees, call 761-8409; info@christydeburton.com or christydeburton.com.

Monday:

4:30 p.m. • Hatha

5:45 p.m. • Vinyasa

7 p.m. • Hatha

Tuesday:

9:30 a.m. • Hatha

5:45 p.m. • Vinyasa

7 p.m. • Energy Flow

Thursday:

4:30 p.m. • Hatha

6 p.m. • Vinyasa

Saturday:

8:30 a.m. • Vinyasa

10 a.m. Energy Flow

Yoga Classes through Inward Bound Yoga • Jan. 9-Feb. 25 and March 5-April 21

• Inward Bound Yoga offers a variety of approaches to the ancient discipline of yoga, including several levels of hatha yoga instruction, prenatal and postnatal yoga, Ashtanga yoga, meditation for yogis, and several flow classes coordinated with music. For class descriptions and fees, visit ibyoga.com. To contact Inward Bound: info@ibyoga.com.

Monday:

4:30-5:30 p.m. • Viniyoga with Sandy

5:45-7:15 p.m. • Level 2-3 with Martha

Tuesday:

9:30-11 a.m. • Yoga 1-2 with Lynette

11:15 a.m. - 12:45 p.m. • Yoga 1-2 with Roddy

5:45-7:15 p.m. • Yoga Basics 1 with Randy

7:30-8:45 p.m. • Vinyasa Yoga with Caitie

Wednesday:

7:30-8:30 a.m. • Cardio Flow

4-5:15 p.m. • Breath, Meditation, Posture with Caitie

5:45-7:15 p.m. • Yoga 2 with Lynette

7:30-9 p.m. • Yoga 2 with Martha

Thursday:

9:30-11 a.m. • Yoga 1-2 with Laurel

5:30-7:15 p.m. • Flowing Yoga to Music with Aileen

7:30-9 p.m. • Level 1-2 with Barbara

Friday:

7:30-8:30 a.m. • Wake-Up Yoga with Roddy

9:30-11 a.m. • Prenatal Yoga with Marlene

11:15 a.m. -12:30 p.m. • Postnatal Yoga with Marlene

Saturday:

8:15-10 a.m. • Ashtanga Yoga with Jonathan

Yoga Classes for All Levels with Sue Salaniuk, Sally Rutzky, Alicia Rowe, Kristyn Brooks and Pam Lindberg at The Yoga Space • Various dates and times offered, Jan. - April • Iyengar yoga improves balance, strength, flexibility, endurance, and mindfulness. Classes include yoga poses, breathing, and meditation, and accommodate the needs of individuals. Classes offered during weekdays, evenings, and Saturdays. $35, $84, $112 depending on time and dates. For class schedule, call 622-9600; sue@yogospaceannarbor.com or yogospaceannarbor.com.

Vinyasa Yoga Workshop with Alicia Rowe at The Yoga Space • Feb. 3, 6-7:30 p.m.

• Vinyasa yoga sequences flow from one pose to another. Students will learn vinyasa sequences that include standing, seated, forward bending and twisting poses. Need one session of recent Iyengar yoga. $20, pre-register. Call 622-9600; sue@yogospaceannarbor.com or yogospaceannarbor.com.

Mother Daughter Yoga with Alicia Rowe The Yoga Space • Feb. 11, 2:30-3:30 p.m.

• This special class is a fun opportunity for moms and their middle school aged girls to spend some time together moving, stretching and expanding their horizons learning some yogas poses. $18, pre-register. Call 622-6900; sue@yogospaceannarbor.com or yogospaceannarbor.com.

Restorative Yoga with Pam Lindberg at The Yoga Space • Feb. 17, 6-7:30, p.m. • This class teaches how to use the yoga poses to rest, restore and rejuvenate yourself. This type of practice can be deeply rewarding and should become a regular part of your routine. Need one session of Iyengar yoga. $20, pre-register. Call 622-9600; sue@yogospaceannarbor.com or yogospaceannarbor.com.

Free Yoga Class with Sue Salaniuk at The Yoga Space • Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 30, April 27, 6-7:30 p.m. • A free class for anyone, new or experienced, who is interested in yoga. Come find out how good you feel after class. Free. Call Sue at 622-9600; sue@yogospaceannarbor.com or yogospaceannarbor.com.

The Crazy Wisdom Calendar

Yoga (continued)

Yoga Classes with Michele Bond of Yoga House • Anusara blends the science of biomechanics with an openhearted, uplifting philosophy. Anusara brings us Universal Principles of Alignment that are an invaluable aid to learning the postures, deepening your understanding of the body, and developing a yoga practice that is safe, joyful, therapeutic, and fun! Learn to look for the good in yourself as you enjoy a dynamic practice. $13 if registered or $17 drop-in with permission. Call 358-8546; yogahouseannarbor.com.

Open Level Yoga • Sundays 7:30-9 p.m., Thursdays 10-11:30 a.m. or 5:45-7:15 p.m., Saturdays 10-11:30 a.m. • Each student is encouraged to honor their own unique abilities and limitations in this mixed level class based on the teachings of Anusara Yoga.

The Practice • Wednesdays 6-7:30 p.m. • Great for athletes or anyone looking for a strong practice. Enjoy increasing core strength, enhancing flexibility, agility, balance, and mental focus with this fun, energetic practice.

Yoga Essentials • Tuesdays 5:45-7:15 p.m. • For those new to yoga or new to this system. Begin a journey into the principles and philosophy and learn the essentials for a rewarding practice.

Yoga Happy Hour: Restorative Yoga • Fridays 5:45-6:45 p.m. • Learn basic alignment, simple postures and breath, along with some delicious restoratives. Feel your stress melt away as you relax in our peaceful setting. $10 if registered or $12 drop-in with reservation.

Iyengar Yoga Classes at Harmony Yoga of Ann Arbor with Karen Husby-Coupland • Fall session begins in September • Yoga classes taught in the Iyengar method are available for beginners and more experienced students. There is also a Gentle class for those who prefer a slower-paced, more supported approach to the practice of yoga. Classes are small to medium-sized in a friendly atmosphere. $16 drop-in with discounts available for registering for a session. Call 222-9088; Karen@HarmonyYogaAnnArbor.com or HarmonyYogaAnnArbor.com.

Yoga Classes with Ema Stefanova • Classes include open level yoga, yoga and meditation days, cardio yoga, in-depth yoga, and yoga therapy study 100-, 200-, and 500- hour programs. For complete descriptions, dates, times, and cost, call 665-7801; emastefanova@cs.com or yogaandmeditation.com.

Yoga Classes with Evolve Yoga • Ongoing classes offered weekly • A sacred space for physical, mental, and spiritual evolution. Energize the body, expand the mind, and enliven the spirit. Classes include Basic, Flow, Prenatal, Restorative, Slow Flow, Rise and Shine, Vinyasa, Vipassana Meditation, and Yoga at the Wall. $100 for ten classes; $10 drop-in with first class free. Veteran, student, senior, and family discounts. For complete schedule, please call 454-9642; evolve-yoga.net.

Yoga Classes with Sondra O'Donnell and Certified Sun Moon Yoga Teachers • Ongoing classes offered • Classes include Basic, Yoga Nidra, Spirited, Better Backs, Kripalu, and Pranayama. $14 drop-in with reduced rates for registration or package purchase. For more information, please call 929-0274 or sondra@annarboryoga.com or sun-moon-yoga.com.

Introduction to Doga to Benefit Pet Rescue with Cindy Orlandi • Jan. 15, 1 p.m. • Learn to incorporate your pets into your home yoga practice at Yoga 4 Peace. Suzi created the partner yoga for you and your pet know as Doga. Workshop is without your dog. Donation. Call 282-9642; corlandi@chartermi.net or y4peace.org.

Yoga Foundations • Jan. 27-29 and March 9-11 • Weekend retreat includes basic yoga classes including gentle hatha, basic meditation lessons and lite yoga philosophy. Get an overview of the eight limbs of yoga. $60 donation. Call Jim 989-989-4107; office@songofthemorning.org or songofthemorning.org.

Yoga Immersion Program with Christy DeBurton • Second weekend each month, Jan. - April and one Wednesday evening each month • This shorter time commitment program offers instruction in yoga techniques, teaching methodology, anatomy, yoga philosophy and practice teaching opportunities. Ideal for anyone interested in deepening their yoga practice, considering teaching, elapsed instructors ready to return to teaching or current teachers who want to sharpen their skills. $525 for early registration. Call 761-8409; info@christydeburton.com or yogaroomannarbor.com.

Wild Goose Energy Workshop with Wasantha Young • Tuesdays, Jan. 10 - April 3, 6-7:15 p.m. • There are four major characteristics: health, longevity, imagery and meditation. As a moving style of Chinese Yoga, this form engages all of your senses and is energizing and strengthening, while increasing flexibility. $180. Call 741-0695; info@peacefuldragonschool.com or peacefuldragonschool.com.

Ongoing Yoga Classes at Be In Awe Yoga • Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, 9:15-10:45 a.m.; Monday 8-9:30 p.m.; Wednesday 6-7:30 p.m.; Friday 4-5 p.m. • Classical Hatha Yoga Training. Drop-In $15 reduced rates for senior/students and packages. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Beginning Yoga Course - Introduction to Yoga • Feb. 2, 9, 16, 23; 6-7:30 p.m. • Introduction to the principles and practices of yoga with emphasis on developing deep breathing, relaxation and concentration during practice. This classical training teaches breathing exercises, the sun salutation and traditional program of the 12 basic asanas. $60. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Advanced Beginners Yoga Course • March 1, 8, 15, 22, 6-7:30 p.m. • For yoga practitioners who have learned the basics and are looking to deepen and enrich their practice. $60. Call Jody 213-0435; info@beinaweyoga.com or beinaweyoga.com.

Beginning Iyengar Yoga with David Rosenberg • Mondays Jan. 23-March 26, 6-7:30 p.m.; Thursdays Jan. 26-March 29, 7-8:30 p.m.; Saturdays Jan. 21-March 24th, 10-11:30 a.m. • These classes are taught through the Ann Arbor Public Schools Community Rec and Ed Program. Experience invigorating yoga postures using the methods of BKS Iyengar to strengthen the body, create a feeling of well-being, reduce stress and release tension. $99 for 9 weeks. Call 662-6282; massage4@aol.com or aareced.

Gentle Therapeutic Yoga Classes with Janine Polley • Jan. 10 - April 27; Tuesdays 1-2:15 p.m. and Thursdays 7-8:15 p.m. • Gentle yoga: if you have aches, pain and stiffness this class is the class for you. Great for arthritis, fibromyalgia, back pain and soothing stress relief. Call 747-9635; jdpolley@comcast.net or sun-moon-yoga.com.

A Weekend of Yoga with Desire Rumbaugh • March 30-April 1 • Simple yoga therapeutics, as well as asana classes will be offered. Practitioners of all levels and all styles of yoga are invited to come together for learning, healing and fun. See yogahouseannarbor.com for times and more information. Call Michele 358-8546; michele@yogahouseannarbor.com.

Ebb and Flow Therapeutic Massage & Bodywork

Mary D Matias massage therapist & owner

Please call for an appointment

734.644.2585

ebbandflowmassage@gmail.com

ebbandflowtherapies.com

*2048 Washtenaw Ave #2
Ypsilanti, Michigan
(in Maxton Plaza)*

Learn Herbal Medicine, Wildcrafting and Foraging

classes, twitter, cookbook, and articles www.holisticwisdom.org twitter:wildcrafting regular blogger for AnnArbor.com

Linda Diane Feldt

743-662-4902 ldfeldt@holisticwisdom.org

"providing an integrated approach to holistic health care since 1980"

Teachers, Lecturers, Workshop Leaders and the Centers

Jody Tull is a certified therapeutic yoga instructor who combines music therapy with the ancient healing power of yoga. She is the founder and director of the Be in Awe Yoga Center.

Deanna Bednar has been natural building since 1997. She has illustrated several natural building books, including Hand-Sculpted House, and has her Master's in social ecology.

Michelle Belanger is the author of over a dozen books on psychic, paranormal and occult topics.

Dave Bell is a graduate of the New Seminary in New York City and is a board member of the Council of Interfaith Congregations.

Tricia Bellew a naturopathic intern in her final year at Naturopathic School of the Healing Arts in Ann Arbor.

Rae Bird has 13 years of creative writing experience. She is an author and the founder and educational director of The Women's Writing Project.

Leslie Blackburn, MS, is a Sacred Sexual Healer & Transformational Guide, international speaker, seminar leader, artist and yogini.

Laurie Blakeney has taught Iyengar yoga in Ann Arbor since 1977. She received her Advanced Certificate directly from BKS Iyengar and studies annually in Pune, India at the Iyengar Institute.

Chrissie Blaze is an international speaker, author of nine published books, radio show host and astrologer.

Carol Blotter has been practicing insight meditation since 1989 and has been teaching since 1999. She is a teacher for the Forest Way and Deep Spring Center.

John Bodary, Ma, RPP, founded Polarity Center in 1987 and has trained hundreds of Polarity practitioners. He maintains a private practice in Livonia.

Michele Bond has over 500 hours training with top teachers of Anusara yoga, with a background in martial arts, dance, competitive synchronized swimming, gymnastics, stunt fighting, and swordplay.

Cristo Bowers is a clairvoyant, spiritual teacher, and healer who has studied spirituality and religion for over 20 years.

Patty Brennan, Director of Center for Childbearing Year, has advocated for nearly 30 years as a childbirth educator, doula trainer, midwife, nonprofit executive, and program visionary. She is a DONA International birth and postpartum doula trainer and author. Patty recently founded Michigan Doula Connection, a nonprofit web-based community linking volunteer doulas with low-income families.

Barbara Brodsky has been practicing meditation since 1960. She has dual roots in the Buddhist and Quaker traditions and her insight and vipassana meditation teaching reflects this balance. She is a channel for Aaron and founded Deep Spring Center in 1989.

Lorna Brown has offered workshops in relaxation, meditation, altered states, metaphysics, and the spiritual journey since 1972. She is a Melchizedek priest, spiritual coach, and healer, and performs wedding ceremonies.

Kapila Castoldi has studied meditation under the guidance of Indian spiritual teacher Sri Chinmoy for over 25 years and is head of the Sri Chinmoy Centre of Ann Arbor.

John Bodary, Ma, RPP, founded Polarity Center in 1987 and has trained hundreds of Polarity practitioners. He maintains a private practice in Livonia.

Center for the Childbearing Year is a community of childbearing families and professionals who serve them. The center provides holistic childbirth preparation, doula certification through DONA International, birth and postpartum doula workshops, professional and business development programs, MotherBaby drop-in groups, a lending library, online resources and a Breast feeding Center.

Dennis Chernin, MD, MPH, has taught meditation and breathing techniques for over 30 years. He is board certified in preventive medicine, has a private medical practice in Ann Arbor, and is author of How to Meditate Using Chakras, Mantras, and Breath.

Carol Clarke, CMT RM CH, is a USUI Reiki Master and TAOMCHI Master Crystologist. She has worked crystals for over 5 years and Reiki for 7 years, helping others realize their potential for healing themselves.

Clonlara School's mission is to provide programs and services that recognize and support a learner's curiosity, strengths, interests and talents as the foundation of his/her educational experience.

Lorri Coburn, MSW, worked as a psychotherapist for 25 years and now conducts workshops on ACIM. She is author of Breathing Free: How Forgiveness and A Course in Miracles Can Set You Free.

Tom Cowan is a shamanic practitioner specializing in Celtic visionary and healing techniques. He is a teacher, author, lecturer, and tour leader.

Dorothy Ann Coyne has been a student and practitioner of yoga and meditation since 1971. She is a certified Kripalu Yoga teacher and senior teacher of meditation for Deep Spring Center.

Karlin Danielsen, PhD, that helps others connect to their internal sources of guidance and healing through meditation, shamanic journey, breath work and energy balancing.

Paula d'Arcy is an author, speaker, playwright and former therapist.

Joya D'Cruz is a licensed Marriage and Family Therapist and Certified Focusing Trainer practicing individual and relational psychotherapy.

Christy DeBurton, RYT, has been teaching yoga since 1998. She has teaching certifications from Omega Institute in NY and the Center for Yoga in MI.

Detroit Irish Music Association (DIMA) mission is to preserve and promote traditional Irish culture, specifically music, song and dance. Also storytelling.

Ronda Diegel, Ph.D., is a licensed psychologist, Enneagram teacher in the Narrative Tradition, yoga teacher and student of Spirit Rock's Mindfulness Yoga and Meditation Training Program.

Krista Dragun is a certified Birthing From Within mentor, mother, and birth and postpartum doula.

Carol Dunitz has a doctorate in Speech Communication and Theatre. She is a writer, composer, speaker and actor.

Kate Durda, MA, is a shamanic practitioner who provides healing and teaching services, training from beginning to advanced healing methods, shamanic journey circles since 1990, and community healing ceremonies and rituals.

Erica Dutton has been meditating for ten years and has been a meditation teacher for over three years.

Don Elwert is a long time student and teacher of metaphysical ideas and practices with a strong theosophical emphasis.

Aaron "is a spirit who has been a Buddhist monk and scholar in many previous lifetimes and is a being of great love, compassion, wisdom, and gentle humore. In his final lifetime, he was a Vipassana meditation master in the Theravadin tradition" and is channeled through Barbara Brodsky.

Don Allen is a musician, teacher, and practitioner of esoteric healing arts, and is a Drum Circle Facilitator and Health Rhythms Facilitator.

Christine Allyson is a certified Hypnotherapist, life coach, speaker and author with over 25 years of experience as an Interpersonal Skills Trainer and Process Change Consultant.

Dr. Diane Babalas has used a gentle, yet profound method of chiropractic care since 2000.

Jeannie Ballew has been teaching, training and/or coaching writers for over 20 years. She has a masters degree in English and owns Edit Prose, a book coaching and editing service.

Beth Barbeau, BS, is a traditional midwife, childbirth and breast feeding educator, and instructor in the Holistic Labor Companion program at the Naturopathic Institute in Mt. Pleasant. With nearly 20 years experience in the field of birth, she is owner of Indigo Forest.

Ann Barden is a teacher of vipassana meditation through Ann Arbor Adult Ed programs, Deep Spring Center in Ann Arbor, and Meditation Center of San Miguel in Mexico.

The background information listed here pertains specifically to individuals and centers whose classes and workshops and events are listed in this current issue of the Crazy Wisdom Calendar. If you are a holistic/spiritual/psychological growth practitioner in the area, but you don't regularly lead classes or workshops, you can still be listed in our Holistic Resource Guide on the Web. Go to AnnArborHolistic.com.

An Excerpt from Pat Fero's Sacred Marching Orders: Imagining the Solar Feminine at the Dawn of a New Age

Ann Arbor psychotherapist Pat Fero, L.M.S.W., recently published her third book, Sacred Marching Orders, which is an introduction to the energy of the "solar feminine." In it, she explores how women's socialization into powerlessness under the patriarchal paradigm has created a devastating loss of the rich resources of women at a time when these are desperately needed. Sacred Marching Orders is her explanation of why now is the time for women to step into their power, remain standing in their power, and march forth together as powerful women in service to the planet. What follows are some small sections from her book.

What is the Stronghold of the Lunar Feminine?

Under the 5,000-year period of patriarchal reign, the lunar has been the only face of the feminine available to us. It is human nature to seek safety and survival. But, these are unprecedented times. The safety and survival of the entire planet is at risk.

The lunar is beautiful. She holds tremendous power, the power of Mother Earth, and the Divine Mother. But Mother Earth also demonstrates for us other powers: crashing thunder, bolts of lightning, tsunamis, tornadoes, hurricanes. Mother Earth is more than gentle, receptive, nurturing. We don't know the full extent of how we have affected the weather with our violation of her, but we do know that there is a force of Mother Nature that is not exclusively lunar.

The lunar has been around for thousands of years. We've learned how to adapt to survive in the machinery of the patriarchy. This includes engaging in countless ways of relinquishing, denying, and hiding our power — even from ourselves. We are so acclimated to it, we don't even know we're doing it, or how to do otherwise. As women in a patriarchal world, our function has been to serve others and to subjugate ourselves. In many ways, it's all we know how to do. There are lots of games we play with ourselves; all the while quietly and obediently squelching our voices, compromising, nurturing and serving.

What I've discovered is that we have become so acclimated to this — and so debilitated by it — that we cling to this familiarity because we've developed deficits in functioning. We don't know how to access our power in a way that allows us to function fearlessly in the world.

The solar feminine carries the powerful energy that is our birthright as women, but we're reluctant to access it because the familiar is so inviting and seems so safe. We remain safe and insulated in our circles, in our homes, relying on men to take care of us financially and emotionally.

The Emergence of the Solar Feminine

The new energies of the solar feminine came onto the planet in 2005, in the 11th hour of any hope to reclaim our power and our planet. It's up to us to decide whether we will set aside our denial, defensiveness, and comfort with the familiar, to access the energy that is now available to us to accomplish this important mission.

Pat Fero's third book, Sacred Marching Orders, was recently published. Crazy Wisdom has invited her to discuss her new book on Tuesday, March 27th, at 7 pm, and engage with those attending, as part of our winter/spring Local Authors' Nights. She is a psychotherapist with a special focus on women's power and resiliency.

Now is the time for us to step into our power, remain standing in our power, and march forth together as powerful women in service to the planet.

Power is a maligned word. We tend to automatically connect the word power with "abuse of power." Under the patriarchal paradigm, the dominator model of society, this is a common association. But wielding power over others is a violation, not true power, and we are now living through a shift in how power is held. Women's power is key.

Feminine power is not a power over, but power with. Collaboration is the basis of the new expression of power, resulting in a feminine leadership style that acknowledges vulnerability and offers support and deep reciprocal listening. This style leads to a feeling of connection, rather than competition, which moves us closer to Oneness and community.

The power of connectedness is the kind of power that is necessary now. More individual power at cross-purposes will only make the crises on the planet more extreme. Now is the time to access feminine power on a planetary scale. Our survival as a species is being threatened. We must tend and befriend each other worldwide to buttress this evolutionary leap.

Women as a Force of Nature

Throughout the writing process of this book, I remained committed to conveying a sense of urgency without eliciting fear. As you read further, I invite you to hear this message with the vehement urgency with which it is written. Let me highlight the most crucial elements of these extraordinary times.

As energetic beings living in a universe of energy, there are numerous methods for recharging. One of the most concrete, valuable, and tangible ways to refuel is to focus on beauty. And the beauty of nature is definitely the most powerful source of renewal. Plugging ourselves into the beauty and energy field of the natural world nourishes us and raises our vibration — simple, clear, concrete, something we can consciously choose. This exercise reestablishes our deep powerful knowing of the sacredness of all life, restoring our severed roots, for ourselves and for all life.

As we women reclaim our sacred connection with Mother Earth and all life, we reclaim our power and with the force of Mother Nature say, "enough is enough!"

It is up to us women now — who carry the memories of the forces that quieted us — to reclaim our power with a fierceness that demonstrates the capacity to reverse this trajectory of death prevailing over the sacredness of life. Only we can do this, because we women are a force of nature as we restore our roots and reclaim the sacredness of the natural world.

Patricia Fero, L.M.S.W., supports and empowers women in their awakening as their "Divine Assignment" in service to the planet. She facilitates groups, workshops, and retreats, and speaks nationally on topics of resiliency and women's power. She also maintains a coaching and 30-year psychotherapy practice in Ann Arbor. Sacred Marching Orders is her third book. Mining for Diamonds and What Happens When Women Wake Up? were her previous books. They're all available at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. Pat Fero can be reached at 734-973-0817, or pat_fero@yahoo.com. Her website is at: www.patriciafero.com.

Collaboration is the basis of the new expression of power, resulting in a feminine leadership style that acknowledges vulnerability and offers support and deep reciprocal listening.

We've learned how to adapt to survive in the machinery of the patriarchy. This includes engaging in countless ways of relinquishing, denying, and hiding our power — even from ourselves.

Teachers, Lecturers, Workshop Leaders and the Centers

Frances Farmer has taught for the Ohashi institute since 2002. Her professional experience includes Shiatsu therapy, nutrition, massage therapy, traditional Chinese medicine, Tai Chi, movement and dance.

Linda Diane Feldt is a Holistic Health Practitioner, wild crafter, forager, People's Food Co-op board member, and teacher. She has over 20 years experience teaching the community about plants, herbs, and holistic medicine.

Patricia Fero is a psychotherapist and author.

Lori Fithian is founder and creator of Drummunity and has been facilitating drum circles and rhythm workshops since 1998. A student of drumming tradition for 20 years, her teachers include Arthur Hull and Barry Bateman. She has made a career out of her passion for building community by bringing people together to drum.

Jennifer Flowers-Gutman is a Reiki Master and teacher. She has practiced Reiki since 2003 and is also a massage therapist.

Deb Foggio, owner of The Center for Integrative Well Being, is an intuitive Life Path consultant who assists people in discovering, developing, and living lives of purpose and prosperity. She is an intuitive, counselor, life coach, Systemic Constellations facilitator, teacher, and Bach Remedy consultant.

John Friedlander is a psychic, author, and teacher with degrees from Duke and Harvard Law. He has studied with Jane Roberts and recently published his third book with Gloria Hemsher, Psychic Psychology: Energy Skills for Life and Relationships.

Melanie Fuscaldo, MA, LPC, NCC, is a counselor/coach specializing in career, life, and spiritual transformations.

Cynthia Gabriel, PhD, is a Medical Anthropologist, doula, educator, author, and mother who recently published Natural Hospital Birth: The Best of Both Worlds.

Amy Garber has offered psychic intuitive readings for 10 years, is a Reiki Master, clairvoyant and medium who communicates with your soul, others in your life, spirit guides and departed loved ones.

Bronwen Gates, PhD, has been an herbalist, scientist, poet, and intuitive to facilitate balance, harmony, and transformation for students and clients for more than 30 years.

Nanci Rose Gerler is a psychic, channel, medium, and light-worker with over 20 years experience and owns Crystal Clear Expressions.

Jennifer Giacomelli received certification from the Desert Institute of Healing Arts in AZ in 1997 and worked at the resort/spa Miraval. She then went to Thailand to become certified in Nuad Bo-Rarn Thai massage.

Ann-Margaret Giovino, personal strength trainer and certified postural alignment specialist, is a certified Egoscue affiliate.

Philip Glass has musical experience in operas, symphonies and composition with his own ensemble and has collaborated with artists ranging from Twyla Tharp to Allen Ginsberg, Woody Allen and David Bowie.

Heather Glidden owns Willow Wellness Studio in Ann Arbor, teaches movement, does body work and is a certified life coach.

Jocelyn Granger is director and founder of AAIMT. Since 1982, she has had extensive advanced training in various therapeutic massage modalities and is also a teacher.

Mary Grannan has been a meditator since 1977, began practicing vipassana in 2001, and joined Deep Spring's teacher training program in 2004.

Karen Greenberg has been a teacher of Kabbalah for over a decade. She has a degree in Physical Therapy and has danced professionally.

Linda Greene, RPP, has been a Polarity therapist for 12 years. Her work includes energy work, spirituality, crystals, and Emotional Freedom Technique, with a recent focus on trauma and addiction.

Nirmala Hanke, MD, is a longtime meditator and teacher of meditation at Lighthouse Meditation Center in Whitmore Lake. She is a psychiatrist who integrates meditation, Reiki healing, and other spiritual practices with psychotherapy.

Su Hansen is a certified Enneagram teacher in the Narrative Tradition, a psychotherapist, and founder of the Enneagram Center of Ann Arbor and Relax Ann Arbor.

Nancy Harknett is a Reiki practitioner and master teacher for 17 years, a student of certified clinical aromatherapy, and practitioner of Young Living Essential Oils since 2002.

Craig Harvey has been organizing peace vigils since 2001 and has offered workshops on various types of prayer, meditation, and contemplation.

Kathy Held has been a licensed Brain Gym instructor since 2004 and a Bal-A-Vis-X instructor since 2007.

Geoff Hoebbel is a popular lecturer who specializes in ancient astrological techniques.

Bill Hubert has created unique programs for struggling middle school students and presented BAVX to over 13,000 people.

Dennis Hunt has read ten of Ken Wilber's books and participated in three seminars through Integral Institute.

Reverend Lela Iduna started her spiritual training at the Center of Light in New Haven, CT in 2004. She is now an ordained minister with The Center of Light in Ann Arbor.

Indigo Forest: Growing Healthy Naturally provides one-stop support through classes and products that nurture healthy pregnancies, parenting, and lifestyles.

Interfaith Center for Spiritual Growth creates an atmosphere and structure to foster and stimulate our individual and collective spiritual growth.

Jewel Heart was founded by Gelek Rimpoche and is dedicated to the preservation of Tibetan Buddhism and to bringing the practice of this rich tradition within the context of contemporary life to everyone.

Maret Johnson, RN for over 30 years, a traveler on the journey of self discovery who is willing to share and learn from others.

Madolyn Kaminaski is an Advanced Master Gardener, Chair of Herb Study at Matthaei and member of Michigan Herb Associates.

Esther Kennedy, OP, MSW, is the director of Spirit Mountain Retreat in Idyllwilde, CA.

Karen Kerns, RPP, RCST, became a certified Polarity instructor in 1997 and maintains a private practice in Ann Arbor.

Shala Kilmer offers private readings and teaches various development classes.

Diane Kimball, BA, MA, is a yoga instructor at Deep Spring Center in the Iyengar tradition since the 1990's. She has studied Kripalu yoga at Kripalu Center in MA, and teaches world languages, childbirth education, parenting and nutrition workshops, and chakra yoga workshops.

Carole Kirby, LMSW, has over 30 years experience as therapist, coach, and inspirational teacher. She is a certified Imago therapist and workshop presenter specializing in couples therapy, but also works with individuals and families.

Greg Knollmeyer is a t'ai chi teacher, healer, certified in Relexolo-chi and Psych-K. He has offered classes at the Spiral Chi Center and healing work in his Ann Arbor office for 6 years.

Dave and Pat Krajovic are certified Transformational Breath Facilitators, senior trainers, certified massage therapists and have advanced training in CranioSacral Therapy, Pranic Healing and Esoteric Healing.

Marie Krause has many years of beading experience and a background in fine jewelry.

Linda Kurtz, RCST, CMT, has practiced bodywork since 1995 and Biodynamic Craniosacral Therapy since 2002. She has a daily vipassana meditation practice and is past president of the Biodynamic Craniosacral Therapy Assn.

Lamaze Family Center Ann Arbor offers classes from pregnancy to preschool.

Fred Lauck is a trial lawyer and author.

David Lawson has practiced various forms of meditation since 1985 and has taught insight meditation since 1998 in meditation retreats, classes, workshops, prison, and university and community education settings.

Dr. Jonathan Lazar is a chiropractor who completed his education at Palmer College of Chiropractic's Academic Health Center.

Frank Levey has been a student/teacher of natural healing arts and wilderness living skills for most of his life. He is a certified facilitator of Transformational Breathwork.

Jack and Susan Lewis are spiritual teachers, natural light workers, aura photographers and interpreters using knowledge of the Law of Attraction and Edgar Cayce in their practice.

Mary Light, ND MH LMT, Director of the Naturopathic School has studied, taught and practiced energy balancing and polarity since 1992.

Pam Lindberg is a certified Iyengar teacher with six years of experience.

Ellen Livingston, MA, RYT, shares her passion for health creation through Living Yoga. She is a natural raw food diet and yoga coach and teacher.

Rev. Thomas Lumpkin is facilitator of Dorothy Day House in Detroit.

Jeanne Mackey, MSW, is a lifelong musician, community-builder, and change-maker.

Susan Major is a reading/dyslexia specialist and tutor for the past 25 years.

Dr. Svetlana Masgutova is a Doctor in Developmental and Educational Psychology. She is currently a director of a movement development and reflex integration institute and a neuro-sensory-motor and reflex integration institute.

Debbie Mast is a 25 year apprentice with experience teaching and designing ceremony for people interested in the Twisted Hairs way, co-leads at the Flowering Tree Lodge and created The Women's Hoop.

Tiffany Mazurek is a psychotherapist and bodyworker who integrates traditional and spiritual therapies for healing.

Jane McClaren is founder of Avastar Intl Institute, Systemic Family Constellations facilitator, and offers Reiki and esoteric energy healing.

Barb McConnell, LPN, is a Certified Healing Touch Practitioner/Instructor (Levels 1-3).

Quentin McMullen, MD, and Molly McMullen-Laird, MD, are both physicians trained in internal medicine in the U.S. and in Anthroposophic Medicine in Europe.

Phil Mead is an astrologer and historian also interested in ancient astrology.

Teachers, Lecturers, Workshop Leaders and the Centers

Gary Merel, graduate of NY College of Healthcare Professionals with an MS in Oriental Medicine and certified in Enzyme Nutrition from Loomis Institute in Madison, is a practitioner at Ann Arbor Holistic Health, a guest lecturer at Univ. of MI Medical School, and adjunct faculty member at Washtenaw Community College where he has taught Oriental Medicine.

Michelle Millman, MFA, has trained in and taught the Classic Method of Pilates for Carola Trier, Romana Krazanovska and Clara Pilates in NYC for over 40 years while working in dance.

Kathy Moore is a performing singer and songwriter. She is a board certified music therapist, certified teacher of the Alexander Technique, and teacher for 30 years in her Ann Arbor studio, Univ. of MI, and EMU.

Rev. Charles Morris is pastor of St. Christopher Church of Detroit.

Glenn Mullin studied Dharamsala for 12 years, translator and author of many books on Tibetan Buddhist art, history and culture, and is the director and main meditation teacher of the Stone Lotus Tantra Buddhism center.

Paula Neys has studied with Caroline Myss, author of Sacred Contracts, and is a certified Achetypal Consultant through the CMED Institute of Chicago.

Cindy Orlandi, RYT, took Suzi's Doga teacher training in 2011 after completing yoga teacher training with Jim Pero, RYT, and having a home yoga practice with her own dogs since the 1970s.

John Orr received his training in Thailand and India and was a Buddhist monk for eight years. He has lead retreats since 1980, and lives in North Carolina where he does transpersonal counseling and teaches at Duke.

Lucinda Orwoll, PhD, is a licensed psychologist with a holistic and spiritual approach to psychotherapy.

Ruth Owens is a healer, message and Reiki energy healer.

Craig Parian trained at the International School of Shiatsu under Saul Goodman, and has studied yoga philosophy and third level mastery of Himalayan Bowl Healing.

Glenn Pailthorp is a clairvoyant trained in spiritualist and shamanic traditions. He is certified in Hypnotherapy and NLP for 17 years.

Sifu Genie Parker has trained and taught Wu Style tai chi chuan for over 20 years. She is a disciple of Grandmaster Eddie Wu Kwong Yu, head of the fifth generation of the Wu family and gatekeeper of the Wu style.

Kristin Pearce, RN, MS, is a life coach, Reconnective Healing Practitioner, and Therapist.

Sally Pinchock is a Spiritual seeker and Reiki Master.

Janine Polley, RN, RYT, is an experienced yoga teacher.

Ellen Porter, M.Ac., L.Ac., Dipl.Ac.(NCCAOM), Nationally Board Certified, Michigan Registered Acupuncturist, Masters Degree from TAI SOPHIA Institute. Practicing Five Element, TCM and NADA Auricular acupuncture.

Progressive Education Consortium exists to advance the field of education through brokering new and empowering educational connections throughout Washtenaw Co; linking alternative educational providers and enhancing both the experience of our learners and the staff who provide the education.

Mara Radzwickas member and past president of The Theosophical Society of Detroit, after graduating from a career in the creative side of advertising.

Marc Rafferty has many years of beading experience and a background in fine jewelry.

Erin Reas is a pharmacist, Life Health and Wellness Coach, certified Tai Chi practice leader and a long time student of healing modalities.

Tammy Renner leads singing from the heart - sharing love, healing and compassion to those who sing and those who receive the gift of song.

Deb Rhizal is an experienced birth doula and family wellness coach. She has attended over 200 births and facilitated meaningful birth preparation since 2004.

Gelek Rimpoche is the Founder and Spiritual Director of Jewel Heart. Among the last generation of incarnate lamas tutored by the great masters in Old Tibet, Rimpoche's command of western culture allows him to convey the Tibetan Buddhist tradition with wisdom, kindness and wit.

Joel Robbins, Dipl. OM, LAc, is board certified in Acupuncture, Herbal Medicine, Qigong and Asian Bodywork, Registered Acupuncturist and certified Tai Chi, Ba Gua and Qigong Instructor.

Barbara Robertson is the Director/Owner of The Breastfeeding Center of Ann Arbor. She is a board-certified Lactation Consultant and breastfeeding educator.

If instead of a gem, or even a flower, we should cast the gift of a loving thought into the heart of a friend, that would be giving as the angels give.

~ George MacDonald

Libby Robinson has been teaching mindfulness-based interventions since 2003 and trained with Jon Kabat-Zinn and at Univ. MA Ctr. for Mindfulness. She has been practicing mindfulness meditation since 1979.

Andrew Rogers is Pastor of Holy Trinity Ukrainian Orthodox Church. He plays music he channels after a prayer to the Angels and Guides to play the music that's specifically for the person(s) highest good.

David Rosenberg has been teaching yoga since 1993 and has studied yoga at the Ramamani Iyengar Memorial Yoga Institute.

Alicia Rowe is a certified Iyengar teacher with nine years experience.

Lindy Royer is the founder of Park Meadows Pilates in Denver, a Physical therapist, Pilates Master Trainer and Balanced Body Faculty Member.

Jonathan Rudinger, RN LMT and founder of PetMassage, has worked in the canine massage areas since the mid-1990s. He facilitates workshops and home-study courses.

Desiree Rumbaugh has 20 years experience in Anusara Yoga and was one of their first certified teachers.

Juliana Sanchez is a natural health educator, student of Naturopathy, and mother, managing Indigo Forest in addition to providing comprehensive naturopathic consultations.

Dan Sarasin has a life long interest in matters of religion, healing and meditation with emphasis on the metaphysical.

Self Realization Meditation Healing Centre, founded by Mata Yogananda Mahasaya Dharma, is a nonprofit near Lansing. Its aim is to give support to those struggling or suffering in life on any level, and to assist those who seek inner knowledge and personal growth in the pursuit of peace, health, and happiness.

Lee Schaberg has completed level one and two at Oneness University in Fiji. Oneness Trainer certification from University of India, 2010.

Alycia Schoof a naturopathic intern in her final year at Naturopathic School of the Healing Arts in Ann Arbor.

Shining Lakes Grove, ADF, is the Ann Arbor branch of Arndraiocht Fein (ADF), and international Druidic church.

Lynn Sipher, LMSW, ACSW, has been providing psychotherapy to individuals, couples, and families for 25 years, and has taught mindfulness classes for six years.

Prema Lindsay Smith, RN, BSN, is the proprietor of Inner Balance Therapy for five years. She has been in private practice for over three decades, specializing in craniofacial therapy, massage, and bodywork, and is faculty member of AAIMT, teaching for 11 years.

Song of the Morning in Vanderbilt, MI is a Yoga Retreat of Excellence since 1970. Called a "haven of rest" by its founder Yogacharya, it is a sanctuary to all who seek relaxation and spiritual refreshment.

Gari Stein is an active member of the early childhood community. Degreed in child development and dance, she is a motivational and inspirational speaker, clinician, educator, specialist, and consultant since 1966.

Dr. Joshua Stockwell is a chiropractor who graduated from Palmer College of Chiropractic after spending 7 years as a radiographic technician.

Lynnette Stoffeld is an apprentice on the Sweet Medicine Sundance Path. She has studied and walked these teaching since 1982.

Susana Stoica, Ph.D. is an engineer, inventor, author and energy healer who has worked with people from all around the world and made presentations to lay people, nurses and UofM Ann Arbor medical students.

Kate Stroud is a mother of two, childbirth educator, massage therapist, DONA birth and postpartum doula, DONA birth doula trainer, PRG facilitator, and artist who has worked with birthing families for over 10 years.

Melanie Svoboda, SND, has served as a teacher, novice director, and president of her congregation. She also ministered in the Jesuit novitiate in Detroit for six years. She's a writer and author.

Dawn Swartz, BA, M Div, is a song leader turned mediator and is an ordained minister.

Peg Tappe has been meditating as a member of Deep Spring since 2002 and has gone through their teacher training.

Marc Terebello, DC, has over 30 years of holistic healthcare experience and has been honored with 14 awards from the Michigan Chiropractic Society.

Janene Ternes is a commissioned spiritual director, teacher, and founder of Prayer in Motion.

The Breastfeeding Center of Ann Arbor LLC, offers comprehensive support services for breastfeeding mothers and babies including: private consultations, free MotherBaby support group and breastfeeding-related retail.

Stephanie Tighe, MSW, is a shamanic practitioner who provides healing and teaching services, training from beginning to advanced methods, shamanic journey circles since 1990, and community healing ceremonies and rituals.

Mary Tillinghast, mother of four raised on homeopathy, has managed Castle Remedies for 27 years and, trained by Dr. Lev Linkner, has been a teacher of homeopathy for 25 years.

Judy Lee Trautman is a certified leader of dances, an initiated Sufi, and ordained Sufi Cherag.

David Trombley is a local poet who has discovered ways yoga can open us to our creative source.

Jody Tull is a certified therapeutic yoga instructor with 16 years music and yoga teaching experience in Europe, India, and the U.S. She received her Masters in Music Education from Columbia and owns Be in Awe.

Teachers, Lecturers, Workshop Leaders and the Centers

Karen Ufer is celebrating 19 years of yoga instruction in the tradition of BKS Iyengar.

University Musical Society is one of the oldest performing arts presenters in the country and is committed to connecting audiences with performing artists from around the world in uncommon and engaging experiences.

Lynn Vaughn, PhD, has 25+ years experience guiding couples who sincerely struggle to communicate their whole inner truth.

Violeta Viviano, BS, is a teacher in John Friedlander's system and an advanced student for over 20 years.

Cam Vozar is a psychotherapist in private practice for over 25 years, and has worked with individuals and couples focusing on trauma, recovery, spirituality, and EMDR.

Priscilla Warner is a best selling author.

Bonnie Watson is an experienced Spiritual healer and Spiritual healing instructor.

Jo Ann Weber, CMSW, is a certified social worker and Enneagram Teacher in the Narrative Tradition.

Lou Weir has been doing "inner critic" work for more than ten years in the Ridhwan School's Diamond Approach to Realization. He has been a meditation student for over 15 years and works as an attorney in Brighton and Ann Arbor.

Sue Weir has a background in Gurdjieff, zen practice, and insight meditation practice, and has been teaching meditation at Deep Spring Center since 1999.

Randy Weiser has been a Tarot reader and teacher for 35 years.

Christia West is a graduate of AAIMT, an instructor, and in private practice since 1999. She is Nationally Certified through the NCBTMB.

Suzu Wienckowski is Reiki Master and Registered Massage Therapist who has 30 years experience in healing arts, with Reiki as a focus since 1993. She teaches traditional Usui Reiki Healing and is a member of the Reiki Alliance.

Jackie Williams is an energy worker, spirit medium and artist of the Watcher Angel Tarot deck.

Carla Wilson, MSW, has more than 20 years experience in criminal justice. She is an author, inspirational speaker, guided meditation facilitator and life coach in jails, prisons, churches and educational institutions.

Eve Wilson is an intuitive able to perceive the bodies aura and lifetimes to determine the cause of disease. She has been creator and director of The Healer Development Program since 1986.

David Winfree has a teaching ministry through Interfaith Center, focusing on the dissolution of ego, forgiveness, releasing attachments, higher states of consciousness, enlightenment, oneness, and love.

Dale, MS, and Christine Wright-Lonheim, MA, MFT, Shamanic Practitioner and Systemic Constellation Facilitator.

Sifu Linda Wolslau is a Tai Chi Master with 35 years experience.

Wasantha Young is a master and scholar in the art of T'ai Chi Ch'uan and Chi Kung. She has formal instruction in Taoist and Buddhist meditation, certification in Acupressure and a Master's degree from the Institute of Transpersonal Psychology.

Karla Zarley, RN, CHTP, has 30 years experience in preventative and holistic nursing care and is a Certified Healing Touch Practitioner. She has been in private practice for 13 years as a professional healer and educator.

Lauren Zinn is the program coordinator of "living library," an interfaith leader, educator and program developer in the areas of faith, spirituality and personal growth.

Lisa Zucker began meditating in 1999 and has been practicing vipassana with Deep Spring Center since 2001. She joined their teacher training program in 2006 and has since taught classes in meditation.

Sing with Me!

Since 1990

More Than a Class
Research based program nourishes your child's brain & affects total development.

Instrument Exploration

Mixed Age Classes
Birth - 5

$30 Discount
For New Families

Baby and You

A Special Class for Baby and the Grown-Ups Who Love Them...

A warm, gentle, nurturing environment of activities to support your daily routine.

Together we will bounce, play instruments,
listen, rock, folk dance,
share hugs & laughter.

The More We Get Together

Nurturing Relationships Through Music, Play, Books & Art
A Resource & Activity Guide

Staff Development
Concerts and Assemblies
Pre-K - 2nd Grade

Gari Stein

garistein@aol.com

www.little-folks-music.com

ph/fax 734-741-1510

An Excerpt from Lorna Brown's Dragonfly Dialogues: Memories of an Awakening Spirit

Local author Lorna Brown released her spiritual memoir last summer. Lorna grew up in a traditional Christian church, and in 1972, at age 32, was introduced to the ideas of José Silva, among other New Thought philosophers, prompting her to create her own belief system and delve deeply into her spiritual growth. Lorna is now a minister, ordained as a Melchizedek Priestess, and has been teaching workshops on topics such as Munay-Ki and Sacred Geometry for the past 18 years.

Her book, which is written as a dialogue between herself and Spirit, as represented by a dragonfly, recounts this journey and encourages readers to listen to their higher self and review how their life has set them up perfectly for their own spiritual awakening. The following excerpt, which concludes the book, tells the powerful story of how Lorna's decision to follow her intuition changed her approach to treating cancer and to healing herself.

One More Opportunity for Growth

Dragonfly made his presence known once again when one day he appeared and asked: "Are you now ready to add that last chapter to your story?" Somewhat reluctantly I replied: "I guess I'm now ready."

A few months ago, after I had written the previous chapter in this narrative, I thought that my story was complete. However, once again I was faced with a situation that was to offer another profound opportunity for growth, and that there was one more chapter to this story.

"Can you share why you are adding another chapter to what you had considered complete?" he asked.

"Once again life has had a way of interjecting the unexpected. And once again I have had to recall, examine, and mentally and emotionally try to make sense of what has occurred."

"Now you know you are piquing our curiosity..."

"Yes, I'm afraid there is another opportunity for yet another lesson to be shared. It all began several months ago when I discovered what appeared to be a lump in my breast. At first I tried to deny it and ignore it, but after a couple of weeks of vacillating from 'could-it-be' to 'it-can't-be' I decided to have it checked out."

"It doesn't sound like you were in a panic about it."

"No, I was pretty calm considering the possibility. After going through the standard medical process the ultimate conclusion was Stage II breast cancer. During the days that I went through the process of diagnosis and medical recommendations I naturally confronted the usual questions of 'why, why me, why now, how did this happen, who or what can I blame, I am really angry about this, maybe it is my time to die, maybe my work is complete, maybe my work is not complete.'"

"Given all of the possible answers you might have received to your questions, how did you process this information?"

"As is my fashion, I truly did explore all of the above questions I had for myself. I especially questioned the fact that I have spent more than 35 years of my life on my active spiritual path, have a good understanding of the mind/body relationship and don't hold grudges or dwell in the past, and I don't abuse my body, and wondered how this could happen to me."

"Have you been able to resolve any of your major questions and how did you proceed?"

"Given my many years of thinking and acting outside of the proverbial box, on my first visit to the Oncology Department I informed the doctor that I was not his typical patient and my desire was to work with and explore all of the alternative methods, ideas and therapies that I knew about, given my extensive network of resources, practitioners and friends."

"How did he react to your decision?"

"He replied that his preference was to be able to use procedures from which he would get a certain expected result, but that if I wanted to do this my way he would order the necessary diagnostic tests that may be required."

Since I have rejected the standard medical model I have taken this on as my model for healing my body.

"How did that work out?"

"I did proceed with various tests to determine that the rest of my body was clear and I told him I needed some time to process the information in order to formulate my game plan, to which he agreed."

"And how did you formulate your game plan?"

"Well, there were extensive alternate therapies, ideas and books that were suggested to me and I intuitively looked into a number of therapies — some of which I

Lorna Brown will be a guest speaker at Crazy Wisdom on Tuesday, April 3rd, at 7pm, to talk about her new book and interact with the audience, as part of our winter/spring Local Authors' Nights. She is a well-regarded spiritual teacher in the region.

rejected and some of which I pursued. I also obtained a number of books — some of which I rejected and some of which I pursued.

"I also availed myself of services and modalities offered by many of my friends who are active in the field of alternative energy healing and I was placed on many prayer lists."

"It sound like you went about formulating a plan, so what does that plan look like?"

"Someone referred to my process as 'circling my metaphysical wagons' and I actually looked at my process from a physical, mental and spiritual perspective. These areas have long held an interest for me and this seemed like the way I wanted to proceed.

"I have long advocated the idea of naturally supporting the body with supplements and essential oils, so from the physical perspective I followed a program that included natural supplements that support my healing process, along with some supplements that act as cleansing and detoxing agents.

"Many of the books I read also used these modalities along with a strong emphasis on eating a very clean, healthy and supporting diet."

"So, did you have to eliminate all of your favorite foods?" Dragonfly continued.

"I have not eliminated all of my favorite foods, but I have made some adjustments. It is apparent that the standard Western diet has lead to or exacerbated many of our current health problems, including cancer, so I have become very strict about what I put into my body.

"I eat primarily a vegetarian diet with lots of greens and other organic vegetables, no white sugar, no white flour and no processed foods. I also eat only fruit with a lower sugar content, lots of seeds and dark skins such as blueberries, strawberries and raspberries. At this time that does mean no cakes, no pies, and no ice cream."

"Has this been difficult to do?"

"Sometimes it is not as much fun, but it is really not difficult. It is just something

This incident was the way for my Soul to get my attention in a manner I could not ignore.

that is necessary at this time, and since I have rejected the standard medical model I have taken this on as my model for healing my body."

"How do you feel following this regimen?"

"I feel great, am never hungry and have also lost a few pounds. I've moved back into my old size 8's."

"How do you think the mental perspective has come into play?"

"I think this has been a crucial component in my journey. Since I have long known about and advocated the concept of the mind/body connection, I also read or re-read many of the books related to healing.

"Since it is apparent to me that sickness and disease can be created or encouraged by the mind, it is also obvious that healing and curing have a mental component."

"How did you work with this idea?"

"Of course I had to think about how or why I was in this situation. Was it because I had harbored the wrong thoughts, internalized my emotions, exposed my body to toxic chemicals, ate the wrong food, or just lived on a planet where some toxins cannot be avoided."

"Were you able to isolate one culprit?"

"As much as I tried to point my finger at one specific area, I finally had to conclude that all of my life may have contributed to my situation, and it was probably a combination of issues and situations."

"Do you see a bigger perspective also present?"

"I had to ask myself, what opportunities may lie in this seeming challenge? Although I am not afraid to die, I think my soul still has work for me to do here. I am not finished. I don't think my life has brought me to this point with what I feel is unfinished business. This could be at a soul level and it could also be at a planetary level. As humans we are about to make a great leap forward in consciousness and I just don't think my job is done.

"Since I do not think my job here is finished and I feel like there is still more for me to do here, I have not collapsed myself into victimhood or taken on a negative attitude regarding my situation. Rather, I have regarded it as presenting me with an opportunity to explore how an illness that some would regard as life-threatening can instead be a vehicle for growth and change.

"How can I work with this to become a person who lives life from a higher perspective, and perhaps even be able to encourage and share ideas with others who may be facing life challenges? I believe we have to acknowledge that situations come to us that are beyond our reasoning mind and we have to accept that therein is contained the element of grace.

"I feel like this is something in my body that has gotten my attention and even before the 'diagnosis' I was being prompted to listen to my intuition."

"How does intuition figure into this picture?"

"This is a part of my story that I have found most interesting. Among other things, the time leading up to the diagnosis was filled with a number of issues with my car. Nancy Tappe, one of my teachers/mentors, has created a whole concept around car issues and what they are trying to tell us, based on the fact that our car is such an integral part of our life style."

"That sounds different, but pretty interesting."

"My car had issues with heavy wheel vibration, two brake repairs and a flat tire. Within Nancy's concept all of these things were telling me I was out of balance,

As humans we are about to make a great leap forward in consciousness and I just don't think my job is done.

losing energy and needed to slow down and readjust my priorities. At the same time my writings were encouraging me to listen and pay attention to my intuition, which I did in having some medical tests, which resulted in the diagnosis.

"But the clincher for the intuition came in a very dramatic way."

"OK – give us the story..."

"It was a drizzly day when I made my first visit to the oncologist, after the various tests had been completed. As already stated, he shared with me his observations and recommendations for treatment, which included the standard 'slash and burn.' Since I had told him I was not his typical patient and wanted to think about it and also look into some alternatives, he agreed.

"As I left the office and went to my car in the parking lot I found that someone had smashed my driver's side window and stolen my GPS."

"That's quite a shock, so what was your reaction?"

"My first reaction was to be angry and 'pissed.' Why did this happen, etc., etc., etc.? I made a police report, cleaned up the glass as best I could, found a towel in my trunk to partially cover the window and keep out the rain and headed toward home.

"A bit later, in assessing the situation from a metaphysical perspective and using the information I had about automobiles in our life, I was able to formulate a message.

"Through journaling and listening to my intuition I concluded that this incident was the way for my Soul to get my attention in a manner I could not ignore. My assessment is the following:

"The left window was broken because there was something I was not seeing clearly in the outside world and left side is right brain or intuitive. The GPS is an automated system for navigation and it was stolen so that I could not rely on an automated system, but should listen to and follow my own intuition. Since this happened outside of the Oncology Department, I was not to follow the automated system for my treatment, but was to follow my own navigational system. This was a very significant and powerful message to me. It also acted as a confirmation of what I was already considering."

"Did those close to you agree with your decisions?"

"Not totally, but in the end it is my life and my decision, so they are all supportive."

"How does the oncologist feel about this?"

"When I went back for a follow-up visit to reassess my options and decisions, he said, 'what you are doing is not the way I would proceed, but keep doing what you are doing. You could live like this for 30 years.' I took that as a positive statement. I have subsequently received other positive feedback and continue to experience good health.

"So, right now I'll keep doing what I'm doing. I will continue to eat a very clean and supportive diet, I will continue to support my body with natural supplements and alternative therapies, and I will continue to maintain a positive attitude regarding my body, knowing that I will be here on planet Earth for as long as my Higher Self wants me here, in order to further serve the growth of my Soul, and possibly also continue to be of service to humanity in ways I am not now even aware of."

The Gift

"Given all that has transpired within this opportunity, how would you summarize the gift?" asked Dragonfly.

"Life may not unfold in the way that our minds think it will, but it will unfold according to the plans of our soul. Life always provides new opportunities for growth if we are willing to be open to the broader perspective. I know that my life is not yet finished, so as the old saying goes: when life hands you lemons, you make lemonade."

Lorna Brown has been a spiritual teacher and workshop leader for over 35 years, covering a wide variety of metaphysical subjects. Her primary focus has been in areas that encompass both personal and planetary change. Her current work includes classes in sacred geometry, earth history, Peruvian shamanism and personal empowerment. Dragonfly Dialogues was self-published in August 2011 and is currently available from the author at www.RevLornaBrown.com and at Crazy Wisdom Bookstore. She can be reached at 734-428-8748 or at: starlab6@aol.com.

Postscript to the final chapter ~ The Book of Wisdom: Opportunity

By Lorna Brown

As you sit here on this beautiful summer day listening to the many birds that fly and chatter around you, with a soft breeze stirring the leaves and grasses, you can observe that all of life speaks with the energy of creation. Life is here and life is everywhere. Nothing is ever lost or destroyed. Your time here on the planet will continue for you have a message to share and a spark to ignite. The time in which you now live is an auspicious time of opportunity for change and growth.

You also listen to your intuition, for it is in this way that your Soul or Higher Self communicates with you, if you will but listen. Sometimes the message can be very dramatic and sometimes it is in a small whisper, but the key is to listen from your heart. Life is still one breath at a time, one step at a time, one day at a time. So live your life as though every moment is a gift, both to yourself and to the world. Think of ways in which you can truly live your life with meaning and purpose. You didn't grow yourself up to who and where you are today to ignore this gift, so live life fully for yourself and for the world, in whatever way that may take shape for you.

Business Card Directory

Acupuncture

AcuThrive Acupuncture

Ellen Porter, M.Ac., L.Ac., Dipl.Ac.
Master of Acupuncture

By Appointment
(734) 845-2166
www.AcuThrive.Org

Bodywork/Massage /Healing Touch

Support for all the ways your being moves

Caroline Charlesworth
CONSCIOUS BODYWORK
Massage • Energy Work

Graduate, Barbara Brennan School of Healing 734.485.8485

the Arts/Dance/ Music/Writing

GEORGIEGALANTE.COM

METAL CLAY AND POLYMER CLAY
ARTISAN AND INSTRUCTOR

517-414-5403
GEOGAL48@GMAIL.COM

Celebrations & Ceremonies

Threshold Celebrations: Weddings and Other Rites of Passage

Michael Andes
Celebrant

621 W. Summit St.
Ann Arbor, MI 48103
(734) 662-5215
mandes@comcast.net

(734) 668-8146
kathy@kathymoorevoice.com
www.kathymoorevoice.com

Moore Voice

Kathleen Moore
singer, songwriter, voice teacher,
certified music therapist,
& certified teacher of the Alexander Technique

Childbirth

Center for the Childbearing Year

- Holistic Birth Preparation
- Breastfeeding Support
- MotherBaby Groups
- Professional Doula Training
- And More!

www.center4cbby.com

Bodywork/Massage /Healing Touch

BODY BALANCE
promoting body awareness and balance
Hellerwork and Structural Medicine
Julie Jeffery Peale, CHP, SMS

708 W. Huron St., Suite 3
Ann Arbor, MI 48103
p. 734-395-6776
e. juliejefferypeale@hotmail.com www.bodybalance4u.net

Energy Healing

REIKI

THE USUI SYSTEM OF REIKI HEALING
For Body, Mind & Spirit

CLASSES & INDIVIDUAL TREATMENTS

Suzy Wienckowski, Reiki Master
Reiki Alliance Member

734-665-8665 SuzyReiki@aol.com

Essential Oils

Gym Giovino
"Build the Strength to Support Your life"

734-276-7769
info@gymgiovino.com
www.GymGiovino.com

Ann-Margaret Giovino
Postural Alignment Specialist, trained by Egoscue

YOUNG LIVING ESSENTIAL OILS | INDEPENDENT DISTRIBUTOR

Nancy Harknett
634536

Hand In Hand Healing, LLC
1190 Kay Parkway
Ann Arbor, Michigan 48103
Cell: 734-649-7076

nanharknett@gmail.com
WORLD LEADER IN ESSENTIAL OILS

Holistic Health

Total Development Center, LLC
Caryn Crimmins
 Holistic Coach & Healer
"You don't get what you want, you get what you believe!" 734-740-6162
 Telephone & Skype appointments
www.totaldevelopmentcenter.com

Children's Transportation Services

KIDS KRUISER, LLC
 Safely Driving the Future
 A Taxi for Kids
734.255.3556
 Kids Kruiser www.kidskruiser.com

Hypnosis

Tom Hornyak Hypnosis

- Quit Smoking
- Improve Sports Performance
- Anxiety/Stress Reduction
- Pain Management
- Improve Study Habits
- Weight Management
- Past Life Regression

Start making the changes you want to make in your life today.

734-945-0914
 701 Madison Place
 Ann Arbor, MI 48103
www.tomhornyak.com
tom@tomhornyak.com

Meditation

MEDITATION
 Introductory & Advanced Meditation courses

srichinmoycentre.org

For a free catalog of books and music or for information:
734-994-7114

Intuitive/Psychic

Spiritual Counselor and Medium

Intuitive Psychic Readings by Amy

Individuals, Pairs, & Parties by Appt.

(734) 358-0218
metafizzy@gmail.com

ALSO see me at the Crazy Wisdom Tea Room:
 2nd & 4th Saturdays, 2:00-5:00 pm

Nutrition & Food Medicine

Cindy Klement, CNC, Id, CH
 Certified Nutritional Consultant
 Iridologist, Chartered Herbalist
 National Health Educator

The Parkway Center
 2345 S. Huron Parkway
 Ann Arbor, MI 48104

734-975-2444

Channelled Intuitive Readings
 by, Nicole Bedy

"The whole point of this venture is to let human beings know they have the power to create the future they deserve"

-Cera, Michael and Hannus

810-941-8842
pineriverintuitive.com
pineriverintuitive@gmail.com

Psychotherapy & Life Coaching

Nanci Rose Gerler
 Psychic ♦ Medium
 Channel ♦ Lightworker

Ann Arbor, MI
 Nickels Arcade
 Ft. Myers/Naples, FL

- ♦ 23 Years Experience
- ♦ Intuitive Guidance
- ♦ Life Issue Insight
- ♦ Personal/Phone Readings
- ♦ Individual/Couples/Parties
- ♦ By Appointment

800.996.8799
NanciRoseGerler.com ♦ nancirosegerler@gmail.com

Anita Rubin-Meiller, L.M.S.W.
 Integrative therapy
 for Body, Mind and Spirit

Phone: 734-332-0669
 Email: anita1018@sbcglobal.net
 1935 Pauline Blvd., Suite 200
 Ann Arbor, MI 48103

Business Card Directory

Psychotherapy & Life Coaching

EMDR
Create internal healing resources.
Cam Vozar LMSW LMFT
 1905 Pauline Suite 3
 734-747-9073
Accident and Abuse Trauma, Depression Stress, Grief, Phobias, and Anxiety

Relationship Coach

You can learn a better way to relate!

Carole Kirby LMSW
 IMAGO therapy & workshops

734.424.2797 www.therapy4couples.com

Kelly Grocoff, MSW
 Clinical Therapist

2225 Packard Road, Suite 1
 Ann Arbor, MI 48104

Phone: 734-926-5366
 E-mail: kgrocoff@gmail.com

 Melisa Schuster, LMSW
psychotherapy for the childbearing years

- prenatal and postpartum depression
- traumatic birth
- childbearing losses
- parenting and child guidance

734-302-0033 • www.melischuster.com
 500 Little Lake Drive, #300 • Ann Arbor, MI 48103

Psychotherapy from a Bioenergetic and Transpersonal Perspective

Ruth Riegel, Ph.D, CBT
 Fully Licensed Psychologist

Ann Arbor, MI 48104

(734) 761-9183

ALICE MIXER, LCMSW

Spiritual Direction
 Psychotherapy

Ann Arbor, Michigan
 734-769-3134
 alicemixer@yahoo.com

Enneagram
 Grief and Loss
 A Course in Miracles

Psychotherapy & Life Coaching

Tiffany L. Mazurek
 LMSW, ACSW, NCTMB

Center for Sacred Living

210 Little Lake Drive, Suite 7
 Ann Arbor, MI 48103
 734-709-2096
 tiffany@sacred-healing.com

Psychotherapy
 Massage Therapy
 Craniosacral Therapy

JUMP-IN

Therapy & Wellness

Specializing in therapies that assist in improving academic skills, motor performance, overall health & well-being

Sensory Processing & Neurological Integration
 For children and adults

Hamburg, MI 810-231-9042 www.jump-in-products.com

Sacred Sexuality

 Mystery School of the Temple Arts

Sacred Sexuality
Individual & Couple Coaching Group Classes, Workshops, Retreats

Leslie Blackburn
 313.269.6719
 Dakini@MysterySchooloftheTempleArts.com www.MysterySchooloftheTempleArts.com

Sound Healing

Sound Healing Therapies
 Certified in Sound & Alchemical Healing

Chris Stafford
 7276 Jackman Road, Suite C
 Temperance, MI 48182
 419-367-8949

☞ Stay Tuned ☞ ☞ Licensed and Insured ☞

Shiatsu/ Tai-Ki

Ohashiatsu® Ann Arbor
 Shiatsu classes forming now with Frances Farmer

734-417-9038
 www.shiatsuannarbor.com
Touch for Peace

A Sedge of Cranes Dojo

Nigel Kerr, Sensei
 734-845-7971
 nigel.kerr@gmail.com
 http://sedgeofcranes.org/

Classes in the meditative movement art Tai-Ki.

BREAKFAST - LUNCH - DINNER

BACK TO THE ROOTS

Real food. Real good.

115 S. MAIN ST. CHELSEA, MICHIGAN

RESTAURANT ■ SUSHI BAR ■ BOUTIQUE

(734) 475 - 2700

www.BACKTOTHEROOTS.org

People's Food Co-op
Community-Owned. Natural Foods. Grocery.

216 N Fourth Ave
Ann Arbor, MI
(734) 994-9174
<http://peoplesfood.coop>

YOUR DOWNTOWN GROCERY STORE